House Votes To Continue Trade Pacts, 216 to 168

Hull Program Goes To Senate Without Amendment; Party Lines Hold Fast

By John B. Oakes.
Post Staff Writer

The Administration won a major victory last night when the House passed and sent to the Senate without amendments Secretary Hull's bill extending the reciprocal trade agreements act to June 12, 1943. The vote on final passage was 216 to 168.

An all-day battle raged in the House over a succession of some 23 amendments with which opponents vainly hammered away at the eight-line bill. Most of the amendments were designed to protect products of the farm in general or of special sections of the country; but, after one narrow squeak, they were all snowed under in an avalanche of Democratic "noes."

Severely restricting debate toward the end of the afternoon, the House disposed of the last 14 amendments in about 40 minutes, with speakers allowed as little as 30 seconds to defend their proposals.

Party Ranks Held

On the final tally, party ranks held firm, with only 19 Democrats voting against the bill and 5 Republicans shouting "aye."

Jubilant over the outcome, Secretary Hull said last night that "I am—and I am sure supporters of the program everywhere are—immensely gratified at the vote."

While another fight is expected in the Senate, opponents of extension of the trade agreements privately conceded last night that passage of the bill was virtually certain. It is now expected that the Administration will obtain at least 55 votes against an amendment making the agreements subject to Senate ratification, which is the principal rallying point of Senate opposition.

This amendment, proposed by Representative Coffee (Democrat), of Nebraska, was defeated in the House yesterday, 177 to 157, with very few Democrats voting in its favor.

Amendments Killed

Much greater strength was shown by the Disney amendment, which would have specifically protected the present level of excise taxes on oil, coal, lumber and copper. Offered by Representative Disney (Democrat), of Oklahoma, the proposal won about 40 Democratic votes and was turned down by the bare majority of 164 to 155.

A half-dozen Republicans at the last moment voted to kill the Disney amendment in order, it was said, to make the bill in its final form as unpalatable to as many Democrats as possible.

After all individual amendments had been defeated, Representative Treadway (Republican), of Massachusetts, moved to recommit the bill and amend it with an omnibus proposal including the major Republican demands. But this last effort was overwhelmed, 221 to 163.

In addition to refusing proposals that the trade agreements be submitted to Congressional or at least Senatorial approval, the House remained adamant toward a wide variety of amendments intended to exclude competitive foreign farm products as well as to protect existing excise taxes.

Wage Law Mentioned

In the last few hectic minutes of debate, one Republican—Representative Risk, of Rhode Island—urged to the amusement of his colleagues that no goods be admitted from trade agreement countries unless the American consul certifies that they were produced in accordance with the American Wage-Hours Act. The proposal was defeated, 122 to 98.

OSCAR CHAPMAN ANN KENDRICK

Interior Official and Miss Ann Kendrick Will Have a Quiet Wedding in Louisiana; Romance Began in Early New Deal Days

By Hope Ridings Miller.

A romance that began here in the early days of the New Deal will culminate in a marriage in Shreveport, La., tonight when Oscar Littleton Chapman, Assistant Secretary of the Interior, takes as his bride Miss Ann Kendrick, who has been his secretary for several years.

Planned as a quiet affair because of the critical illness of Miss Kendrick's uncle, Dr. John Manly, of the University of Chicago, the ceremony is scheduled for 8 p. m. at the home of the bride-elect's parents, the Rev. and Mrs. James I. Kendrick. The former will officiate in the presence of members of the family and a few close friends.

Immediately after the wedding the couple will leave for New Orleans, and will go from there to

Drivers Avoid Plaza as Lights Snarl Traffic

Van Duzer's $50,000 System 'Boycotted' During Peak Hours

By Howard F. Wentworth
Post Staff Writer

The new $50,000 "traffic control" set-up at Union Station Plaza got the cold shoulder from Washington motorists yesterday.

Only the bravest ventured into the plaza at rush-hour time—and most of them were taxi drivers who had to go there anyway. In the words of one motorist who earlier had battled his way through the intricate maze of confusing neon signals: "Never again!"

"They all must be using some other route to get home," commented Inspector William E. Holmes, police traffic supervisor. "This isn't the usual rush-hour traffic flow—in fact, I've never seen such a small number of cars using the plaza in all my years on the force."

Hyattsville Fire Cuts Two Stations Off Air an Hour

Two Washington radio stations were silenced last night for more than an hour by a fire which destroyed an old frame house in Hyattsville, Md., and burned out a telephone feeder cable serving the stations.

WRC and WOL were cut suddenly off the air at 10:15 p. m. when network programs coming over the cable were interrupted. After the trouble was traced, both stations filled in with recorded music until the line was repaired shortly after midnight.

Four occupants of the burned building in Hyattsville were jailed on a vagrancy charge four hours before the fire was discovered.

Lobby on Hill, D. C. Suffrage GroupsAdvised

Kennedy Says Pep Meetings Downtown Merely Waste Time

District suffrage proponents were advised yesterday by Chairman Kennedy, of the House subcommittee on reorganization, to lobby for the franchise right on Capitol Hill.

"They're wasting time holding pep meetings downtown," he remarked. "It's up here where the educational work is needed."

Preparing to open hearings on reorganization next week, Kennedy said he does not agree with Representative Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, that suffrage should be separated from governmental reform. Dirksen had suggested that the subcommittee report out a suffrage bill without recommendation to the full committee.

Randolph Concurs

"I think the two questions should be decided together as they have the same objective," said Kennedy.

Chairman Randolph, of the full committee, expressed a similar view.

"It seems to me that suffrage is a vital part of any effort to improve the government of the District," he said.

Rain, Warmer Forecast Tonight

Immediate prospects for snow were ruled out last night by the weatherman, who predicted increasing cloudiness today and rain tonight and tomorrow. Tonight, he added, would be warmer and tomorrow colder.

Yesterday's low temperature was 28 degrees at 6 a. m. and a low of about the same was forecast for early today.

Connecticut Avenue Parade Of Fashion to Aid Blood Bank

Easter fashions on parade will mean added funds for the blood and serum bank of Children's Hospital, according to plans announced yesterday by the Connecticut Avenue Association.

L. R. Colburn, president, revealed that the association had agreed to contribute the entire proceeds of its seventh Easter fashion promenade and exhibit to the blood bank fund which is sponsored by The Post, Radio Station WJSV, and the Washington section, American Contract Bridge League.

The fashion parade will be held Monday, March 11, in the ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel. Besides the three style shows at 2, 5 and 8 p. m., there will be a day-long exhibit of new clothes, jewelry and home furnishings in the hotel lobby.

The Connecticut Avenue Association, whose members include 125 firms along Connecticut between Pennsylvania and Florida avenues and nearby, has annually contributed the proceeds of its spring fashion show to civic projects.

These contributions have ranged up to $1,000 for a single year, said Colburn. He added that the blood bank drive is "the most commendable sort of campaign, and deserves the support of the entire community."

Mrs. Winslow B. Van Devanter, co-chairman of the ladies' committee of the blood bank campaign, hailed the announcement of Colburn and said "it's a very fine thing for the association to do."

Colburn announced appointment of Louis Massey, of the Artcraft shoe store, as general chairman of the fashion promenade committee. Other committee members include L. E. Rubel, of Underwood & Underwood; Max Tendler, attorney; Rich-

ABC Probe Told Police Asked Bribes

Bartenders' Union Secretary Complains; Georgetown Dealer To Support Story

A Georgetown liquor licensee yesterday agreed to appear before the Eberharter House subcommittee after Claude S. Martin, secretary of the District Bartenders Union, had charged before the committee that police attempted to extort a bribe.

Thomas J. Connors, who operates a restaurant at 1335 Wisconsin avenue, was invited by Chairman Eberharter to testify before the subcommittee next Wednesday in support of the charge.

Martin, who complained that police inspectors assigned to keep check on liquor licensees often used the tactics of Nazi storm troopers, cited the Connors restaurant as an example.

Two "rookie" policemen did not ask for money outright, Martin said, "but they made it plain that was what they wanted."

"He refused to give it to them," Martin added, "and a short time later his license was suspended. I asked him to come before this committee and testify, but he refused because he was afraid if he did he would lose his license altogether."

Suspended Seven Days

ABC board records showed that Connors' license was suspended for seven days in the summer of 1939 upon the complaint of two police inspectors, who are no longer assigned to liquor inspection duty. He was charged with selling drinks to an intoxicated person and permitting disorderly conduct.

Eberharter said that after the subcommittee gets more information on the case Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, and probably the policemen involved will be given an opportunity to deny the charge.

Martin cited other cases in which he charged that licensees were penalized either for violations they could not avoid or on questionable complaints.

The case of a lunch room proprietor is still pending before the ABC board, he said, in which an inspector charged that a liquor sale had been made to an intoxicated person.

Favors U. S. Dispensaries

"The customer referred to was a Government Printing Office employe out for lunch," said Martin. "He went back to work after the incident perfectly sober."

Martin recommended that experienced policemen be used for liquor inspection work and that they not be switched around so as not to be known to inspectors.

He indorsed Government dispensary operation of package stores and suggested the licensing of all bartenders and repeal of the ban on the sale of liquor to persons standing at a bar.

Turkey Declares 'Emergency,' Reds Reported Over Border; Allies Urged to Attack Russia

Hore-Belisha Asks Total War to Stop Advance in North, Shorten Conflict

By Robert E. Bunnelle,
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Feb. 23.—Great Britain and France were exhorted boldly tonight by Leslie Hore-Belisha, ousted war minister, to make real war on Soviet Russia on land, air and sea—to save Finland and to shorten their own ordeal by fire.

If Russia wins the war in the north, he said, she will not be satisfied with her spoils in Finland—she will force advantages for Germany in Scandinavia, where both Britain and Germany are hungry for food, iron ore, timber and other supplies.

"Well-planned, adequate, decisive action" in Finland, Hore-Belisha argued, would prevent this—give new strength to the Allies' economic arm and "curtail the duration of the war."

The speech was delivered by Hore-Belisha to his parliamentary constituents at Devonport on a proud day for this island at war.

Spee Conquerors Hailed

The greatest crowd since the coronation jammed London's streets from Westminster to the Guild Hall to acclaim the men who won the Rio Plata victory over the Admiral Graf Spee.

Beneath the blare of bands and beat of drums, the war went grimly on.

British war planes were disclosed to have bombed German warships in Helgoland Bight Tuesday night and to have flown last night over Austria and Czecho-Slovakia.

German planes made their first moonlight raid on British coastal shipping, machine-gunning the 2,429-ton British Gothic and wounding her captain.

British Lose Plane

The British lost one plane over Helgoland; blamed it on the weather. The R. A. F. fighters believed they had shot down one German plane on the same flight. The Germans lost two planes in daylight attacks on the British coastline Thursday.

Hore-Belisha, whose resignation, on request, from the war cabinet on January 5, was a result of just such aggressive beliefs and expressions as he displayed today, told his Devonport audience:

"The risk of helping Finland may be great, but the risk of not helping her may be greater. . . .

"She is holding the pass of civilization."

London Crowds Cheer Heroes Of Victorious Ajax and Exeter

By Raymond Daniell
Copyright by New York Times

London, Feb. 23.—For the first time since the outbreak of this paradeless war of little glamour, the people of London had a chance today to see and cheer victors of battle.

They made the most of it, as 760 officers and men from the cruisers Exeter and Ajax marched through the streets of this capital and listened to words of praise from First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill at historic Guild Hall, and finally lined up with the Horse Guards on parade, as King George VI decorated 72 of their number for outstanding gallantry in the action which spelled doom for the German commerce raider Admiral Graf Spee.

They returned to their ships tied up at Plymouth, but London will not soon forget their visit which came as a tonic to this rationed, blacked-out capital.

Its people behaved very much as the citizens of New York do when celebrities like the King and Queen, pay a visit to their city. Scraps of paper, like ticker tape, fluttered down upon the marching men in the city. Yet it was a typically British reception.

At the same time in Auckland, in the Antipodes, their brothers in arms from the Achilles, the third British naval ship in the River Plate action, were being similarly entertained.

A civic reception began in the morning when about 600 men detrained at Waterloo Station and were greeted by bands from the two ships, which preceded them here yesterday. The bands, wearing uniforms of blue and gold with white pith helmets, played "Hearts of Oak" as the column of blue-uniformed sailors and khaki-clad ma-

Aboard Rex en Route to Naples, Feb. 23 (U.P.).—Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles sat chatting with British officials on the deck of this Italian liner off Gibraltar late today while British contraband control officers removed 334 bags of United States mail addressed to Germany and Poland.

The Undersecretary was given a thorough example of British blockade methods and saw the Rex put through the Gibraltar contraband control station in 3 hours and 40 minutes in contrast to periods ranging up to more than two weeks for American ships forced into some Allied contraband control ports.

The Rex reached Gibraltar at 2:50 p. m. and was allowed to depart at 6:30.

Fight Toward Viipuri In Drive Marking Red Army Birthday

By Thomas L. Hawkins,
Associated Press Staff Writer

Helsinki, Feb. 23.—The Russian army thrust forward at several points along a jagged 30-mile front in an intensified drive through the western half of the Mannerheim Line today, losing nearly 3,000 killed in a single day's combat.

The Russian penetration at one point reached to within 10 or 12 miles of Viipuri—to the vicinity of Naykki Lake, roughly 4 miles northwest of the Kamara Railway station, where fighting began Thursday, according to today's communique.

If this meant that the Soviet advance was part of a major offensive to celebrate today's twenty-second anniversary of the forming of the Red army, it was a costly one.

Belgrade, Feb. 23.—The supreme defense council of the Turkish Republic, presided over by Marshal Fevzi Chakmak, commander in chief of the armed forces, has declared a state of emergency throughout the country. After meeting in Ankara for nearly a week the council has taken this decision under the emergency law voted a few weeks ago in the Kamutay.

The law specified three circumstances in which a state of emergency might be declared—first, partial or general mobilization; second, war between Turkey and another power; third, war between two third powers—powers which may constitute a threat to Turkish interests.

All telephone communication between Turkey and the outside world was cut off yesterday. Consequently it is not known here which of the conditions has been invoked. However, it is believed in most authoritative quarters that the reports a few days ago of a serious Russo-Turkish frontier incident were true though denied in Moscow.

Russian Desertions Reported

It was reported Russian troops crossed the Caucasus frontier into Turkey and declined to withdraw. It was authoritatively reported here late this evening that the Russian troops were still on Turkish territory, though it is not known whether there has been any clash.

It appears a Russian battalion crossed the frontier and was disarmed by the Turks. The Turks then, it is reported, invited the Soviet authorities to send a detachment to recover the arms but at the same time interned the men who seemed to have been deserters. The Russians thereupon, according to one account, sent a cavalry detachment to pick up the equipment. However, once over the frontier, this second detachment declined to return to Russia.

Mysterious Germans on Move

The supreme defense council also has decided on the formation of a council to coordinate emergency measures. It is to be presided over by the Prime Minister and will include the ministries of defense, finance, commerce, economics and communications. The Kamutay, it is reported, will be summoned to ratify these measures.

An Istanbul report received in Bucharest today states that Soviet Russia has recalled all Russian experts from Turkey.

Unusually large numbers of German citizens, traveling to Turkey at a time when German experts are still being expelled, describe themselves as merchants. Genuine German businessmen, however, are steadily departing from Turkey.

Likewise considerable numbers of Germans are traveling through the Balkans en route to Iran and Arabia. It is believed all these men are German officers.

It is pointed out, however, in this connection, that the Deutsche Levant Line which now has established headquarters in Odessa has prepared to organize a steamship service this spring to bring Persian

Penniless, She Says, in Suit to Force Prince David Mdivani to Contribute To Support of Son; Hysterical in Court

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, Feb. 23.—Mae Murray, blonde star of the silent screen, sobbingly told a Superior Court judge today she was worth $3,000,000 in 1926, but that ten years later she sat on a bench in New York's Central Park for three days, penniless.

She was so tearful the judge called a recess in the trial of her suit against Prince David, of the Georgian Mdivanis for $1,000 monthly to establish a home for their son, Koran David, 13.

"In September, 1936, I had no funds," she testified brokenly. "I had no place to live at the moment. I had to leave my hotel.

"I had to leave all my belongings and I was frightened. I just packed a little hat box with the things I needed for cleanliness and spent three days in Central Park."

"Without any funds?" interposed her attorney, Milan Medigovich.

Roosevelt Fishes at Cocos, Meets Baltimore Argonauts

By the Associated Press

Cocos Island, Feb. 23.—President Roosevelt fished today in the waters off this remote Pacific island famed for centuries as the reputed burial place of millions in treasure.

The Cruiser Tuscaloosa and her attendant destroyers, the Lang and Jouett, anchored in picturesque Chatham Bay, from which rise tropically verdured mountains in which may be hidden loot which Mr. Roosevelt said was estimated at from $20,000,000 to $40,000,000.

Also anchored in the bay was the 50-foot schooner Fiddlers Green, which brought three adventurers—Dr. Edmund Kelly, his brother, F. H. Kelly, and their nephew, Howard A. Kelly, from Baltimore on a 6,800-mile trip which started last July.

Invited aboard the Tuscaloosa, the Kellys talked to the President and told of meeting another treasure-hunting party headed by a Californian named Davenport, who reported finding treasure signs and sailed for Panama for digging equipment. The island is uninhabited.

An ardent sailor himself, the President expressed interest in the wanderings of the Kellys, amateur navigators who have visited Trinidad, British Guiana, Panama and Cocos en route to the Galapagos.

The Kellys originally planned a three-year, round-the-world cruise, but now plan to return to Baltimore next summer because of hostilities in Europe.

The Tuscaloosa had orders to up anchor at noon, taking Mr. Roosevelt for a view of additional places which might eventually prove valuable in Panama Canal defense plans.

Mrs. Helen Washington Rites to Be Tomorrow

Funeral services for Mrs. Helen Stewart Washington, 65, widow of Horace Lee Washington, one-time United States consul general in London, will be conducted at 11 a. m. tomorrow at the residence, 2200 R street northwest. Mrs. Washington died Wednesday night.

Mrs. Washington, the former Helen Stewart Williams, of Chicago, was married to Washington in 1896, when he was consul in Alexandretta, Syria, and accompanied him to posts in several European Capitals during a diplomatic career that covered 36 years. Washington died in 1938.

A daughter, Helen Lee Washington, was married in England last month to Arthur Norris Kennard, son of Sir Howard Kennard, British ambassador to Poland, at the time of the German invasion.

A son, Horace Lee Washington, jr., who attended his sister's wedding, is returning to the country aboard the Conte di Savoia. He was notified of his mother's death yesterday, when relatives reached him by telephone.

Burial will be in York Village, Me., where Mrs. Washington had a summer home.

Farmers Meet Tomorrow In SandySpring

Acoustics Experiment Convention Feature In Sherwood High

An experiment in acoustics will be a feature of the sixty-eighth annual Farmers Convention of Sandy Spring Neighborhood tomorrow at Sherwood High School, Sandy Spring, Md.

The Farmers Convention, which grew from the desire of three clubs of farmers to compare crop results and experiments, will seat its audience crosswise in the high school auditorium in an effort to improve the acoustics. The speakers will talk from the floor and will use a new amplifier loaned by the county agent's office. Much difficulty was experienced at the last two meetings because of a "dead spot" in the center of the auditorium. It is believed the new system will permit all to hear, according to Robert H. Miller, jr., secretary.

Talks on cattle feeding will be given by Leonard C. Burns, Olney farmer who has been conducting successful experiments, and Joseph M. Vail, animal husbandry specialist of the extension service of the Department of Agriculture.

Results of use of hybrid field corn in Sandy Spring will be reviewed in a discussion to be led by Stanley Stabler, William Hines, Maurice Cissel and Dr. Eric England.

County Agent O. W. Anderson will discuss "Growing Lespedeza," a new kind of clover, and R. T. Norris, chief deputy warden of the State Game and Inland Fish Commission, will talk on "Game Conservation and Hunter-Farmer Cooperation."

The morning session will begin at 10:30 a. m., with a luncheon served by the women of the community at 12:15 p. m. and the afternoon session will start at 1 p. m.

John E. Muncaster is president, William W. Moore, vice president, and Robert H. Miller, jr., secretary. Frederick Gilpin is chairman of the men's committee, and Mrs. Andrew J. Boyd, of the women's committee.

The Senior Farmers Club, founded in 1844; the Enterprise Club, founded 1865, and the Montgomery Farmers Club, started 1872, sponsored the first convention in order to compare crop results and experiments in 1873.

Seal Sale Tops Budget Needs In Fairfax

Association Sets $1,575 As Cost of Year's War on Tuberculosis

A budget of $1,575 has been adopted by the Fairfax County Tuberculosis Association, it was announced yesterday. The largest item provides $600 for sanatorium care for patients.

Other items include milk for schools, $200; X-ray work, $300; health education, $25; relief, $25; pneumothorax, $50; dental work, $100; tonsilectomies, $50; expense of seal sale, $100; incidentals $100, and transportation, $25.

It is reported by the various community chairmen that the annual seal sale already amounts to $1,823.62, with a few scattered reports yet to be made. The sales increase was the largest since 1935.

House Votes To Continue Trade Pacts, 216 to 168

Hull Program Goes To Senate Without Amendment; Party Lines Hold Fast

By John B. Oakes.
Post Staff Writer

The Administration won a major victory last night when the House passed and sent to the Senate without amendments Secretary Hull's bill extending the reciprocal trade agreements act to June 12, 1943. The vote on final passage was 216 to 168.

An all-day battle raged in the House over a succession of some 23 amendments with which opponents vainly hammered away at the eight-line bill. Most of the amendments were designed to protect products of the farm in general or of special sections of the country; but, after one narrow squeak, they were all snowed under in an avalanche of Democratic "noes."

Severely restricting debate toward the end of the afternoon, the House disposed of the last 14 amendments in about 40 minutes, with speakers allowed as little as 30 seconds to defend their proposals.

Party Ranks Held

On the final tally, party ranks held firm, with only 19 Democrats voting against the bill and 5 Republicans shouting "aye."

Jubilant over the outcome, Secretary Hull said last night that "I am—and I am sure supporters of the program everywhere are—immensely gratified at the vote."

While another fight is expected in the Senate, opponents of extension of the trade agreements privately conceded last night that passage of the bill was virtually certain. It is now expected that the Administration will obtain at least 55 votes against an amendment making the agreements subject to Senate ratification, which is the principal rallying point of Senate opposition.

This amendment, proposed by Representative Coffee (Democrat), of Nebraska, was defeated in the House yesterday, 177 to 157, with very few Democrats voting in its favor.

Amendments Killed

Much greater strength was shown by the Disney amendment, which would have specifically protected the present level of excise taxes on oil, coal, lumber and copper. Offered by Representative Disney (Democrat), of Oklahoma, the proposal won about 40 Democratic votes and was turned down by the bare majority of 164 to 155.

A half-dozen Republicans at the last moment voted to kill the Disney amendment in order, it was said, to make the bill in its final form as unpalatable to as many Democrats as possible.

After all individual amendments had been defeated, Representative Treadway (Republican), of Massachusetts, moved to recommit the bill and amend it with an omnibus proposal including the major Republican demands. But this last effort was overwhelmed, 221 to 163.

In addition to refusing proposals that the trade agreements be submitted to Congressional or at least Senatorial approval, the House remained adamant toward a wide variety of amendments intended to exclude competitive foreign farm products as well as to protect existing excise taxes.

Wage Law Mentioned

In the last few hectic minutes of debate, one Republican—Representative Risk, of Rhode Island—urged to the amusement of his colleagues that no goods be admitted from trade agreement countries unless the American consul certifies that they were produced in accordance with the American Wage-Hours Act. The proposal was defeated, 122 to 98.

Drivers Avoid Plaza as Lights Snarl Traffic

By Howard F. Wentworth
Post Staff Writer

The new $50,000 "traffic control" set-up at Union Station Plaza got the cold shoulder from Washington motorists yesterday.

Only the bravest ventured into the plaza at rush-hour time—and most of them were taxi drivers who had to go there anyway. In the words of one motorist who earlier had battled his way through the intricate maze of confusing neon signals: "Never again!"

"They all must be using some other route to get home," commented Inspector William E. Holmes, police traffic supervisor. "This isn't the usual rush-hour traffic flow—in fact, I've never seen such a small number of cars using the plaza in all my years on the force."

Hyattsville Fire Cuts Two Stations Off Air an Hour

Two Washington radio stations were silenced last night for more than an hour by a fire which destroyed an old frame house in Hyattsville, Md., and burned out a telephone feeder cable serving the stations.

WRC and WOL were cut suddenly off the air at 10:15 p. m. when network programs coming over the cable were interrupted. After the trouble was traced, both stations filled in with recorded music until the line was repaired shortly after midnight.

Four occupants of the burned building in Hyattsville were jailed on a vagrancy charge four hours before the fire was discovered.

Kennedy Says Pep Meetings Downtown Merely Waste Time

District suffrage proponents were advised yesterday by Chairman Kennedy, of the House subcommittee on reorganization, to lobby for the franchise right on Capitol Hill.

"They're wasting time holding pep meetings downtown," he remarked. "It's up here where the educational work is needed."

Preparing to open hearings on reorganization next week, Kennedy said he does not agree with Representative Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, that suffrage should be separated from governmental reform. Dirksen had suggested that the subcommittee report out a suffrage bill without recommendation to the full committee.

Randolph Concurs

"I think the two questions should be decided together as they have the same objective," said Kennedy.

Chairman Randolph, of the full committee, expressed a similar view.

"It seems to me that suffrage is a vital part of any effort to improve the government of the District," he said.

Connecticut Avenue Parade Of Fashion to Aid Blood Bank

Easter fashions on parade will mean added funds for the blood and serum bank of Children's Hospital, according to plans announced yesterday by the Connecticut Avenue Association.

L. R. Colburn, president, revealed that the association had agreed to contribute the entire proceeds of its seventh Easter fashion promenade and exhibit to the blood bank fund which is sponsored by The Post, Radio Station WJSV, and the Washington section, American Contract Bridge League.

The fashion parade will be held Monday, March 11, in the ballroom of the Mayflower Hotel. Besides the three style shows at 2, 5 and 8 p. m., there will be a day-long exhibit of new clothes, jewelry and home furnishings in the hotel lobby.

The Connecticut Avenue Association, whose members include 125 firms along Connecticut between Pennsylvania and Florida avenues and nearby, has annually contributed the proceeds of its spring fashion show to civic projects.

These contributions have ranged up to $1,000 for a single year, said Colburn. He added that the blood bank drive is "the most commendable sort of campaign, and deserves the support of the entire community."

Mrs. Winslow B. Van Devanter, co-chairman of the ladies' committee of the blood bank campaign, hailed the announcement of Colburn and said "it's a very fine thing for the association to do."

Colburn announced appointment of Louis Massey, of the Artcraft shoe store, as general chairman of the fashion promenade committee. Other committee members include L. E. Rubel, of Underwood & Underwood; Max Tendler, attorney; Rich-

ABC Probe Told Police Asked Bribes

Bartenders' Union Secretary Complains; Georgetown Dealer To Support Story

A Georgetown liquor licensee yesterday agreed to appear before the Eberharter House subcommittee after Claude S. Martin, secretary of the District Bartenders Union, had charged before the committee that police attempted to extort a bribe.

Thomas J. Connors, who operates a restaurant at 1335 Wisconsin avenue, was invited by Chairman Eberharter to testify before the subcommittee next Wednesday in support of the charge.

Martin, who complained that police inspectors assigned to keep check on liquor licensees often used the tactics of Nazi storm troopers, cited the Connors restaurant as an example.

Two "rookie" policemen did not ask for money outright, Martin said, "but they made it plain that was what they wanted."

"He refused to give it to them," Martin added, "and a short time later his license was suspended. I asked him to come before this committee and testify, but he refused because he was afraid if he did he would lose his license altogether."

Suspended Seven Days

ABC board records showed that Connors' license was suspended for seven days in the summer of 1939 upon the complaint of two police inspectors, who are no longer assigned to liquor inspection duty. He was charged with selling drinks to an intoxicated person and permitting disorderly conduct.

Eberharter said that after the subcommittee gets more information on the case Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, and probably the policemen involved will be given an opportunity to deny the charge.

Martin cited other cases in which he charged that licensees were penalized either for violations they could not avoid or on questionable complaints.

The case of a lunch room proprietor is still pending before the ABC board, he said, in which an inspector charged that a liquor sale had been made to an intoxicated person.

Favors U. S. Dispensaries

"The customer referred to was a Government Printing Office employe out for lunch," said Martin. "He went back to work after the incident perfectly sober."

Martin recommended that experienced policemen be used for liquor inspection work and that they not be switched around so as not to be known to inspectors.

He indorsed Government dispensary operation of package stores and suggested the licensing of all bartenders and repeal of the ban on the sale of liquor to persons standing at a bar.

Turkey Declares 'Emergency,' Reds Reported Over Border; Allies Urged to Attack Russia

Hore-Belisha Asks Total War to Stop Advance in North, Shorten Conflict

By Robert E. Bunnelle,
Associated Press Staff Writer

London, Feb. 23.—Great Britain and France were exhorted boldly tonight by Leslie Hore-Belisha, ousted war minister, to make real war on Soviet Russia on land, air and sea—to save Finland and to shorten their own ordeal by fire.

If Russia wins the war in the north, he said, she will not be satisfied with her spoils in Finland—she will force advantages for Germany in Scandinavia, where both Britain and Germany are hungry for food, iron ore, timber and other supplies.

"Well-planned, adequate, decisive action" in Finland, Hore-Belisha argued, would prevent this—give new strength to the Allies' economic arm and "curtail the duration of the war."

The speech was delivered by Hore-Belisha to his parliamentary constituents at Devonport on a proud day for this island at war.

Spee Conquerors Hailed

The greatest crowd since the coronation jammed London's streets from Westminster to the Guild Hall to acclaim the men who won the Rio Plata victory over the Admiral Graf Spee.

Beneath the blare of bands and beat of drums, the war went grimly on.

British war planes were disclosed to have bombed German warships in Helgoland Bight Tuesday night and to have flown last night over Austria and Czecho-Slovakia.

German planes made their first moonlight raid on British coastal shipping, machine-gunning the 2,429-ton British Gothic and wounding her captain.

British Lose Plane

The British lost one plane over Helgoland; blamed it on the weather. The R. A. F. fighters believed they had shot down one German plane on the same flight. The Germans lost two planes in daylight attacks on the British coastline Thursday.

Hore-Belisha, whose resignation, on request, from the war cabinet on January 5, was a result of just such aggressive beliefs and expressions as he displayed today, told his Devonport audience:

"The risk of helping Finland may be great, but the risk of not helping her may be greater. . . .

"She is holding the pass of civilization."

By Raymond Daniell
Copyright by New York Times

London, Feb. 23.—For the first time since the outbreak of this paradeless war of little glamour, the people of London had a chance today to see and cheer victors of battle.

They made the most of it, as 760 officers and men from the cruisers Exeter and Ajax marched through the streets of this capital and listened to words of praise from First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill at historic Guild Hall, and finally lined up with the Horse Guards on parade, as King George VI decorated 72 of their number for outstanding gallantry in the action which spelled doom for the German commerce raider Admiral Graf Spee.

They returned to their ships tied up at Plymouth, but London will not soon forget their visit which came as a tonic to this rationed, blacked-out capital.

Its people behaved very much as the citizens of New York do when celebrities like the King and Queen, pay a visit to their city. Scraps of paper, like ticker tape, fluttered down upon the marching men in the city. Yet it was a typically British reception.

At the same time in Auckland, in the Antipodes, their brothers in arms from the Achilles, the third British naval ship in the River Plate action, were being similarly entertained.

A civic reception began in the morning when about 600 men detrained at Waterloo Station and were greeted by bands from the two ships, which preceded them here yesterday. The bands, wearing uniforms of blue and gold with white pith helmets, played "Hearts of Oak" as the column of blue-uniformed sailors and khaki-clad ma-

The Undersecretary was given a thorough example of British blockade methods and saw the Rex put through the Gibraltar contraband control station in 3 hours and 40 minutes in contrast to periods ranging up to more than two weeks for American ships forced into some Allied contraband control ports.

The Rex reached Gibraltar at 2:50 p. m. and was allowed to depart at 6:30.

Fight Toward Viipuri In Drive Marking Red Army Birthday

By Thomas L. Stokes,
Associated Press Staff Writer

Helsinki, Feb. 23.—The Russian army thrust forward at several points along a jagged 30-mile front in an intensified drive through the western half of the Mannerheim Line today, losing nearly 3,000 killed in a single day's combat.

The Russian penetration at one point reached to within 10 or 12 miles of Viipuri—to the vicinity of Naykki Lake, roughly 4 miles northwest of the Kamara Railway station, where fighting began Thursday, according to today's communique.

If this meant that the Soviet advance was part of a major offensive to celebrate today's twenty-second anniversary of the forming of the Red army, it was a costly one.

Ominous Silence

Belgrade, Feb. 23.—The supreme defense council of the Turkish Republic, presided over by Marshal Fevzi Chakmak, commander in chief of the armed forces, has declared a state of emergency throughout the country. After meeting in Ankara for nearly a week the council has taken this decision under the emergency law voted a few weeks ago in the Kamutay.

The law specified three circumstances in which a state of emergency might be declared—first, partial or general mobilization; second, war between Turkey and another power; third, war between two third powers—powers which may constitute a threat to Turkish interests.

All telephone communication between Turkey and the outside world was cut off yesterday. Consequently it is not known here which of the conditions has been invoked. However, it is believed in most authoritative quarters that the reports a few days ago of a serious Russo-Turkish frontier incident were true though denied in Moscow.

Russian Desertions Reported

It was reported Russian troops crossed the Caucasus frontier into Turkey and declined to withdraw. It was authoritatively reported here late this evening that the Russian troops were still on Turkish territory, though it is not known whether there has been any clash.

It appears a Russian battalion crossed the frontier and was disarmed by the Turks. The Turks then, it is reported, invited the Soviet authorities to send a detachment to recover the arms but at the same time interned the men who seemed to have been deserters. The Russians thereupon, according to one account, sent a cavalry detachment to pick up the equipment. However, once over the frontier, this second detachment declined to return to Russia.

Mysterious Germans on Move

The supreme defense council also has decided on the formation of a council to coordinate emergency measures. It is to be presided over by the Prime Minister and will include the ministries of defense, finance, commerce, economics and communications. The Kamutay, it is reported, will be summoned to ratify these measures.

An Istanbul report received in Bucharest today states that Soviet Russia has recalled all Russian experts from Turkey.

Unusually large numbers of German citizens, traveling to Turkey at a time when German experts are still being expelled, describe themselves as merchants. Genuine German businessmen, however, are steadily departing from Turkey.

Likewise considerable numbers of Germans are traveling through the Balkans en route to Iran and Arabia. It is believed all these men are German officers.

It is pointed out, however, in this connection, that the Deutsche Levant Line which now has established headquarters in Odessa has prepared to organize a steamship service this spring to bring Persian

Penniless, She Says, in Suit to Force Prince David Mdivani to Contribute To Support of Son; Hysterical in Court

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, Feb. 23.—Mae Murray, blonde star of the silent screen, sobbingly told a Superior Court judge today she was worth $3,000,000 in 1926, but that ten years later she sat on a bench in New York's Central Park for three days, penniless.

She was so tearful the judge called a recess in the trial of her suit against Prince David, of the Georgian Mdivanis for $1,000 monthly to establish a home for their son, Koran David, 13.

"In September, 1936, I had no funds," she testified brokenly. "I had no place to live at the moment. I had to leave my hotel.

"I had to leave all my belongings and I was frightened. I just packed a little hat box with the things I needed for cleanliness and spent three days in Central Park."

"Without any funds?" interposed her attorney, Milan Medigovich.

Roosevelt Fishes at Cocos, Meets Baltimore Argonauts

By the Associated Press

Cocos Island, Feb. 23.—President Roosevelt fished today in the waters off this remote Pacific island famed for centuries as the reputed burial place of millions in treasure.

The Cruiser Tuscaloosa and her attendant destroyers, the Lang and Jouett, anchored in picturesque Chatham Bay, from which rise tropically verdured mountains in which may be hidden loot which Mr. Roosevelt said was estimated at from $20,000,000 to $40,000,000.

Also anchored in the bay was the 50-foot schooner Fiddlers Green, which brought three adventurers—Dr. Edmund Kelly, his brother, F. H. Kelly, and their nephew, Howard A. Kelly, from Baltimore on a 6,800-mile trip which started last July.

Invited aboard the Tuscaloosa, the Kellys talked to the President and told of meeting another treasure-hunting party headed by a Californian named Davenport, who reported finding treasure signs and sailed for Panama for digging equipment. The island is uninhabited.

An ardent sailor himself, the President expressed interest in the wanderings of the Kellys, amateur navigators who have visited Trinidad, British Guiana, Panama and Cocos en route to the Galapagos.

The Kellys originally planned a three-year, round-the-world cruise, but now plan to return to Baltimore next summer because of hostilities in Europe.

The Tuscaloosa had orders to up anchor at noon, taking Mr. Roosevelt for a view of additional places which might eventually prove valuable in Panama Canal defense plans.

House Votes NLRB Inquiry $50,000 More

Committee Hears Criticism of 'Run-Off' Election Procedure

By Frank McNaughton,
United Press Staff Writer.

The House yesterday voted the Smith Committee an additional $50,000 to continue its investigation of the ational Labor Relations Board while the committee heard testimony assailing the board's much-critized "run-off" election practice.

The committee also heard NLRB Chairman Madden deny that the board had approached the Reconstruction Finance Corporation—as RFC Chairman Emil Schram had testified—relative to banning RFC loans to Wagner Act violators. On the contrary, said Madden, first overtures toward the ban came from the RFC.

Schram disputed Madden's claim with the brief statement that he was under oath when he testified "and I did not lie."

The money appropriated supplemented an original $50,000 appropriation when the inquiry was first ordered last year.

A. F. of L. Members Testify

Testimony concerning run-off elections came from four members of the American Federation of Labor's Electrical Workers Union, and concerned a representation dispute between the union and the C. I. O.'s Utility Workers Organizing Committee over bargaining agency designation for the 3,200 employes of the Consumers Power Co. of Michigan.

When the Labor Board held an election, the C. I. O. got 1,162 votes, the A. F. of L. 1,074 votes, and 506 votes were cast for no union. Since neither union had a clear majority, the board ordered a run-off election in which the ballots carried only two spaces to choose from—one for the C. I. O., since it had the largest number, and one for no union. The A. F. of L. won an injunction in lower courts banning the election, but the Supreme Court recently set it aside and upheld the board's power to order the new balloting.

Controversy over the run-off election system—employed by the board when neither of two contending unions won a clear majority in the first balloting—has split the board itself, with the recently appointed member, William M. Leiserson, arguing that the two blanks in run-off ballots should be for the two unions polling the highest number of votes in the original election.

Gerald L. Gill, Jackson, Mich., head of the A. F. of L. unit involved in the Consumers Power controversy, criticized the board for refusing to put the A. F. of L.'s name on the run-off ballots.

He defended the Wagner Act, however, and said he would "hate to see any change in it." He said that if the A. F. of L.-C. I. O. fight should result in amendment of the act, "it's tough on labor."

Hull Trade Pacts Upheld by House

existing tariffs, to prevent importation of goods at prices below American production costs, or to prohibit importation of competitive farm products as long as domestic prices are below parity were offered, in one form or another, by Representatives Reed, of New York; Woodruff, of Michigan; Carlson, of Kansas; Mundt, of South Dakota; Schafer, of Wiscinson; Burdick, of North Dakota, and Gilchrist, of Iowa (Republicans), and Massingale, of Oklahoma, and Peterson, of Florida (Democrats).

In presenting his amendment, Burdick pointed out that he had been waiting all day to speak, now was granted only 2½ minutes, and therefore desired to take this opportunity—as he might not have another—to wish his colleagues "a merry Christmas and a happy New Year." He took his seat amid gales of laughter, but his amendment, like all the rest, went down to defeat.

Crowther Blocked

Prior to Coffee's unsuccessful plea for senatorial ratification of all trade agreements, Representative Crowther (Republican), of New York, asked that this veto power be granted to both houses of Congress.

He asserted that he was "not afraid of log-rolling," but Representative Dingell (Democrat), of Michigan, declared that the amendment would mean the "death" of trade agreements. Crowther's move was blocked, 161 to 144.

Coffee's attempt to grant the Senate control over the agreements was characterized by Representative McCormack (Democrat), of Massachusetts, as a "kiss of death." To jocular applause of the Republicans, McCormack declared that the President already had power to negotiate trade treaties with advice and consent of the Senate.

An effort by Representative Crowther to permit domestic producers to litigate matters arising out of the trade agreements was turned down.

Exemptions Asked

Then began the parade of amendments that would have directly limited the applicability of new agreements. At first, an appreciable amount of debate was allowed. But as the afternoon wore on, Democrats imposed a strict "gag;" and Representative Woodrum (Democrat), of Virginia, in the chair, was kept busy announcing the steady progress of the steam-roller with the phrase: "The amendment is defeated."

Representative Knutson (Republican), of Minnesota, urged public hearings after negotiation of trade agreements; Representative Mundt asked special favor for manganese ore, while Representative Van Zandt (Republican), of Pennsylvania, held out for coal and Representative Harrington (Democrat), of Iowa, for animal fats and vegetable oils; Representative Carlson urged that the agreements be approved in writing by the Secretaries of State, Commerce and Agriculture; Representatives Scrugham, of Nevada, and White, of Idaho (Democrats), asked protection for industries damaged by trade agreements; Representative Andresen (Republican), of Minnesota, wanted to guard against depreciated foreign currency; Representative Mott (Republican), of Oregon, urged that country of origin be marked on foreign importations; while Representative Gearhart (Republican), of California, proposed an entirely new bill.

Byrd Ship Sets Record in Going Farthest South

The Navy announced yesterday that the U. S. S. Bear, flagship of the U. S. Antarctic Service established a new American record February 21, penetrating farther toward the South Pole than any other vessel.

In reaching a point, 37 miles south of the seventieth parallel, the Bear narrowly averted being frozen fast in the Antartic ice-pack, a message from Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, expedition leader, revealed.

After moving to a more ice-free position, the vessel hove to, to await favorable flying condition. A plane carried by the ship will attempt to survey unknown regions south of Belling-Shausen Sea.

Hanes Refuses To Be Trustee In Utility Case

Wall Street Journal Reports His Advice To Judge Leibell

New York, Feb. 23 (AP).—The Wall Street Journal says John W. Hanes, former Undersecretary of the Treasury, has advised Federal Judge Vincent L. Leibell that he will not accept appointment as a trustee of Associated Gas & Electric Co.

Hanes had been mentioned frequently as a possible appointee to such a post. The Securities & Exchange Commission had previously advised the judge it would not undertake the task.

The possibility that Hanes might be named so aroused Senator Norris (Independent), of Nebraska, that he twice condemned such an appointment.

Reports circulated in Washington that Dean Acheson, former Undersecretary of the Treasury, likely would be one of four trustees.

Some persons said that the plan is to have one trustee for Associated Gas & Electric Co., which is the top unit in the system, and three trustees for Associated Gas & Electric Corporation, which is the underlying unit and far more important in the operation of the vast system.

Others mentioned for the trustee jobs include Abe Fortas, general counsel for the Bituminous Coal Commission; James A. Beha, a New York lawyer who was a New York State insurance commissioner under former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, and John E. Mack, New York lawyer.

$11,000,000 Fees Reported

By the Associated Press

The Federal Power Commission heard yesterday that 18 service companies owned or controlled by Howard C. Hopson, utility magnate, and members of his family, collected $11,000,000 in service charges from the Associated Gas & Electric utility system from 1934 through 1938.

Government accountants estimated that of this amount the Hopson family received $4,000,000.

The testimony was by Jeremiah J. Enright and Victor C. Gouch, accountants, who prepared reports for the commission's investigation of fees made by the Hopson service companies to Associated Gas subsidiaries in Pennsylvania.

Enright identified a chart which he said showed that the Hopson family owned or controlled one-half of the huge Associated Gas system and all of the 18 service companies which served the subsidiary utility corporations.

With the aid of the two accountants, Lambert McAllister, commission counsel put into the record the 800-page report showing the intricate financial operations of the Hopson service companies.

8 Drys Meet, Pick Delegates And Reminisce

5 Named to Attend National Convention; Great Years Recalled

With wistful reminiscences about the "old, grand conventions the National Prohibition Party used to hold," eight representatives of local prohibitionists met at the New Ebbitt Hotel at 5 p. m. yesterday and named five delegates to the 1940 national convention, to be held in Chicago May 8, 9 and 10.

The delegates are George C. Clarke, owner and manager of the Ebbitt, who donated use of the meeting room; Thomas E. Boorde, J. Raymond Schmidt, Dale S. Crowley and William V. Mahoney.

To Name Candidates

The convention empowered the delegates to serve as an executive committee and appoint alternates should any delegates be unable to attend the Chicago conclave, where candidates for President and Vice President of the United States will be nominated.

Boorde and Schmidt were unanimously reelected to serve on the Prohibitionist Party National Committee, representing the District.

Boorde, in a brief address, said that he could detect a rising sentiment against the prevailing systems of handling whisky, and that prospects for the party seemed better this year than in recent years. He said that the youth dinner and conference, on the opening night, held enough inspiration to justify the trip to Chicago by any delegate.

"Great Conventions" Recalled

A period of reminiscence on "the great conventions of 1904 and 1912" followed.

Intensive campaigns aimed at correcting conditions held "inimical to the American home" will be planned Tuesday and Wednesday in Baltimore at a regional conference of local and State W. C. T. U. officers from the District, Maryland and Delaware. Mrs. Ida W. Ramsey, 1332 Jonquil street northwest, District W. C. T. U. president, will lead a local delegation there.

G.O.P. Publicity Aide Claims 50-50 Chance

The Republican Party has "at least a 50-50 chance" of winning in November, Wells Church, assistant publicity director of the G. O. P., yesterday told a luncheon meeting of the Washington Round Table at the National Press Club.

"The swing has started our way," Church said, "and our job at headquarters here is to make sure it doesn't die out."

Drivers 'Boycott' New Plaza Lights

rector, was on hand to watch his "brain child" get another workout. When the rush-hour peak passed and less than half the normal traffic had appeared, he was asked if he thought motorists were purposely avoiding his new scheme.

He agreed traffic was a "little light" for the time of day, adding:

"It takes time to get used to anything."

Amid scenes of utter chaos—which all but threatened to break into riot proportions—a system of 28 vehicle and pedestrian lights was turned on for the first time Wednesday. Public reaction was adverse, to say the least. One of the worst traffic jams in history resulted and planners admitted a "few changes" would be necessary.

But yesterday, only one minor change had been made. "Blinders" have been added to a signal on the inner circle of the plaza so drivers turning left from Louisiana avenue can travel more than 20 yards without stopping. Before the shields, which now hide the light from turning cars, were installed, however, motorists hardly got started before they were forced to halt again.

Six policemen—an inspector, a lieutenant, a sergeant and three privates — were necessary to keep things moving yesterday, in spite of the decline in traffic. Inspector Holmes said men would be detailed to the plaza until the middle of next week.

To make traffic flow a little smoother during peak hours, Van Duzer said parking would be prohibited for 300 feet on the plaza approach from Louisiana avenue. But he "didn't know" whether another light would be added at the intersection of E street where traffic now jams and snarls—except when a policeman holds things in check.

LaGuardia Says 'Phooey' at G.O.P. Hopefuls; Advises Illinois to Go for Roosevelt

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 23.—The voluble Mayor of New York, Fiorello H. LaGuardia, has reached the conclusion, he said today, that the present crop of Republican Presidential hopefuls is "a poor one indeed," and added: "phooey."

LaGUARDIA

The mayor's views were expressed in connection with his announcement that he was filing a declination in the April 9 Illinois preferential primaries, in which his name was entered without his knowledge as a candidate for the Republican nomination.

He was withdrawing, he explained, because he did not want "to divide the intelligent, progressive vote" in that State and suggested Illinois voters cast their ballots for President Roosevelt.

Asked whether his name might be placed before the voters in primaries in other States, the Mayor said he would cross those bridges when he reached them. He was asked, too, whether he would consider the Vice Presidential nomination on a Democratic ticket headed by Cordell Hull, Secretary of State.

"That," he said with a smile, "is not a question about the primary."

Chamber of Commerce officials estimate the convention will mean 125,000 visitors and $12,000,000 to Philadelphia.

Ralph E. Williams, member of the Republican National Committee from Oregon since 1912 and chairman of the committee on convention arrangements, visited Convention Hall and pronounced it "superior to any site I have ever seen."

A Republican subcommittee on housing met with hotel men to discuss allocation of room space. Members included former Senator Daniel O. Hastings, of Delaware; Mrs. Paul Fitzsimmons, of Providence, R. I., and Kenneth F. Simpson, New York.

Gannett Sees Dictator Peril In 3d Term

Declares Economic Chaos Would Bring Death to Liberty

By the United Press

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 23.—Frank Gannett, newspaper publisher and aspirant for the Republican Presidential nomination, tonight charged that continuation of the New Deal Administration would result in a totalitarian government in the United States.

In a speech prepared for delivery in Williams Park here, he said: "Four more years of present Administration policies will bring us ruin and imperil our form of Government.

"The dictators in Europe rose to power because of unbearable economic conditions. A continuation of present conditions will mean further efforts to regulate and control everything and everybody from Washington until we, too, shall have a totalitarian state displacing our democracy."

Says Recovery Lags

Gannett said this Nation had "lagged far behind" in recovery and was "still in the depression which has been even more costly to our people than the World War."

"Our Government assumed that we could spend ourselves into prosperity—something as impossible as it is for the drunkard to drink himself sober," Gannett added.

He proposed:

"We must have rigid economy; we must check reckless, wasteful spending; we must begin policies that will, as soon as possible bring our budget into balance.

"We must stop this constant hampering interference with the business . . .

"We must restore friendly relations betwen labor and capital and bring an end to strikes and strife.

Fears Radio Censorship

"We must bring prosperity again to the farms by restoring the price level to something like normal.

"Instead of increasing taxes we can reduce taxes . . ."

Gannett said the President could take "complete control of radio" through the emergency powers Mr. Roosevelt gained last fall.

$25,000 Bail On 'Wild-Eyed' Bandit Suspect

Man Erroneously Identified 'Wild-Eyed' Burglar Is Released

David H. Martin, colored, 25, so-called "beady-eyed" bandist, was at the District Jail last night, committed in default of $25,000 bail set by Police Judge Casey at a preliminary arraignment yesterday.

His commitment brought about the release of Luther Miller, colored, 29, indicted as the bandit on the identification of Mrs. Lucille H. Kelly, wife of a naval commander, who was robbed, December 18, in her apartment, 2301 Connecticut avenue northwest.

Mrs. Kelly pointed out Miller to police on Connecticut avenue several days after the robbery. She later picked him from a line-up and he was indicted.

Yesterday Assistant District Attorney Allen J. Krause nolle prossed the indictment against Miller and said the prosecutor's office would speed proceedings against Martin.

Martin was implicated in the Kelly robbery by his own admission. He reenacted the crime at the Kelly apartment and it was then, according to police, that Mrs. Kelly realized her error.

Charged with robbing more than a score of apartment house residents during the past three months, Martin was arraigned on only one count. The other cases will be presented directly to the grand jury, court officials stated.

Jean J. Maclay, of Arlington, Va., who was robbed of $10 in the Roosevelt Hotel December 4, was the compainant at yesterday's hearing. Martin pleaded innocent and was held to the grand jury.

Twenty-two women, including Mrs. Margaret Dorsey, sister of Representative Joseph Mansfield (Democrat), of Texas, and Mrs. Robert Brennan, wife of the Minister of Ireland, appeared at Police Court but were not called to testify.

Slept in Park, Mae Murray Says

spent three days in Central Park? You mean you sat on a bench in Central Park?"

"I sat on a bench with my little hat box," the one-time actress answered.

Almost hysterical, she was calmed by friends and continued

"I had walked out of my marriage a bankrupt—that is a matter of record. But I was building up a new fortune. I had a $120,000 contract with an English picture company, but I was forced to give it up because my boy became so desperately ill and before long my money was gone.

"From then on, it became a fight for my health, a night so that no one would know I hadn't any money and a fight for 'face,' for it seems not to be attractive to be without money."

She testified she once sold a $5,000 chinchilla jacket for $150 to obtain funds for an operation for her son. She said she "begged and pleaded" with Mdivani to assist her and visit the boy, but without success.

She charged that the prince is living in luxury, but that a $5,000 payment when they were divorced in 1933 and $508 since were his only contributions to the boy's support.

Miss Murray told the judge she had no bank account, made not a cent during the past year, had no property—"in fact, nothing at all."

To Ask Son's Preference

Judge Dockweiler conferred with counsel for the former actress and for Mdivani, then said he would send written interrogatories to a New York judge who would ask the son with which parent he preferred to live.

Miss Murray recently was denied her demand in New York for a writ of habeas corpus to have her son returned to her. The court ruled she was not in a position to provide the boy a satisfactory home.

The boy now is in custody of Miss Bessie Cunning, sister of Dr. Daniel Cunning, a brain and ear specialist who performed a mastoid operation upon him.

Mdivani was in court at the afternoon session today but did not testify. During a recess Miss Murray complained to Judge Dockweiler that she was annoyed by his "sneers and face-making."

Welles Sees U. S. Mail Seized

as disclosed today, calls for a meeting first with Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop. The conference with the Fuehrer will follow immediately.

United States Charge d'Affaires Alexander Kirk conferred for 40 minutes today with Baron Ernst von Weizsaecker, German undersecretary of state, apparently to arrange details of Welles' visit.

Both Von Ribbentrop and Von Weizsaecker have kept in close contact with Dr. Hans H. Dieckhoff, who still holds the title of German Ambassador to the United States despite his absence from Washington since late in 1938.

Dieckhoff was ordered home November 18, 1938, to explain American views on the Nazi anti-Jewish campaign, two days after Hugh R. Wilson, American Ambassador to Berlin, was summoned to Washington "to report."

Welles is understood to have been represented favorably to official Berlin by Dieckhoff. Nazi authorities appear disposed to cooperate in giving him information he desires.

There was talk of at least one large social function in Welles' honor. Complete details of the visit will be held in abeyance, the American Embassy said, until Welles communicates with Kirk from Rome.

Businessman Says Wanderlust Drove Him to African Trip

J. O. Stewart, Who Lectured Here, Tells of Loading Family Aboard Ship And Starting Capetown-to-Cairo Tour

The only difference between J. O. Stewart and tens of thousands of other businessmen is that Stewart has done something about those romantic reveries, his wanderlust urgings.

In July, 1938, he hauled his car down to a dock, and put it aboard ship for Capetown, Africa, along with his wife and brunette daughter, "Pete" Stewart. Brooklyn, their home town, passed across a horizon. In Capetown, on July 13, he unloaded the car and pointed the bumper straight up the big continent, toward Cairo.

Stewart, no professional junketeer or lecturer, but an average citizen with pince nez glasses and a business to which he could return, is still excited about it. It was the scenery that makes his eyes flash and then get reminiscent, and he paused to explain that it was not adventurous excursioning but a trip for pure delight. Last night he lectured here for the National Geographic Society.

He had seen at one lake an estimated 1,000,000 flamingoes in one covey; he had seen the mountains of the moon; he had lived in a house in a tree one night and watched the animals, seemingly unwatched and consequently not self-conscious, frequenting a salt lick; he had chased a leopard, running before the car lights, on a road one velvety African night.

Miss Stewart said they did not see a snake all the way. And Stewar said that, by and large, there was peace, a few anxieties—as when lions trooped through a camp at night—but usually the world was far away. In all, they went some 15,000 miles, on dirt roads, "all of it passable, though parts extremely trying."

About the chances of other daydreamers doing the same thing: Stewart would not say what it cost him, but only that expenses on trips always were personal things that could run high or little.

Skeleton Identified As Washingtonian Gone Since June

A weatherbeaten skeleton found in a Fairfax County swamp Thursday by a woods foreman was identified yesterday as that of N. Webster Chappell, of 4131 Yuma street northwest, missing since June 21.

Identification was made by Chappell's nephew, W. F. Rowe, a contractor, of 4841 Wisconsin avenue northwest, who read a newspaper account of the discovery. Rowe took to the Fairfax coroner's office the cylinder from a lock at his uncle's home and operated it with a key found near the skeleton. Dr. C. A. Ransom, coroner, said the skeleton would be turned over to Rowe today.

Chappell was reported missing June 21 by his wife, Mrs. M. Ella Chappell. Two daughters, the Misses Lillian and Lorena Chappell, also survive.

Mrs. Schoenfeld Asks Divorce From D. C. Brain Surgeon

Says He Struck Her And Spent His Time With Other Woman

Mrs. Martha Schoenfeld, 42, 1908 Florida avenue northwest, sued in the District Court yesterday for separate maintenance from Dr. Herbert Schoenfeld, brain surgeon, who is the brother of H. F. Arthur Schoenfeld, American Minister to Finland.

Mrs. Schoenfeld's complaint charged that beginning November 15, 1937, her husband was critical and abusive and "continually and repeatedly" associated with another woman, whose name was not given. The complaint said this embarrassed Mrs. Schoenfeld greatly among her friends.

The complaint said that Dr. Schoenfeld moved from the family home to 1150 Connecticut avenue June 12, 1939, but returned and knocked his wife unconscious July 13, 1939.

Dr. Schoenfeld has said he would file suit for an absolute divorce in Reno, Nev., the complaint said.

Mrs. Schoenfeld asked for a decree of limited divorce, for temporary and permanent alimony and for an injunction forbidding her husband to sue for divorce in any other jurisdiction.

The Schoenfelds married in New York, October 18, 1919, and have lived here since. They have a 19-year-old daughter, Martha Wills Schoenfeld, who is a college student.

Richard Norris, of the Hamilton National Bank, was named chairman of the financial committee. Other members are Luther Schreiner, of the Lincoln National Bank; and Julius Lully, of Harvey's Restaurant.

Rubel Manages Publicity

L. E. Rubel will serve as chairman of publicity. L. E. Massey, Lew S. Birns, and James Styles, are members of the booth committee.

Meanwhile 9-year-old Mary Jane Kiatta announced gaily that because she had missed her birthday party, she had $7 to contribute for the Children's Hospital Blood Bank. She told about the money for the blood bank after a happy afternoon praty she gave for 27 of her schoolmates and other friends at her home, 3039 Macomb street northwest.

The idea for the blood bank benefit party was all her own. The story of her idea runs back to October. Mary Jane's birthday was October 19, but because her mother was not feeling well at the time, she gave up having a party for her friends.

Children Bring Donations

The party was still coming to her, when she read about the blood bank campaign, and she suggested to her mother that her party be a benefit for the blood bank.

The children began arriving for the party in the early afternoon, and as they came in they dropped their gifts for the blood bank into a valentine box. Through the afternoon they played games, danced. After the refreshments, which included ice cream, cake, candy and a collection of grab bags, the children learned from Mrs. Kiatta that their gifts added up to $6.63. A friend of Mrs. Kiatta gave the extra amount to bring the total to $7.

Legion Post Gives $100

Other contributions to the blood bank fund came from the Bureau of Engraving and Printing Post of the American Legion and the Ladies Auxiliary of the District Hebrew Association.

The Legion post contributed a check for $100. Mrs. Morris Rodman, of 1116 Buchanan street northwest, president of the Hebrew Association Auxiliary, sent a check for $5.50 contributed at a meeting of the members.

James E. Walker Post, No. 26, of the American Legion and its auxiliary, will hold a blood bank card party at 8 p. m., March 1, in the Y. M. C. A., 1816 Twelfth street northwest. Commander Robert W. Fearing said that the post's committee for the party includes Dr. William F. Nelson, chairman; Mrs. Emma Jackson, vice chairman; Leon Anderson, Wallace P. Gant, Mrs. Richard Banks, Mrs. Laura Sutherland, Mrs. Anna Sampson, Mrs. Charles Ward, Mrs. Harriet Epps and Mrs. Bertha Robinson.

Gov. Dickinson Acts to Oust Prosecutor

Detroit Attorney, Accused of Graft, Answers, 'Politics'

By the Associated Press

Detroit, Feb. 23.—Ouster proceedings against Duncan C. McCrea, Wayne County (Detroit) prosecuting attorney, were ordered by Gov. Luren D. Dickinson today on charges by Circuit Judge Homer Ferguson that the prosecutor had exacted thousands of dollars monthly from operators of vice dens, racing handbooks and slot machines.

The removal petition was presented to the Governor shortly after McCrea and others of a group charged with protecting the operation of a baseball lottery here, had stood mute upon arraignment in Circuit Court.

As McCrea, missing since Wednesday, appeared for arraignment, he smiled and announced he would be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator in next September's primary election.

Glad of Publicity

He referred to his indictment by a grand jury that has been investigating gambling in Wayne County as "dirty, rotten politics," and added: "The publicity will help my campaign for Senator."

Pleas of not guilty were entered for McCrea; Fred W. Frahm, recently ousted as superintendent of Detroit police; Harry Colburn, chief investigator for McCrea, and Detective James Bennett, when they appeared in court before Judge Ferguson. They were released on $1,000 bonds each with hearings set for March 2.

The four, with 11 others were named in indictments handed down Wednesday night by Judge Ferguson, acting as a one-man grand jury, charging the protection of a baseball lottery that did a business of more than $1,000,000 a year in Detroit. In addition four other men were named in the indictment as "coconspirators," but not defendants and ordered held as material witnesses.

Shakedown Charged

After today's arraignments, Judge Ferguson hastened to Lansing and presented his petition for McCrea's ouster.

In the petition he charged that McCrea, through an agent, had collected from $100 to $300 monthly from vice resorts; from $10 a month upward from slot machine operators; that more than 300 racing handbooks had operated in Wayne County with McCrea's "full knowledge and consent," and that a "numbers game" running into more than $1,000,000 monthly had been "enabled to operate by said Duncan C. McCrea."

Under Michigan law a public official against whom ouster proceedings are ordered must be given eight days' notice and a public hearing before a court designated by the Governor.

Turks Declare 'Emergency'

goods from Trebizond and Batum to the Danube.

In an article on the economic possibilities of the Danube a few days ago the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung mentions the development of trade between the Reich and Iran in an important aim of Germany's Danube policy. At the Budapest shipping conference last week the Germans revealed, it is learned, that their trade with Iran was going to be sufficiently important this season to make it worthwhile for the Deutsche Levant Line and the Shultz Orient Line to make special arrangements to bring Iranian goods to the iron gates for transhipment on Danube barges.

Nazi Propaganda Suspected

A report of a Russian fleet maneuver in the Black Sea, emphasized by the German official news agency, coincided, it is noticed, with the Turkish developments. These facts are coupled with Soviet radio attacks on Turkey which are now a nightly occurrence.

Military circles in the Balkans attributed tales of vast Soviet military reinforcements in the Caucasus region to the Nazis' propagandist wish to create an atmosphere of uncertainty and possibly prompt the thought of Russian ambitions in the direction of the Persian Gulf. Today's Hrvatski Dnevnik prominently publishes reports, ostensibly from Moscow, of Russian preparations and says that the Soviet military forces have been vastly increased in Armenia, the Azerbaijan Caucasus, the Turkmenistan and the near Afghan frontier. It adds that great numbers of modern tanks and airplanes were sent into these regions to defend them from an Allied "aggression." In these areas, it is added, the 1920 and 1921 classes have been called up, and four more classes will be mobilized soon.

Finally, strong Ogpu detachments were said to be en route. Internal evidence suggests that whether or not the reports be true, they may well be of German origin. They are known to be assembled not in Moscow but in Budapest which is a fertile source of Nazi propaganda.

Ties to Allies Stressed

A warning of the action Turkey has taken was foreseen last Monday when the Turkish government announced that it had decided to apply the national defense law, which gives it virtual dictatorial powers. At the same time the nation's newspapers warned the people that, as nonbelligerent allies of Britain and France, they must prepare for a "supreme effort" this spring.

Turkey has been reported rushing preparations for war with the aid of money, supplies and advice from the Allied powers.

On the eve of the Balkan Entente conference at Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Turkey's foreign prime minister Saracoglu, declared that his country could not be considered neutral, but only out of the actual warfare.

In the past few weeks Turkey ordered German technical experts to leave the country. Earlier Russian nationals left Turkey in great numbers.

Mary Hawes Plans London Marriage To English Engineer

Dr. and Mrs. Charles Henry Hawes, of Alexandria, Va., are expecting word today that their daughter, Mary, has been married in London to an English engineer.

Mrs. Hawes received a letter from her daughter Wednesday saying the marriage would take place either today or on March 14, "depending on whether they had been able to find a house this week."

Miss Hawes, who has contributed special correspondence to The Washington Post during extensive travels in Europe, met her fiance, Colin Allsebrook, in Prague in September, 1938. Allsebrook is a hydrostatic engineer and lives in Reading. His father is a first cousin of Sir John Simons, chancellor of the exchequer.

"He seems to be very much interested in politics, too," Mrs. Hawes said yesterday. Miss Hawes' father, a former Dartmouth professor now retired, was born in England.

"So, you see we think it's very nice that our daughter should be marrying an Englishman," said Mrs. Hawes, admitting no anxiety because of the war.

Miss Hawes is a graduate of Radcliffe College and has studied at the Sorbonne, in Paris, and the University of Geneva. She spent last summer and fall in this country, sailing for Europe January 8. Her ship, the Excambion, was delayed a week at Gibraltar by blockade control inspection. Her brother, Alexander Hawes, is assistant general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board.

be approved by a majority of the House District Committee although he admitted that there is some doubt as to the stand that the reorganization subcommittee may take.

Would Limit Hearings

The chairman said he favors Dirksen's idea of limiting the hearings to spokesmen for various groups so as to expedite consideration of the legislation.

"We've heard most of the arguments," he said, "and there is little use of covering the same ground we have been over in past years. One witness for each group of similar organizations should be enough."

The subcommittee will hold an executive session Tuesday morning to make plans for the hearings, which Kennedy hopes to begin on Thursday or Friday.

Movie Cowboy Killed in Duel

Hollywood, Feb. 23 (AP).—Two movie cowboys, in full Wild West regalia, shot it out in a corner drugstore today. One was killed, the other fled.

Police identified the dead man as Johnnie Tyke.

The shooting occurred a few steps from Columbia Studio. Both were waiting between scenes of a picture in which they were extras.

Witnesses said the men quarreled, suddenly drew guns and blazed away. Tyke fell. He was dead when an ambulance reached a hospital.

Edison and Advisers Split On Civilian Navy Control

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

Secretary Edison and some of his chief advisers were revealed last night to be at odds over the question of military vs. civilian control of the Navy in connection with the proposed reorganization of the Navy Department.

The House Naval Affairs Committee made public a report from the general board, chief policy-drafting agency of the Navy, which recommended the concentration of considerable additional power in the hands of the chief of naval operations, the ranking admiral of the service.

While urging continuation of long-standing policy of appointing civilians as Secretary and Assistant Secretary of the Navy, the report dwelt at length on the importance of "professional" guidance in matters apart from general policy and Congressional relations. All other matters, it was proposed, should be under the direction of "a single naval professional agency."

Edison Objects

Edison, in a recent letter to the same committee, raised "serious" objection to proposals made to concentrate power in the hands of the chief of naval operations, without identifying the source of the proposals. Adoption of such a plan, he declared, "means that the actual control of the Navy will rest with the military and not with the civilian heads."

"This objection is serious enough to warrant disapproval without going into other considerations," he added.

A special House Naval Subcommittee will take up the question of Navy Department reorganization Monday. Secretary Edison will be the first witness, followed by various bureau chiefs, many of whom favor the General Board proposal.

Secretary Edison has proposed creation of a new "chief of shore operations" who would take over some of the functions of the present chief of naval operations. The former would be either a civilian or a naval officer, under Edison's plan. The various bureaus would continue as at present except for consolidation of the Bureau of Construction and Repair and the Bureau of Engineering, which now are virtually merged by administrative action.

Admirals Oppose Plan

The General Board report also recommended merger of the latter two agencies, but was at variance on the other proposal of the Secretary. The group of rear admirals making up the board, in discussing a somewhat similar plan to that of Edison's, declared there was "no place in the organization of the Navy Department" for such an official as proposed.

THE new epidemic is now upon us, but there's no need to become panicky. People usually escape illness if they fortify themselves with the "Circle of Protection," that is, take the following precautions:

1. Get at least eight hours' sleep every night. 2. Open windows wide before retiring so as to get plenty of fresh air. But avoid drafts. 3. Refrain from overeating, especially sweets. Keep the bowels open. 4. Exercise at least fifteen minutes in the open every day. 5. Wash hands frequently so as to keep them free from germs as far as possible. 6. Avoid overheating in home or office.

IMPORTANT

Never breathe through the mouth. Only the nose can warm up cold air before it strikes the tender membranes. Only the nose can filter out irritating dust and other impurities which break down resistance to disease.

If your nostrils are clogged-up due to a cold or nasal catarrh, insert Mentholatum in them night and morning. Mentholatum will soothe the irritated membranes and help relieve the local congestion in the nostrils, thus enabling you to breathe more freely through the nose instead of the mouth.

House Votes NLRB Inquiry $50,000 More

Committee Hears Criticism of 'Run-Off' Election Procedure

By Frank McNaughton,
United Press Staff Writer.

The House yesterday voted the Smith Committee an additional $50,000 to continue its investigation of the ational Labor Relations Board while the committee heard testimony assailing the board's much-critized "run-off" election practice.

The committee also heard NLRB Chairman Madden deny that the board had approached the Reconstruction Finance Corporation—as RFC Chairman Emil Schram had testified—relative to banning RFC loans to Wagner Act violators. On the contrary, said Madden, first overtures toward the ban came from the RFC.

Schram disputed Madden's claim with the brief statement that he was under oath when he testified "and I did not lie."

A. F. of L. Members Testify

Testimony concerning run-off elections came from four members of the American Federation of Labor's Electrical Workers Union, and concerned a representation dispute between the union and the C. I. O.'s Utility Workers Organizing Committee over bargaining agency designation for the 3,200 employes of the Consumers Power Co. of Michigan.

When the Labor Board held an election, the C. I. O. got 1,162 votes, the A. F. of L. 1,074 votes, and 506 votes were cast for no union. Since neither union had a clear majority, the board ordered a run-off election in which the ballots carried only two spaces to choose from—one for the C. I. O., since it had the largest number, and one for no union. The A. F. of L. won an injunction in lower courts banning the election, but the Supreme Court recently set it aside and upheld the board's power to order the new balloting.

Controversy over the run-off election system—employed by the board when neither of two contending unions won a clear majority in the first balloting—has split the board itself, with the recently appointed member, William M. Leiserson, arguing that the two blanks in run-off ballots should be for the two unions polling the highest number of votes in the original election.

Gerald L. Gill, Jackson, Mich., head of the A. F. of L. unit involved in the Consumers Power controversy, criticized the board for refusing to put the A. F. of L.'s name on the run-off ballots.

He defended the Wagner Act, however, and said he would "hate to see any change in it." He said that if the A. F. of L.-C. I. O. fight should result in amendment of the act, "it's tough on labor."

existing tariffs, to prevent importation of goods at prices below American production costs, or to prohibit importation of competitive farm products as long as domestic prices are below parity were offered, in one form or another, by Representatives Reed, of New York; Woodruff, of Michigan; Carlson, of Kansas; Mundt, of South Dakota; Schafer, of Wiscinson; Burdick, of North Dakota, and Gilchrist, of Iowa (Republicans), and Massingale, of Oklahoma, and Peterson, of Florida (Democrats).

In presenting his amendment, Burdick pointed out that he had been waiting all day to speak, now was granted only 2½ minutes, and therefore desired to take this opportunity—as he might not have another—to wish his colleagues "a merry Christmas and a happy New Year." He took his seat amid gales of laughter, but his amendment, like all the rest, went down to defeat.

Crowther Blocked

Prior to Coffee's unsuccessful plea for senatorial ratification of all trade agreements, Representative Crowther (Republican), of New York, asked that this veto power be granted to both houses of Congress.

He asserted that he was "not afraid of log-rolling," but Representative Dingell (Democrat), of Michigan, declared that the amendment would mean the "death" of trade agreements. Crowther's move was blocked, 161 to 144.

Coffee's attempt to grant the Senate control over the agreements was characterized by Representative McCormack (Democrat), of Massachusetts, as a "kiss of death." To jocular applause of the Republicans, McCormack declared that the President already had power to negotiate trade treaties with advice and consent of the Senate.

An effort by Representative Crowther to permit domestic producers to litigate matters arising out of the trade agreements was turned down.

Exemptions Asked

Then began the parade of amendments that would have directly limited the applicability of new agreements. At first, an appreciable amount of debate was allowed. But as the afternoon wore on, Democrats imposed a strict "gag;" and Representative Woodrum (Democrat), of Virginia, in the chair, was kept busy announcing the steady progress of the steam-roller with the phrase: "The amendment is defeated."

Representative Knutson (Republican), of Minnesota, urged public hearings after negotiation of trade agreements; Representative Mundt asked special favor for manganese ore, while Representative Van Zandt (Republican), of Pennsylvania, held out for coal and Representative Harrington (Democrat), of Iowa, for animal fats and vegetable oils; Representative Carlson urged that the agreements be approved in writing by the Secretaries of State, Commerce and Agriculture; Representatives Scrugham, of Nevada, and White, of Idaho (Democrats), asked protection for industries damaged by trade agreements; Representative Andresen (Republican), of Minnesota, wanted to guard against depreciated foreign currency; Representative Mott (Republican), of Oregon, urged that country of origin be marked on foreign importations; while Representative Gearhart (Republican), of California, proposed an entirely new bill.

Hanes Refuses To Be Trustee In Utility Case

Wall Street Journal Reports His Advice To Judge Leibell

New York, Feb. 23 (AP).—The Wall Street Journal says John W. Hanes, former Undersecretary of the Treasury, has advised Federal Judge Vincent L. Leibell that he will not accept appointment as a trustee of Associated Gas & Electric Co.

Hanes had been mentioned frequently as a possible appointee to such a post. The Securities & Exchange Commission had previously advised the judge it would not undertake the task.

The possibility that Hanes might be named so aroused Senator Norris (Independent), of Nebraska, that he twice condemned such an appointment.

Reports circulated in Washington that Dean Acheson, former Undersecretary of the Treasury, likely would be one of four trustees.

Some persons said that the plan is to have one trustee for Associated Gas & Electric Co., which is the top unit in the system, and three trustees for Associated Gas & Electric Corporation, which is the underlying unit and far more important in the operation of the vast system.

Others mentioned for the trustee jobs include Abe Fortas, general counsel for the Bituminous Coal Commission; James A. Beha, a New York lawyer who was a New York State insurance commissioner under former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, and John E. Mack, New York lawyer.

$11,000,000 Fees Reported

By the Associated Press

The Federal Power Commission heard yesterday that 18 service companies owned or controlled by Howard C. Hopson, utility magnate, and members of his family, collected $11,000,000 in service charges from the Associated Gas & Electric utility system from 1934 through 1938.

Government accountants estimated that of this amount the Hopson family received $4,000,000.

The testimony was by Jeremiah J. Enright and Victor C. Gouch, accountants, who prepared reports for the commission's investigation of fees made by the Hopson service companies to Associated Gas subsidiaries in Pennsylvania.

Enright identified a chart which he said showed that the Hopson family owned or controlled one-half of the huge Associated Gas system and all of the 18 service companies which served the subsidiary utility corporations.

With the aid of the two accountants, Lambert McAllister, commission counsel put into the record the 800-page report showing the intricate financial operations of the Hopson service companies.

8 Drys Meet, Pick Delegates And Reminisce

5 Named to Attend National Convention; Great Years Recalled

With wistful reminiscences about the "old, grand conventions the National Prohibition Party used to hold," eight representatives of local prohibitionists met at the New Ebbitt Hotel at 5 p. m. yesterday and named five delegates to the 1940 national convention, to be held in Chicago May 8, 9 and 10.

The delegates are George C. Clarke, owner and manager of the Ebbitt, who donated use of the meeting room; Thomas E. Boorde, J. Raymond Schmidt, Dale S. Crowley and William V. Mahoney.

To Name Candidates

The convention empowered the delegates to serve as an executive committee and appoint alternates should any delegates be unable to attend the Chicago conclave, where candidates for President and Vice President of the United States will be nominated.

Boorde and Schmidt were unanimously reelected to serve on the Prohibitionist Party National Committee, representing the District.

Boorde, in a brief address, said that he could detect a rising sentiment against the prevailing systems of handling whisky, and that prospects for the party seemed better this year than in recent years. He said that the youth dinner and conference, on the opening night, held enough inspiration to justify the trip to Chicago by any delegate.

"Great Conventions" Recalled

A period of reminiscence on "the great conventions of 1904 and 1912" followed.

Intensive campaigns aimed at correcting conditions held "inimical to the American home" will be planned Tuesday and Wednesday in Baltimore at a regional conference of local and State W. C. T. U. officers from the District, Maryland and Delaware. Mrs. Ida W. Ramsey, 1332 Jonquil street northwest, District W. C. T. U. president, will lead a local delegation there.

G.O.P. Publicity Aide Claims 50-50 Chance

The Republican Party has "at least a 50-50 chance" of winning in November, Wells Church, assistant publicity director of the G. O. P., yesterday told a luncheon meeting of the Washington Round Table at the National Press Club.

"The swing has started our way," Church said, "and our job at headquarters here is to make sure it doesn't die out."

rector, was on hand to watch his "brain child" get another workout. When the rush-hour peak passed and less than half the normal traffic had appeared, he was asked if he thought motorists were purposely avoiding his new scheme.

He agreed traffic was a "little light" for the time of day, adding:

"It takes time to get used to anything."

Amid scenes of utter chaos—which all but threatened to break into riot proportions—a system of 28 vehicle and pedestrian lights was turned on for the first time Wednesday. Public reaction was adverse, to say the least. One of the worst traffic jams in history resulted and planners admitted a "few changes" would be necessary.

But yesterday, only one minor change had been made. "Blinders" have been added to a signal on the inner circle of the plaza so drivers turning left from Louisiana avenue can travel more than 20 yards without stopping. Before the shields, which now hide the light from turning cars, were installed, however, motorists hardly got started before they were forced to halt again.

Six policemen—an inspector, a lieutenant, a sergeant and three privates — were necessary to keep things moving yesterday, in spite of the decline in traffic. Inspector Holmes said men would be detailed to the plaza until the middle of next week.

To make traffic flow a little smoother during peak hours, Van Duzer said parking would be prohibited for 300 feet on the plaza approach from Louisiana avenue. But he "didn't know" whether another light would be added at the intersection of E street where traffic now jams and snarls—except when a policeman holds things in check.

$3,000 More for Polish Aid

The Polish National Committee of Scranton, Pa., yesterday sent a $3,000 contribution to the American Red Cross, bringing to $12,000 the funds raised by congregations of the Polish National Church of America to be spent for aid to the Poles. Frank M. Schap, of Washington, presents the check to Ernest J. Swift, vice chairman of the American Red Cross, on behalf of Barney Wysocki, of Scranton, president of the PNC. A new agreement has been reached between the German government and the Red Cross for distribution of the money to Poles in German-occupied Poland

LaGuardia Says 'Phooey' at G.O.P. Hopefuls; Advises Illinois to Go for Roosevelt

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 23.—The voluble Mayor of New York, Fiorello H. LaGuardia, has reached the conclusion, he said today, that the present crop of Republican Presidential hopefuls is "a poor one indeed," and added: "phooey."

LaGUARDIA

The mayor's views were expressed in connection with his announcement that he was filing a declination in the Apri 9 Illinois preferential primaries, in which his name was entered without his knowledge as a candidate for the Republican nomination.

He was withdrawing, he explained, because he did not want "to divide the intelligent, progressive vote" in that State and suggested Illinois voters cast their ballots for President Roosevelt.

Asked whether his name might be placed before the voters in primaries in other States, the Mayor said he would cross those bridges when he reached them. He was asked, too, whether he would consider the Vice Presidential nomination on a Democratic ticket headed by Cordell Hull, Secretary of State.

"That," he said with a smile, "is not a question about the primary."

Chamber of Commerce officials estimate the convention will mean 125,000 visitors and $12,000,000 to Philadelphia.

Ralph E. Williams, member of the Republican National Committee from Oregon since 1912 and chairman of the committee on convention arrangements, visited Convention Hall and pronounced it "superior to any site I have ever seen."

A Republican subcommittee on housing met with hotel men to discuss allocation of room space. Members included former Senator Daniel O. Hastings, of Delaware; Mrs. Paul Fitzsimmons, of Providence, R. I., and Kenneth F. Simpson, New York.

Gannett Sees Dictator Peril In 3d Term

Declares Economic Chaos Would Bring Death to Liberty

By the United Press

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 23.—Frank Gannett, newspaper publisher and aspirant for the Republican Presidential nomination, tonight charged that continuation of the New Deal Administration would result in a totalitarian government in the United States.

In a speech prepared for delivery in Williams Park here, he said: "Four more years of present Administration policies will bring us ruin and imperil our form of Government.

"The dictators in Europe rose to power because of unbearable economic conditions. A continuation of present conditions will mean further efforts to regulate and control everything and everybody from Washington until we, too, shall have a totalitarian state displacing our democracy."

Says Recovery Lags

Gannett said this Nation had "lagged far behind" in recovery and was "still in the depression which has been even more costly to our people than the World War."

"Our Government assumed that we could spend ourselves into prosperity—something as impossible as it is for the drunkard to drink himself sober," Gannett added.

He proposed:

"We must have rigid economy; we must check reckless, wasteful spending; we must begin policies that will, as soon as possible bring our budget into balance.

"We must stop this constant hampering interference with the business . . .

"We must restore friendly relations betwen labor and capital and bring an end to strikes and strife.

Fears Radio Censorship

"We must bring prosperity again to the farms by restoring the price level to something like normal.

"Instead of increasing taxes we can reduce taxes . . ."

Gannett said the President could take "complete control of radio" through the emergency powers Mr. Roosevelt gained last fall.

Man Erroneously Identified 'Wild-Eyed' Burglar Is Released

David H. Martin, colored, 25, so-called "beady-eyed" bandist, was at the District Jail last night, committed in default of $25,000 bail set by Police Judge Casey at a preliminary arraignment yesterday.

His commitment brought about the release of Luther Miller, colored, 29, indicted as the bandit on the identification of Mrs. Lucille H. Kelly, wife of a naval commander, who was robbed, December 18, in her apartment, 2301 Connecticut avenue northwest.

Mrs. Kelly pointed out Miller to police on Connecticut avenue several days after the robbery. She later picked him from a line-up and he was indicted.

Yesterday Assistant District Attorney Allen J. Krause nolle prossed the indictment against Miller and said the prosecutor's office would speed proceedings against Martin.

Martin was implicated in the Kelly robbery by his own admission. He reenacted the crime at the Kelly apartment and it was then, according to police, that Mrs. Kelly realized her error.

Charged with robbing more than a score of apartment house residents during the past three months, Martin was arraigned on only one count. The other cases will be presented directly to the grand jury, court officials stated.

Jean J. Maclay, of Arlington, Va., who was robbed of $10 in the Roosevelt Hotel December 4, was the compainant at yesterday's hearing. Martin pleaded innocent and was held to the grand jury.

Twenty-two women, including Mrs. Margaret Dorsey, sister of Representative Joseph Mansfield (Democrat), of Texas, and Mrs. Robert Brennan, wife of the Minister of Ireland, appeared at Police Court but were not called to testify.

Slept in Park, Mae Murray Says

spent three days in Central Park? You mean you sat on a bench in Central Park?"

"I sat on a bench with my little hat box," the one-time actress answered.

Almost hysterical, she was calmed by friends and continued

"I had walked out of my marriage a bankrupt—that is a matter of record. But I was building up a new fortune. I had a $120,000 contract with an English picture company, but I was forced to give it up because my boy became so desperately ill and before long my money was gone.

"From then on, it became a fight for my health, a night so that no one would know I hadn't any money and a fight for 'face,' for it seems not to be attractive to be without money."

She testified she once sold a $5,000 chinchilla jacket for $150 to obtain funds for an operation for her son. She said she "begged and pleaded" with Mdivani to assist her and visit the boy, but without success.

She charged that the prince is living in luxury, but that a $5,000 payment when they were divorced in 1933 and $508 since were his only contributions to the boy's support.

Miss Murray told the judge she had no bank account, made not a cent during the past year, had no property—"in fact, nothing at all."

To Ask Son's Preference

Judge Dockweiler conferred with counsel for the former actress and for Mdivani, then said he would send written interrogatories to a New York judge who would ask the son with which parent he preferred to live.

Miss Murray recently was denied her demand in New York for a writ of habeas corpus to have her son returned to her. The court ruled she was not in a position to provide the boy a satisfactory home.

The boy now is in custody of Miss Bessie Cunning, sister of Dr. Daniel Cunning, a brain and ear specialist who performed a mastoid operation upon him.

Mdivani was in court at the afternoon session today but did not testify. During a recess Miss Murray complained to Judge Dockweiler that she was annoyed by his "sneers and face-making."

as disclosed today, calls for a meeting first with Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop. The conference with the Fuehrer will follow immediately.

United States Charge d'Affaires Alexander Kirk conferred for 40 minutes today with Baron Ernst von Weizsaecker, German undersecretary of state, apparently to arrange details of Welles' visit.

Both Von Ribbentrop and Von Weizsaecker have kept in close contact with Dr. Hans H. Dieckhoff, who still holds the title of German Ambassador to the United States despite his absence from Washington since late in 1938.

Dieckhoff was ordered home November 18, 1938, to explain American views on the Nazi anti-Jewish campaign, two days after Hugh R. Wilson, American Ambassador to Berlin, was summoned to Washington "to report."

Welles is understood to have been represented favorably to official Berlin by Dieckhoff. Nazi authorities appear disposed to cooperate in giving him information he desires.

There was talk of at least one large social function in Welles' honor. Complete details of the visit will be held in abeyance, the American Embassy said, until Welles communicates with Kirk from Rome.

Businessman Says Wanderlust Drove Him to African Trip

J. O. Stewart, Who Lectured Here, Tells of Loading Family Aboard Ship And Starting Capetown-to-Cairo Tour

The only difference between J. O. Stewart and tens of thousands of other businessmen is that Stewart has done something about those romantic reveries, his wanderlust urgings.

In July, 1938, he hauled his car down to a dock, and put it aboard ship for Capetown, Africa, along with his wife and brunette daughter, "Pete" Stewart, Brooklyn, their home town, passed across a horizon. In Capetown, on July 13, he unloaded the car and pointed the bumper straight up the big continent, toward Cairo.

Stewart, no professional junketeer or lecturer, but an average citizen with pince-nez glasses and a business to which he could return, is still excited about it. It was the scenery that makes his eyes flash and then get reminiscent, and he paused to explain that it was not adventurous excursioning but a trip for pure delight. Last night he lectured here for the National Geographic Society.

He had seen at one lake an estimated 1,000,000 flamingoes in one covey; he had seen the mountains of the moon; he had lived in a house in a tree one night and watched the animals, seemingly unwatched and consequently not self-conscious, frequenting a salt lick; he had chased a leopard, running before the car lights, on a road one velvety African night.

Miss Stewart said they did not see a snake all the way. And Stewar said that, by and large, there was peace, a few anxieties—as when lions trooped through a camp at night—but usually the world was far away. In all, they went some 15,000 miles, on dirt roads, "all of it passable, though parts extremely trying."

About the chances of other daydreamers doing the same thing: Stewart would not say what it cost him, but only that expenses on trips always were personal things that could run high or little.

Skeleton Identified As Washingtonian Gone Since June

A weatherbeaten skeleton found in a Fairfax County swamp Thursday by a woods foreman was identified yesterday as that of N. Webster Chappell, of 4131 Yuma street northwest, missing since June 21.

Identification was made by Chappell's nephew, W. F. Rowe, a contractor, of 4841 Wisconsin avenue northwest, who read a newspaper account of the discovery. Rowe took to the Fairfax coroner's office the cylinder from a lock at his uncle's home and operated it with a key found near the skeleton. Dr. C. A. Ransom, coroner, said the skeleton would be turned over to Rowe today.

Chappell was reported missing June 21 by his wife, Mrs. M. Ella Chappell. Two daughters, the Misses Lillian and Lorena Chappell, also survive.

Richard Norris, of the Hamilton National Bank, was named chairman of the financial committee. Other members are Luther Schreiner, of the Lincoln National Bank; and Julius Lully, of Harvey's Restaurant.

Rubel Manages Publicity

L. E. Rubel will serve as chairman of publicity. L. E. Massey, Lew S. Birns, and James Styles, are members of the booth committee.

Meanwhile 9-year-old Mary Jane Kiatta announced gaily that because she had missed her birthday party, she had $7 to contribute for the Children's Hospital Blood Bank. She told about the money for the blood bank after a happy afternoon praty she gave for 27 of her schoolmates and other friends at her home, 3039 Macomb street northwest.

The idea for the blood bank benefit party was all her own. The story of her idea runs back to October. Mary Jane's birthday was October 19, but because her mother was not feeling well at the time, she gave up having a party for her friends.

Children Bring Donations

The party was still coming to her, when she read about the blood bank campaign, and she suggested to her mother that her party be a benefit for the blood bank.

The children began arriving for the party in the early afternoon, and as they came in they dropped their gifts for the blood bank into a valentine box. Through the afternoon they played games, danced. After the refreshments, which included ice cream, cake, candy and a collection of grab bags, the children learned from Mrs. Kiatta that their gifts added up to $6.63. A friend of Mrs. Kiatta gave the extra amount to bring the total to $7.

Legion Post Gives $100

Other contributions to the blood bank fund came from the Bureau of Engraving and Printing Post of the American Legion and the Ladies Auxiliary of the District Hebrew Association.

The Legion post contributed a check for $100. Mrs. Morris Rodman, of 1116 Buchanan street northwest, president of the Hebrew Association Auxiliary, sent a check for $5.50 contributed at a meeting of the members.

James E. Walker Post, No. 26, of the American Legion and its auxiliary, will hold a blood bank card party at 8 p. m., March 1, in the Y. M. C. A., 1816 Twelfth street northwest. Commander Robert W. Fearing said that the post's committee for the party includes Dr. William F. Nelson, chairman; Mrs. Emma Jackson, vice chairman; Leon Anderson, Wallace P. Gant, Mrs. Richard Banks, Mrs. Laura Sutherland, Mrs. Anna Sampson, Mrs. Charles Ward, Mrs. Harriet Epps and Mrs. Bertha Robinson.

Mrs. Schoenfeld Asks Divorce From D. C. Brain Surgeon

Says He Struck Her And Spent His Time With Other Woman

Mrs. Martha Schoenfeld, 42, 1908 Florida avenue northwest, sued in the District Court yesterday for separate maintenance from Dr. Herbert Schoenfeld, brain surgeon, who is the brother of H. F. Arthur Schoenfeld, American Minister to Finland.

Mrs. Schoenfeld's complaint charged that beginning November 15, 1937, her husband was critical and abusive and "continually and repeatedly" associated with another woman, whose name was not given. The complaint said this embarrassed Mrs. Schoenfeld greatly among her friends.

The complaint said that Dr. Schoenfeld moved from the family home to 1150 Connecticut avenue June 12, 1939, but returned and knocked his wife unconscious July 13, 1939.

Dr. Schoenfeld has said he would file suit for an absolute divorce in Reno, Nev., the complaint said.

Mrs. Schoenfeld asked for a decree of limited divorce, for temporary and permanent alimony and for an injunction forbidding her husband to sue for divorce in any other jurisdiction.

The Schoenfelds married in New York, October 18, 1919, and have lived here since. They have a 19-year-old daughter, Martha Wills Schoenfeld, who is a college student.

Mrs. Schoenfeld is represented by Attorney Frank J. Kelly.

Gov. Dickinson Acts to Oust Prosecutor

By the Associated Press

Detroit, Feb. 23.—Ouster proceedings against Duncan C. McCrea, Wayne County (Detroit) prosecuting attorney, were ordered by Gov. Luren D. Dickinson today on charges by Circuit Judge Homer Ferguson that the prosecutor had exacted thousands of dollars monthly from operators of vice dens, racing handbooks and slot machines.

The removal petition was presented to the Governor shortly after McCrea and others of a group charged with protecting the operation of a baseball lottery here, had stood mute upon arraignment in Circuit Court.

As McCrea, missing since Wednesday, appeared for arraignment, he smiled and announced he would be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator in next September's primary election.

Glad of Publicity

He referred to his indictment by a grand jury that has been investigating gambling in Wayne County as "dirty, rotten politics," and added:

"The publicity will help my campaign for Senator."

Pleas of not guilty were entered for McCrea; Fred W. Frahm, recently ousted as superintendent of Detroit police; Harry Colburn, chief investigator for McCrea, and Detective James Bennett, when they appeared in court before Judge Ferguson. They were released on $1,000 bonds each with hearings set for March 2.

The four, with 11 others were named in indictments handed down Wednesday night by Judge Ferguson, acting as a one-man grand jury, charging the protection of a baseball lottery that did a business of more than $1,000,000 a year in Detroit. In addition four other men were named in the indictment as "coconspirators," but not defendants and ordered held as material witnesses.

Shakedown Charged

After today's arraignments, Judge Ferguson hastened to Lansing and presented his petition for McCrea's ouster.

In the petition he charged that McCrea, through an agent, had collected from $100 to $300 monthly from vice resorts; from $10 a month upward from slot machine operators; that more than 300 racing handbooks had operated in Wayne County with McCrea's "full knowledge and consent," and that a "numbers game" running into more than $1,000,000 monthly had been "enabled to operate by said Duncan C. McCrea."

Under Michigan law a public official against whom ouster proceedings are ordered must be given eight days' notice and a public hearing before a court designated by the Governor.

Turks Declare 'Emergency'

goods from Trebizond and Batum to the Danube.

In an article on the economic possibilities of the Danube a few days ago the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung mentions the development of trade between the Reich and Iran in an important aim of Germany's Danube policy. At the Budapest shipping conference last week the Germans revealed, it is learned, that their trade with Iran was going to be sufficiently important this season to make it worthwhile for the Deutsche Levant Line and the Shultz Orient Line to make special arrangements to bring Iranian goods to the iron gates for transhipment on Danube barges.

Nazi Propaganda Suspected

A report of a Russian fleet maneuver in the Black Sea, emphasized by the German official news agency, coincided, it is noticed, with the Turkish developments. These facts are coupled with Soviet radio attacks on Turkey which are now a nightly occurrence.

Military circles in the Balkans attributed tales of vast Soviet military reinforcements in the Caucasus region to the Nazis' propagandist wish to create an atmosphere of uncertainty and possibly prompt the thought of Russian ambitions in the direction of the Persian Gulf. Today's Hrvatski Dnevnik prominently publishes reports, ostensibly from Moscow, of Russian preparations and says that the Soviet military forces have been vastly increased in Armenia, the Azerbaijan Caucasus, the Turkmenistan and the near Afghan frontier. It adds that great numbers of modern tanks and airplanes were sent into these regions to defend them from an Allied "aggression." In these areas, it is added, the 1920 and 1921 classes have been called up, and four more classes will be mobilized soon.

Finally, strong Ogpu detachments were said to be en route. Internal evidence suggests that whether or not the reports be true, they may well be of German origin. They are known to be assembled not in Moscow but in Budapest which is a fertile source of Nazi propaganda.

Ties to Allies Stressed

A warning of the action Turkey has taken was foreseen last Monday when the Turkish government announced that it had decided to apply the national defense law, which gives it virtual dictatorial powers. At the same time the nation's newspapers warned the people that, as nonbelligerent allies of Britain and France, they must prepare for a "supreme effort" this spring.

Turkey has been reported rushing preparations for war with the aid of money, supplies and advice from the Allied powers.

On the eve of the Balkan Entente conference at Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Turkey's foreign prime minister Saracoglu, declared that his country could not be considered neutral, but only out of the actual warfare.

In the past few weeks Turkey ordered German technical experts to leave the country. Earlier Russian nationals left Turkey in great numbers.

Mary Hawes Plans London Marriage To English Engineer

Dr. and Mrs. Charles Henry Hawes, of Alexandria, Va., are expecting word today that their daughter, Mary, has been married in London to an English engineer.

Mrs. Hawes received a letter from her daughter Wednesday saying the marriage would take place either today or on March 14, "depending on whether they had been able to find a house this week."

Miss Hawes, who has contributed special correspondence to The Washington Post during extensive travels in Europe, met her fiance, Colin Allsebrook, in Prague in September, 1938. Allsebrook is a hydrostatic engineer and lives in Reading. His father is a first cousin of Sir John Simons, chancellor of the exchequer.

"He seems to be very much interested in politics, too," Mrs. Hawes said yesterday. Miss Hawes' father, a former Dartmouth professor now retired, was born in England.

"So, you see we think it's very nice that our daughter should be marrying an Englishman," said Mrs. Hawes, admitting no anxiety because of the war.

Miss Hawes is a graduate of Radcliffe College and has studied at the Sorbonne, in Paris, and the University of Geneva. She spent last summer and fall in this country, sailing for Europe January 8. Her ship, the Excambion, was delayed a week at Gibraltar by blockade control inspection. Her brother, Alexander Hawes, is assistant general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board.

be approved by a majority of the House District Committee although he admitted that there is some doubt as to the stand that the reorganization subcommittee may take.

Would Limit Hearings

The chairman said he favors Dirksen's idea of limiting the hearings to spokesmen for various groups so as to expedite consideration of the legislation.

"We've heard most of the arguments," he said, "and there is little use of covering the same ground we have been over in past years. One witness for each group of similar organizations should be enough."

The subcommittee will hold an executive session Tuesday morning to make plans for the hearings, which Kennedy hopes to begin on Thursday or Friday.

Movie Cowboy Killed in Duel

Hollywood, Feb. 23 (AP).—Two movie cowboys, in full Wild West regalia, shot it out in a corner drugstore today. One was killed, the other fled.

Police identified the dead man as Johnnie Tyke.

The shooting occurred a few steps from Columbia Studio. Both were waiting between scenes of a picture in which they were extras.

Witnesses said the men quarreled, suddenly drew guns and blazed away. Tyke fell. He was dead when an ambulance reached a hospital.

Edison and Advisers Split On Civilian Navy Control

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

Secretary Edison and some of his chief advisers were revealed last night to be at odds over the question of military vs. civilian control of the Navy in connection with the proposed reorganization of the Navy Department.

The House Naval Affairs Committee made public a report from the general board, chief policy-drafting agency of the Navy, which recommended the concentration of considerable additional power in the hands of the chief of naval operations, the ranking admiral of the service.

While urging continuation of long-standing policy of appointing civilians as Secretary and Assistant Secretary of the Navy, the report dwelt at length on the importance of "professional" guidance in matters apart from general policy and Congressional relations. All other matters, it was proposed, should be under the direction of "a single naval professional agency."

Edison Objects

Edison, in a recent letter to the same committee, raised "serious" objection to proposals made to concentrate power in the hands of the chief of naval operations, without identifying the source of the proposals. Adoption of such a plan, he declared, "means that the actual control of the Navy will rest with the military and not with the civilian heads."

"This objection is serious enough to warrant disapproval without going into other considerations," he added.

A special House Naval Subcommittee will take up the question of Navy Department reorganization Monday. Secretary Edison will be the first witness, followed by various bureau chiefs, many of whom favor the General Board proposal.

Secretary Edison has proposed creation of a new "chief of shore operations" who would take over some of the functions of the present chief of naval operations. The former would be either a civilian or a naval officer, under Edison's plan. The various bureaus would continue as at present except for consolidation of the Bureau of Construction and Repair and the Bureau of Engineering, which now are virtually merged by administrative action.

Admirals Oppose Plan

The General Board report also recommended merger of the latter two agencies, but was at variance on the other proposal of the Secretary. The group of rear admirals making up the board, in discussing a somewhat similar plan to that of Edison's, declared there was "no place in the organization of the Navy Department" for such an official as proposed.

When EPIDEMICS rage.. keep within this Circle of Protection!

THE new epidemic is now upon us, but there's no need to become panicky. People usually escape illness if they fortify themselves with the "Circle of Protection," that is, take the following precautions:

1. Get at least eight hours' sleep every night. 2. Open windows wide before retiring so as to get plenty of fresh air. But avoid drafts. 3. Refrain from overeating, especially sweets. Keep the bowels open. 4. Exercise at least fifteen minutes in the open every day. 5. Wash hands frequently so as to keep them free from germs as far as possible. 6. Avoid overheating in home or office.

IMPORTANT

Never breathe through the mouth. Only the nose can warm up cold air before it strikes the tender membranes. Only the nose can filter out irritating dust and other impurities which break down resistance to disease.

If your nostrils are clogged-up due to a cold or nasal catarrh, insert Mentholatum in them night and morning. Mentholatum will soothe the irritated membranes and help relieve the local congestion in the nostrils, thus enabling you to breathe more freely through the nose instead of the mouth.

Masons Turn Southward For Expansion

45 of 49 Grand Lodges Represented Here At 2-Day Conference

Delegates representing 45 of the 49 grand lodges yesterday opened a two-day conference of Grand Masters of Masons on international Masonic problems at the Willard Hotel.

GIDDINGS

George F. Giddings, grand master of Masons in Maine, was elected chairman and J. Claude Keiper, grand secretary of the Grand Lodge of the District of Columbia, was re-elected for the fourteenth time, conference secretary. Sessions today from 9:30 a. m. to noon will conclude the meeting.

At last night's banquet at the Willard, Senator Nye, of North Dakota, addressed the delegates. He was introduced by Senator Truman, deputy grand master of Masons in Missouri.

Now that the expansion of Free Masonry is "out of the question" in war-torn Europe, the logical frontier for present development is in countries of Latin America, J. Edward Allen, grand master of North Carolina, told delegates at yesterday's meeting.

"Free Masonry in the United States," said Allen in a paper read for him by John Anderson, grand secretary of North Carolina, "holds a duty to its brethren to the south to develop good will and a common understanding in Masonry wherever true Masonic quality is found and the standads are correct."

Allen's paper reviewed Free Masonry in Europe and said the largest Masonic population affected by totalitarianism is in Germany, with those in Italy, Spain, Czecho-Slovakia and Poland following in order.

Conditions abroad also were discussed by Judge Townsend Scudder, of New York. Marcus Tollet, member of the grand lodge of Helsinki, Finland who is in this country in an unofficial capacity handling relief funds through the Finnish Legation, spoke.

Needham C. Turnage, Grand Naster of the District, welcomed delegates.

Reelection of Dr. Elmer R. Arn, of Ohio, as president of the George Washington Masonic National Memorial Association at its thirtieth annual session in Alexandria was announced last night.

J. Claude Keiper, of Washington, was reelected secretary-treasurer. Other officers are James R. Johnson, South Carolina, first vice president; Harry G. Noyes, New Hampshire, second vice president; Bert S. Lee, Missouri, third vice president; George L. Lusk, Michigan, fourth vice president, and James H. Price, Virginia, fifth vice president.

Oscar Chapman To Wed Secretary

Havana. They will return to Washington March 7 and make their home at the Kennedy-Warren, where Mr. Chapman has lived for some time.

Plans for the wedding have been carried out secretly because of the illness of Dr Manly, who is now in a hospital in Tucson, Ariz. Miss Kendrick's brother, Charles Kendrick, of New York, who had expected to be best man, went instead to Tucson to be at his uncle's bedside.

Witnessing the wedding, however, will be Miss Kendrick's two brothers-in-law and sisters, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Heller, of Colorado Springs, Colo., and Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Bodemueller, of Lafayette, La.

The bride-elect, who has been in Washington since 1932 when she came here in connection with work of the Progressive League of the Democratic National Committee, made her home with her uncle and aunt, Basil Manly, of the Federal Power Commission, and Mrs. Manly. A native of Shreveport, she attended Baylor College at Belton, Tex., and later taught English and Latin in the high school at Brownsville, Tex. She has been in the Department of the Interior since 1933.

Early this month she resigned and returned to Shreveport. Mr. Chapman arrived there yesterday afternoon. Shortly before her departure, Miss Kendrick told friends that the Washington climate did not agree with her and that she was going home for a rest.

Meanwhile, Mr. Chapman completed arrangements to get away for "a brief vacation," and rumors went the rounds that he planned to spend a couple of weeks in Miami.

Reports of the romance have swirled around the Interior Department for some time, but both Mr. Chapman and Miss Kendrick have consistently shied away from admitting that there was a marriage in the offing.

A couple of weeks ago, however, when Mr. Chapman was asked what he thought of leap year proposals, he said, "I'm all for them. I just haven't had any luck in the past; but I hope this year brings me luck."

The son of Mr. and Mrs. James Jackson Chapman, the prospective bridegroom was born in Omega, Va., and attended Randolph-Macon Academy, in Bedford, Va. He served in the Navy during the World War ("just as a private," he says), and then went to Colorado to make his home. He attended the University of New Mexico and, later, the University of Denver, where he received his law degree. In 1920 he married Miss Olga Pauline Edholm, of Stillwater, Minn., who died in 1932.

Before coming to Washington, Mr. Chapman served first as assistant and then as chief probation officer of the juvenile court under Judge Ben Lindsey. In 1932, he managed the campaign for Senator Edward P. Costigan, came to Washington the following year, and soon afterward was appointed to the position he now holds.

Newark Firm Gets Reservoir Pipe Job

Spiniello Construction Co., of Newark, N. J., submitted a low bid of $171,819 to lay a 48-inch steel pipe from the new reservoir on Soldiers' Home grounds to the Bryant street pumping station.

The pipe will run 5,490 feet. The work will take 180 calendar days.

Lothian Calls Bermuda Story of Marine Mail Seizure 'Eyewash'

By Frank L. Kluckhohn

Copyright by New York Times

The Marquess of Lothian, British Ambassador, dneied as "complete eyewash" yesterday reports that mails were first taken off a Pan American Airways clipper at Bermuda for censorship January 18 only after British marines had made a display of bayonets. The reports had caused strong protests by Senators.

Lord Lothian's denial followed a long conference with Secretary of State Hull at which various British-American problems were discussed, including censorship of mails at Bermuda, the taking of American ships to British control ports and Britain's reduction of American tobacco purchases.

Earlier in the day the State Department issued a statement asserting reports it has received from the American consul at Bermuda and from Juan Trippe, president of Pan-American Airways, did not mention "the use of force" by British authorities. Both of these sources had every opportunity to mention any use of force or threat of force, the State Department said.

"There has not been any dispute over our right under international law to censor mails at Bermuda," the British Ambassador said. "Whether it is a wise policy is another matter."

The reported Bermuda bayonet incident had further repercussions in Congress yesterday. Representative Maas (Republican), Minnesota, introduced a House resolution asking Secretary Hull to submit full facts regarding stoppage and search of United States planes and ships by European belligerents. Representative Barry (Democrat), New York, wrote Secretary Hull asking "whether or not this (the Bermuda) incident was brought to the attention of the State Department and if so what action has been taken."

Senator Pepper, of Florida, told reporters that, in his opinion, the British were justified in examining mail destined for Germany. He said he has been informed "by a reliable source" that since the inspection system began, British officials have discovered between $14,000,000 and $17,000,000 in letters and packages postmarked for Germany. He added that a great deal of this money "was contained in letters which bore no return address."

"This shows that persons in this country are seeking to help Germany," Senator Pepper said. "The British have the right to seize such letters."

Senator Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, declared last night that "arrogant Britain" would come quickly to terms regarding the seizure of mail if the United States would pass up Bermuda as an airmail stop. He spoke at the annual banquet of Grand Master Masons.

New York, Feb. 23 (AP).—A description of the armed seizure of United States air mail by Bermuda authorities on January 18, related here Wednesday by a witness to the affair, was corroborated today by another spectator.

Seek Altmark Arbitration

By the Associated Press

Oslo, Feb. 23.—Authoritative sources said tonight Norway would propose to Britain that the Altmark incident be settled by arbitration if the two countries fail to agree shortly.

No details of the arbitration plan were disclosed pending further negotiations, but it was recalled that the Oslo newspaper Shipping Times had suggested that the matter be submitted to a tribunal headed by President Roosevelt.

The negotiations began immediately after the incident of February 16, when a British destroyer entered Norwegian territorial waters, cornered the Altmark in Gjosing Fjord and removed 299 British seamen which the Nazi vessel was taking to Germany as prisoners of war.

Six German sailors were killed in the clash, another died later in a hospital and an eighth is reported missing.

The principal stumbling block to closing the incident has been Norway's demand that Britain return the prisoners for internment in Norway and that she pay suitable compensation.

House Unit Approves Bill For Finn Aid

Banking Committee Amendment Permits Sale of Unarmed Planes

By International News Service

After a week's delay the House Banking and Currency Committee yesterday approved the Senate-passed bill to increase the Export-Import Bank's fund by $100,000,000 as a means of making possible a $20,000,000 loan to Finland.

At the same time the House Foreign Affairs Committee called a hearing for Tuesday on appropriation bills to buy foodstuffs for people in the German-occupied sections of Poland.

In another foreign affairs development a move to virtually force recall of the United States Ambassador to Moscow, Laurence A. Steinhardt, failed at a meeting of a Senate Appropriations subcommittee which completed its consideration of a bill carrying more than $100,000,000 for operation of the State, Commerce and Justice departments during the next fiscal year. On advice of Senator Pittman (Democrat), of Nevada, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, the subcommittee rejected a motion by Senator Lodge (Republican), of Massachusetts, to eliminate from the bill the $17,500 salary of the Ambassador.

Would Sell Unarmed Planes

Action on the Finn aid measure came after the committee had adopted, by a one-vote margin, 12 to 11, an amendment permitting Finland to use the loan funds for purchase of American-made commercial planes. The bill, as passed by the Senate, prohibits use of the money for purchase of any materials as designated on President Roosevelt's war materials list. Commercial planes were on that list.

The committee defeated, 20 to 4, amendments proposing $30,000,000 loans to Finland, and permitting use of the funds for war materials.

The bill is expected to be reported to the House for final action Monday or Tuesday.

Foreign Affairs Committee Chairman Bloom said assurances had been received by the State Department from Germany that food could be taken into the German-occupied sections of Poland. Several bills are pending, proposing appropriations of $10,000,000 to $20,000,000 to buy food for the people of Poland.

Lodge Assails Russia

Lodge said his seeking to omit funds for an Ambassador to Russia was motivated by a desire for an expression of disapproval of Russia's invasion of Finland and the Soviet's failure to live up to its obligations under treaties with the United States.

Pittman, told the subcommittee that an amendment dealing with foreign affairs was "out of place" in an appropriation measure.

The subcommittee is expected to place the appripriations bill before the full appropriations committee tomorrow for final approval.

An item of $1,250,000 for the anti-trust division of the Justice Department was raised by the subcommittee to $1,400,000; provision of $130,000 for salaries of advisers to Commerce Secretary Hopkins, eliminated by the House, was restored and an item of $20,000 for United States participation in the International Parliamenary Union was dropped.

Russians Advance At Cost of 3,000

munique, approximated two battalions—about 2,000 men—in one sector and 800 in another in the fighting on the isthmus.

[Russian infantry also tried to pierce the Finnish lines at Yla-Somme, 7 miles south of Viipuri, the United Press reported. Since Yla-Somme is 18 miles northeast of Koivisto, it appeared that the Russians at least have isolated the Koivisto fortress, whose capture they have claimed. Copenhagen dispatches reported Koivisto still holding out.

[The heroic Koivisto Island force continued to repulse all Russian threats across 1 and 2 miles of frozen water, the United Press dispatch said. It was reported at least 4,000 Russians had died rushing across this ice. Finnish artillery has fired over the Russians' heads breaking up the ice in rear of the advancing troops, making retreat impossible. Then machine-gun and rifle fire has mowed down the Soviets until they have been piled 3 feet high in some spots, the dispatch related.—Editor's note.]

The widened front and the indication of the slight Soviet advance toward Viipuri, together with the fact this was acknowledged by the Finns, might seem to present a highly serious picture for the defenders, but there were several additional factors weighing strongly in their favor.

These are:

The Finnish army is making the most of its man-made fortifications, aided by deep gullies between forested plateaus and along ice-crusted lakes through which a large army can penetrate only slowly. The Finnish retreat from frontal positions was calculated to save men; it was done slowly and, according to Finnish military sources, with loss of thousands of men to the Russians.

The Russians have advanced only a few miles against the Mannerheim Line, although their concentrated drive already is 23 days old and the Finns mentioned fighting in the Summa sector as far back as January 22. According to foreign military observers, there is no reason to believe the advance will be speeded up in the near future.

Should the Russians penetrate the Finnish line and capture Viipuri, the Russian army would gain a considerable advantage, but to reach Helsinki it would still have to drive through natural barriers of lakes by the hundreds and through a series of well-laid military fortifications.

Finnish military strategy appears to be to hold every position as long as possible without causing heavy Finnish losses, then to withdraw slightly, exacting from the enemy heavy tolls in dead and taking from them artillery and vast quantities of war materials.

The Finns are receiving some foreign help and although it is not now bringing the quantity of planes and men they would like there always is the prospect that great quantities of either or both would change the picture quickly.

Today's communique said that there was fighting in six regions yesterday on a 30-mile sector comprising the western half of the Karelian Isthmus and that all Russian attacks were beaten back.

WilsonRefused To Send Note On Bombings

Held It Was Not America's Concern, U. S. Papers Reveal

By the Associated Press

President Roosevelt's condemnation of aerial bombing of civilian populations, State Department documents showed yesterday, contrasts sharply with President Wilson's attitude during the World War.

Publication of the papers of Robert Lansing, Secretary of State under Wilson, disclosed that the latter refused to make formal protests against bombings of Antwerp and London by German dirigibles.

The farthest he would go was to drop a hint to the American Ambassador in Berlin to tell a German official personally of the bad impression such bombings produced on public opinion.

William Jennings Bryan, who preceded Lansing as Secretary of State, brought up the matter with Wilson in a letter saying:

"Should there be any protest—and if so, should it be based upon danger to Americans, or upon the broader ground that it is an improper method of warfare?"

Pleads Lack of Facts

Wilson replied:

"My present judgment is that we do not know in sufficient detail the actual facts and that we ought to be very slow to make formal protests, chiefly because we shall no doubt be called upon by every one of the belligerents before the fighting is over to do something of this kind and would be in danger of becoming chronic critics of what was going forward.

"I think the time for clearing up all these matters will come when the war is over and the nations gather in sober counsel again."

Wilson did send a message to Ambassador James Gerard in Berlin, saying:

"I venture with not a little hesitation to make this suggestion to you in confidence, that you see some member of the government . . . and say that nothing is making so unfavorable, not to say, fatal, an impression in this country as the dropping of bombs from airships upon cities elsewhere than upon fortifications, with no result except terror and the destruction of innocent lives."

British Envoy Complained

The following year the British Ambassador, Sir Cecil Spring Rice, complained to Lansing of the "indifference" of the American Government to the Zeppelin bombings of Lodon.

Wilson commented to Lansing in a note signed only "W. W.:"

"Of course we understand that the British government cannot defend our people or our embassy against these air raids; but we also understand, as Sir Cecil does not when he is under great excitement, that it is none of our business to protest against these methods of 'warfare,' no matter what our opinion of them may be."

President Roosevelt, on the other hand, sent a message last September at the outbreak of the European war to Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy and Poland appealing to each to affirm its determination to refrain from aerial bombing of civilian populations. He said that "the ruthless bombing from the air of civilians" in various parts of the world "has sickened the heart of every civilized man and woman and has profoundly shocked the conscience of mankind."

Marion Talley Wins Custody of Daughter

New York, Feb. 23 (INS).—Marion Talley, singer and film star, today won a final victory over her husband, Adolph Eckstrom, in their custody fight over their daughter, Susan, 5 years old.

The appellate division of the State Supreme Court unanimously denied Eckstrom's appeal from a decision of the late Justice Frankenthaller.

By terms of the decision Miss Talley is to have Susan nine months of the year and Buckstrom three months in the summer.

London Cheers Naval Heroes Who Beat Graf Spee

rines marched through the station court overlooked by the sculptured Britannia holding up the flaming torch trident.

Great crowds cheered them as they marched across Waterloo Bridge, through Parliament and Trafalgar squares, where Admiral Nelson stood and looked down on the column appraisingly.

In the Horse Guards parade the marchers formed a hollow square. There King George VI, in the uniform of the admiral of the fleet, distributed medals to those honored for especial bravery, while Queen Elizabeth, in blue, watched from a window in the admiralty.

As each man's name was called out for decoration, the crowd cheered, until at the end of the line came Mrs. Wilfred Russell, the widow of a marine who, with both arms shot off, cheered his comrades until he died. The crowd stood silently while Mrs. Russell, dressed all in black, received the medal her husband won, posthumously, and returned to her place in the enclosure for the relatives of the men who died in the Graf Spee engagement.

Medals Cover Table

The medals and decorations were piled up on a green covered table beside which the King stood with Churchill and Sir Dudley Pound, admiral of the fleet; the Duke of Kent in the uniform of a rear admiral, Premier Minister Chamberlain and members of his cabinet in top hats and morning coats.

An especial cheer went up for Churchill when he appeared from his private entrance to the admiralty. After the ceremony of awarding medals, Queen Elizabeth joined the King and stood at his side, as he returned the salute of the men, passing in review. Afterward both the King and Queen stopped and chatted with the families of those who died in action off Montevideo.

The parade of the men from the Ajax and Exeter was led through the city to ancient Guildhall, where it was entertained at luncheon by the Lord Mayor of London, Sir William Coxen. There amid the stained glass and fretted stone of historic memory, the men dined off the gold plated service used for the kings and queens of this and other lands. There the Lord Mayor in black and gold attended by sheriffs and city officers, proposed the toast to them. Although many famous pictures had been removed from the art gallery, the sword surrendered to Nelson by the French Admiral in 1798 still remained.

It fell to the lot of Captains F. S. Bell, of the Exeter, and C. H. L. Woodhouse of the Ajax to respond to the Lord Mayor's toast and they did it in the fashion of sailormen, saying they had merely done their duty the best they knew how.

Churchill Speaks

The guests of honor downed 500 pints of turtle soup; 300 pounds of salmon and 230 roast chickens, with peas, potatoes, one thousand desserts, gallons of coffee, pounds of cheese, 18 gallons of beer, and several gallons of red and white wines.

Then Churchill addressed them, expressing appreciation for their deeds but reminding them of their good fortune of being able to fight a decisive action while thousands of their comrades experienced only the routine drudgery of hunting submarines and carrying out patrols. More than 3,000 lives have been lost by the Navy, Churchill said, warning that heavier sacrifices were to come, but asserting that navy auxiliaries now numbered 1,700 ships with more coming all the time. He said:

"To the glorious action of the River Plate there recently added an epilogue—the rescue last week by the Cossack and her flotilla under the noses of the enemy amid the tangles of one-sided neutrality—the rescue of British captives taken by the sunken German raider.

"Their rescue at the very moment when those unhappy men were about to be delivered over to an indefinite German bondage, proves that the long arm of British sea power can stretch out not only for foes but also for faithful friends."

Concluding, the first lord declared the Royal Navy would carry on "until not only the cargoes by which we live, but the high purposes we have in hand, will all be brought safely into port."

Arctic Patrol BelievedAimed At Halting Iron

Soviet Press Denies Report Russians Bombed Swede Town

By Elmer W. Peterson
Associated Press Staff Writer

Copenhagen, Feb. 23.—Allied action in thrusting an arm of the blockade against Germany into the Arctic above Norway, Finland and Russia was interpreted here tonight as possibly aimed primarily at halting German transport of high-grade iron ore from Kirkenes.

Commerical circles said they believed a secondary motive was the blocking of any effort by German vessels which may be taking refuge in Murmansk, Russia's ice-free port in that region, to get back to Germany.

Scandinavians shrugged off rumors that the British intend to land troops and equipment in the Pessamo area on the grounds that weather, if no other factor, would be against such a procedure.

Both Norwegian and Swedish iron ore is loaded at Kirkenes, a modern little port with a good harbor.

Germans Use Narvik

Meanwhile, with Baltic Sea transport stopped by ice, Germans were reported busy shipping Swedish high-grade ore from Narvik, on the west coast of Norway. From Narvik German ships have the protection of Norwegian territorial waters, merging into Swedish and Danish waters en route to Germany.

The Oslo newspaper Arbaider Bladet, mouthpiece of the Norwegian government, asserted today in a stern editorial that "that big power which torpedoes our ships and murders our sailors while causing enormous financial loss to us has its ore boats plying along our coast.

"They have the right to navigate our coast according to present international law. We respect this law. Should not this respect for their ships from our side be of a certain value to those who steadily pursue our commercial ships?"

The same newspaper charged that submarine warfare had developed to "purest piracy."

The Norwegian Shipping Times, commenting in the same vein, asked whether it would not be a fair situation if deliveries to Germany from Norway were to be reduced by one loading each time the Germans sink a Norwegian ship?"

In Sweden, with public indignation unabated over Wednesday's bombing of Pajala, various youth organizations increased agitation for more volunteers to Finland.

Soviet Denies Bombing

Moscow, Feb. 23 (AP).—Tass, official Russian news agency, today published an authorized statement that "not a single Soviet airplane flew over Pajala Village or over Swedish territory in general" in denial of accounts of the bombing of that Swedish border town Wednesday.

It characterized as "a malicious fabrication" the report that "seven Soviet airplanes dropped ten Fougass and a great number of incendiary bombs on the Swedish village of Pajala, situated 5 miles from the Finnish frontier highway."

Swedes Await Reply

Stockholm, Feb. 23 (AP).—The Swedish foreign office, commenting on a denial by Tass that Russian planes had bombed Pajala, asserted tonight investigation showed definitely that the bombers were Russian.

The foreign office said that when the Swedish charge d'affaires called at the Kremlin yesterday to deliver a protest against the bombing, he was given an oral denial similar to the one carried today by Tass. No formal reply has been received from Moscow.

Italian Comment

Rome, Feb. 23.—The anti-Russian campaign unleashed by the British press and the reported presence of a British naval squadron between Kirkenes and Murmansk are seen by the Italians today as the beginning of a new war policy to intimidate Moscow and to cut off Russian supplies to Germany.

Church of the Week

Resurrection Lutheran to Mark Its First Year in Clarendon

Thriving ecclesiastical infant, the Resurrection Lutheran Church of Clarendon, Va., will celebrate its first birthday on March 31—near a new congregational-built altar.

MR. DUCKER

When first services were held on April 2, 1939, the only altar available was a makeshift affair consisting of a sheet-covered wooden crate. The only meeting place was a vacant storeroom at 3008 Wilson boulevard, where they still worship.

"No sooner said than done" was how the Rev. William J. Ducker, pastor-in-charge, described the action of his congregation when he voiced the need of a more presentable-looking altar.

Under the leadership of A. M. Ballentine, who has since moved from that section, men of the church got busy. J. F. Wacker donated material, which he and others fashioned into an altar during several weeks of spare time. They were J. F. Wacker, jr., and Thomas Wacker, the donor's sons; J. B. Billheimer and Stanley E. Bjork. The pastor obtained green-dyed burlap for use as a reredos (altar screens).

Field representative of the Board of American Missions of the United Lutheran Church, the clergyman said yesterday an official church council will be elected on Easter Sunday—March 24—and installed on March 31, nearest Sunday to the formal anniversary date.

The present council includes George P. Grove, formerly of the local Incarnation Lutheran Church, president; Mr. Billheimer, vice president; Richard Pitts, former Incarnation member; J. P. Wacker, jr., Norman S. Kerns and Mr. Bjork.

Mr. Billheimer's father is Dr. Stanley Billheimer, pastor of a Lutheran congregation in Palmyra, Pa., and former pastor of Georgetown Lutheran Church. Incidentally, the Ladies' Aid Society of the latter church helped provide equipment for the sanctuary. Resurrection Church women gave altar cloths.

Women's work is carried on under the supervision of Mrs. E. J. Hoagland, president; Mrs. J. B. Wacker, vice president; Mrs. Stanley E. Bjork, secretary, and Mrs. Billheimer, treasurer. Miss Carolyn Ducker, the pastor's sister, and teacher at the Thomas Nelson Page School, leads the junior department of the Sunday school and plays the piano for services.

The Rev. Mr. Ducker, whose work will be turned over to a permanent pastor when the congregation is sufficiently organized, is temporarily in charge of the Sunday school. Assisting him are Mrs. Norman S. Kerns, beginners; Miss Dorothy Norman, primary, and Norman Kerns, adults.

While the congregation is affiliated with the Virginia Synod, it has played a prominent role in Lutheran work in the entire Washington-Virginia area, contributing heavily to the Lutheran Inner Mission roll-call which just ended. Twenty-six members last Sunday turned in $55 toward the Nationwide Lutheran appeal for Finnish war relief. The charter-membership roll will close on Easter.

The pastor yesterday expressed the hope that a permanent structure could be built in the near future, probably on the Washington boulevard between the Peace Cross at Clarendon business section and the Washington-Lee High School.

Midweek services are being held during Lent on Wednesdays at 8 p. m., with the Rev. Mr. Ducker preaching on the general theme of "The Truth of the Faith." His sermon theme for tomorrow's 11 a. m. service will be "The Queen of Holiness." Sunday school will meet at 9:30 a. m.

Holy Week services will be held daily at 8 p. m., the pastor speaking on "The Message of the Cross." Candlelight communion is planned for Holy Thursday. The pastor will be among the clergymen addressing the three-hour Good Friday rites at St. George's Protestant Episcopal Church.

He received his education at the Lutheran Theological Seminary in Columbia, S. C., and in Newbury College in that State. His first pastorate was in Elloree, S. C., and later served a missionary parish in Macon, Ga. Unmarried, he resides with his mother, Mrs. C. L. Ducker, and sister, Carolyn, at 522 Cleveland street.

St. Paul's to Be Host to Union Rites

St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Connecticut avenue and Everett street northwest, will be host to two union Lenten services next week.

Washington Lutheran congregations will meet there on Monday at 8 p. m. for their weekly Lenten program, for which the Rev. J. D. Baker, D. D., of York, Pa., will be speaker. Chevy Chase Protestant churches will have their union rites on Thursday at 8 p. m., Dr. N. J. Gould Wickey religious education official of the United Lutheran Church, bringing the message. Dr. Henry W. Snyder, pastor, will preach tomorrow at 11 a. m. on "The Passion in Prophecy."

Grace. Following sister-Lutheran churches throughout America, the congregation will continue its appeals for contributions to the $500,000 Finnish War Relief Drive. Dr. Gerhard E. Lenski's 11 a. m. sermon theme will be "Following the Road Called Decision."

Reformation. Dr. Oscar F. Blackwelder tomorrow at 8 p. m. will continue his sermon series on "Intimate Glimpses of Ourselves" by discussing "Why Some of Us Never Grow Up." He will preach at 11 a. m. on "The Cross of Christ and the Crosses of Men." The Rev. Ralph W. Loew, assistant pastor, will have as his theme for the 8:30 Matin rites, "The Reason for Living."

Luther Place. In another of his sermon series on the Ten Commandments, Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen will preach tomorrow at 11 a. m. on "Thou Shalt Not Steal."

Atonement. Dr. Howard E. Snyder, pastor, will speak at 11 a. m. on "The Persons of Christ" and the Rev. James T. Powers, assistant pastor, at 8 p. m. on "Modern Parables."

St. Stephen's. The Young People's Luther League will hold a fellowship tea at 6 p. m. tomorrow at the home of the pastor, the Rev. Sam H. Kornmann, 1516 Hamline street northeast.

St. Marks. "He Went a Little Farther" has been selected as the Rev. J. Luther Frantz's sermon theme for tomorrow at 11 a. m.

Georgetown. "A Woman's Voice in the Crowd" will be the Rev. Harold E. Beatty's sermon topic for tomorrow at 11 a. m.

Takoma. The Rev. Henry Einspruch, pastor of the Hebrew Lutheran Church, Baltimore, will address the Luther League of the congregation tomorrow at 6:30 p. m. Vincent Gingerich is president. The Rev. J. Adrian Pfeiffer, pastor, will speak at 11 a. m. on "Jesus' Credentials."

Presbyterian Sermon to Be On 'Prayer'

Dr. Arthur H. Limouze To Talk Tomorrow At N. Y. Avenue Church

Dr. Arthur H. Limouze, secretary of promotion of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, will preach tomorrow at 11 a. m. at New York Avenue Presbyterian Church on "Concerning Prayer." His evening message will be "Taking a Chance."

Metropolitan. "Be Still—and Live" is the subject to be discussed tomorrow at 11 a. m. by Dr. J. Lowrey Fendrich. His evening theme will be "The Secret Place."

Chevy Chase. "Seeing With Two Eyes" will be discussed tomorrow at 11 a. m. by Dr. J. Hillman Hollister.

Gunton-Temple Memorial. Dr. Bernard K. Braskamp will continue his series of sermons on "The Highland Life," preaching tomorrow at 11 a. m. on "Christ's Temptations and Ours."

Westminster Memorial. "What Does the Church Do For Us?" will be the Rev. Harry V. Porter's sermon theme for tomorrow at 11 a. m. The cottage prayer meeting will be held on Thursday night at 8 p. m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Huber, Army War College.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Friday Morning Music Club presents "The Avon Sings in England" in Barker Hall. Program of English songs and dances. Participants: Florence Howard, speaker; Elizabeth Everett and Frances Tucker, singers; Lois Abernethy and Willa Semple, pianists; Gene Gowing, Louise Haskin, Sally Jones and Buddy Fredericks, dancers.

With Florence Howard as Cicerone, members and guests of the Friday Morning Music Club made an imaginary tour of England yesterday. It was Mrs. Howard's good fortune to spend several weeks in that country last summer visiting various musical and dramatic festivals, and her informal narration of delightful experiences was the thread upon which she arranged a program which began with the playing of Percy Grainger's "Country Gardens" and ended with the singing of Henry Purcell's "Let Us Wander."

Mrs. Howard took her hearers in fancy to Stratford-on-Avon, Tewkesbury and Winchester; to the home of Arnold Dolmetsch and the Haslemere Festival, and to the quiet quadrangles of Oxford. There were interludes of songs by Elizabeth Everett and Frances Tucker, and English folk dances by Gene Gowing, Louise Haskin, Sally Jones and Buddy Fredericks in appropriate costume.

Included in the enjoyable program were Thomas Morley's setting of "It Was a Lover and His Lass;" Armstrong Gibbs' "Ann's Cradle Song" and "Five Eyes;" Dolmetsch's harmonizations of four old English songs—"The Angler's Song," "My Lytell Pretty One," "Gather Ye Rosebuds" and "Have You Seen But a White Lily Grow"—Michael Head's "Slumber Song of the Madonna" and "The Piper," and Purcell's "Awake My Love."

Rowland Roberts conducts the WPA Chamber Orchestra Friday night in the Washington College of Music. Program of American compositions by Gottschalk, MacDowell, Hadley, Powell, Stringfield and Gershwin.

Washington's first participation in a WPA Festival of American Music closed last evening with a chamber orchestra concert in the Washington College of Music, under the direction of Rowland Roberts, State supervisor of the music unit of the community service section. Preceding events were a concert of Negro spirituals by the Glendale Community Chorus on Wednesday night and a program of American popular music played by a dance orchestra, under the direction of Robert Merchant, on Thursday night.

Limited by the small size of his orchestra to a narrow choice among compositions, Mr. Roberts managed to arrange an interesting program which covered a considerable chronological range. He began with Quinto Maganini's transcription of "The Banjo" by Louis Moreau Gottschalk, America's first matipeeidol pianist. Few people can remember having heard Gottschalk play, for he died in 1869 while on a South American tour, but his popularity was so sensational that he was able to give 80 recitals in New York alone in a single season.

Edward MacDowell was represented, not by any of his orchestral works, but by transcriptions of piano pieces: the "Scotch Poem" and four of the "Woodland Sketches." For the purposes of the occasion these were excellent selections, and the audience approved them highly. The late Henry Kimball Hadley had his place on the program with four numbers from "The Atonement of Pan," the 1912 Grove Play of the Bohemian Club in California. This music illustrated Hadleys facility in graceful descriptive writing.

Other items of the evening were three excerpts from John Powell's suite, "At the Fair;" Lamar Stringfield's "Cripple Creek" from his "Southern Mountains" suite, and selections from George Gershwin's "Of Thee I Sing." To his duties as conductor Mr. Roberts added that of a commentator on the composers, his remarks being well chosen and informative.

Baptists Plan Two Weeks' Revival Service

Coast Evangelists To Launch Program At Metropolitan

A two-week revival service will be launched tomorrow at the Metropolitan Baptist Church, with Miss Amy Lee Stockton and Miss Rita Gould, evangelists from San Jose, Calif., in charge. It will mark their twelfth appearance at Metropolitan Church.

Miss Stockton will preach at 11 a. m. on "Today's Task and Tomorrow's Triumph" and Miss Gould will sing. Miss Gould will lead an inspirational song service at 8 p. m., and Miss Stockton will preach on "The World Crisis and Christ."

Fifth. "The Christian's Estate" and "The Conversion of an Army Officer" will be Dr. John E. Briggs' sermon themes for tomorrow.

Chevy Chase. Continuing his sermons on "Jesus and Our Needs Today," the Rev. Edward O. Clark will discuss "Jesus and Our Inner Peace" at 11 a. m. Echoes from the recent Baptist Convocation will be heard at the 8 p. m. rites.

West Washington. The Rev. Charles B. Austin will discuss "A Revival of Vital Religion" at 11 a. m. tomorrow, and "Living the Christian Life Today" at 8 p. m. A "Month Publicity Crusade" is being planned for March. "March to Church in March" will be the slogan.

Takoma Park. The Men's Bible class will stage its annual banquet this Wednesday night, with Prof. R. J. Seeger, of the George Washington University faculty, as main speaker. "Keeping Oneself Unspotted from the World" and "Something Better Ahead" will be the Rev. William E. La Rue's sermon subjects for tomorrow.

Calvary. The Rev. Edwin H. Tuller, assistant pastor, will speak tomorrow at 8 p. m. on "Vitality in Religion." Dr. W. S. Abernethy's 11 a. m. sermon theme will be "The Badge of the Christian Church."

First. Concluding his sermon on "Planning Marriages That Last," Dr. Edward Hughes Pruden will preach tomorrow at 8 p. m. on "Building an Altar." His morning theme will be "The Rains Came."

Second (colored). "Youth Day" will be observed tomorrow, the Rev. Merrill D. Brooker, of Jersey City, being guest speaker at 11 a. m.

"LEAD KINDLY LIGHT"
. . . JOHN H. NEWMAN . . .
Lead, kindly Light, amid th' encircling gloom,
Lead thou me on.
The night is dark, and I am far from home;
Lead thou me on.
Keep Thou my feet; I do not ask to see
The distant scene; one step enough for me.
Little Stories of GREAT HYMNS
In 1833, Newman was forced by illness to leave his pastorate. He went to Rome, but assailed by political and religious worries, started back to England. Fog delayed the ship, and in this enforced quiet, Newman found the peace so beautifully expressed in this prayer-hymn that has brought serenity to the perplexed for generations.

Frank S. Easby-Smith Seriously Wounded By .22-Caliber Bullet

Frank S. Easby-Smith, 40, attorney and member of a prominent Washington family, shot and seriously wounded himself in the abdomen yesterday while cleaning a 22-caliber automatic rifle in the basement and game room of his home at 4944 Lowell street northwest.

Easby-Smith was discovered by his chauffeur, according to police. A maid, who was the only person at home at the time of the shooting, told police she had heard no report. The shooting was accidental, police said. A couple of other freshly oiled rifles and steel wool were in the game room.

First aid was administered by Dr. Fred Guyer, of 4946 Lowell street northwest, and by Dr. John Brennan, of 4940 Lowell street northwest, who were called in by the servants. The wounded man later was removed to Emergency Hospital.

His wife, Mrs. Mildred Easby-Smith, was absent from home at the time as were his two children, Julia, 13, and John W. Easby-Smith, jr., 16.

He is the son of Col. John S. Easby-Smith, noted lawyer, famous classical-author, and recipient of the Distinguished Service Medal for his service in the World War as an administrator of the Selective Service Law in the oce of the Provost Marshal General. Col. Easby-Smith was prominent in the teaching and practice of law in Washington.

The injured man's law office is in Stoneleigh Court.

Nazi Refugee Ruled Suicide

Baltimore, Feb. 23 (AP).—Dr. W. P. E. Wyse, Baltimore County medical officer, tonight pronounced the death of Dr. Karl Duncker, psychology instructor at Swarthmore Pa., College, a suicide.

Duncker, 37, who fled Nazi Germany in 1938, was found dead in an automobile at Fullerton, Md., with a bullet wound in his head.

A pistol was lying beside the body and a note addressed "Dear mother" said there was no incentive for him to "get well again."

Hias of Washington Collects $2,000 in Week for Refugees

Society Is Seeking Fund to Bring Those Interned in French Camps, Because of War, to New Havens

The Washington Hias—Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society—has raised $2,000 in the first week of its drive for a transportation fund for German and Austrian refugees interned because of the war in French concentration camps, it was announced last night.

According to Dr. Rudolph Kornblith, directing the Washington campaign, Hias representatives have been allowed to visit the concentration camps in France and select those refugees who have an opportunity to obtain visas to United States and South American countries.

Jewish congregations in the city will assign a day of the coming Passover holidays for an appeal on behalf of the Hias, Dr. Kornblith said.

The following committee is cooperating in the campaign: Joseph A. Wilner, chairman; Morris Cafritz, Joseph Cherner, Bernard Danzansky, Morris Garfinckle, Rabbi Norman Gerstenfeld, Paul Himmelfarb, Isidore Hershfield, E. I. Kaufmann, Louis Karp, the Rev. M. H. French Deputies Flay Propaganda, Censorship Chiefs

By P. J. Philip

Copyright by New York Times

Paris, Feb. 23.—Some very frank speaking marked the continued debate today in the Chamber of Deputies on the censorship and information propaganda services. Propaganda came in for the hardest blows.

Germany, said Deputy Gaston Gerard, had issued 21 propaganda films between September and January while France issued only two.

He also criticized France's cheese advertising campaign in the United States as ridiculous. French propaganda should aim higher than the popularization of cheese, he said.

French radio news and comment he characterized, as boring, and utterly without system, while the musical and other programs were even more mediocre than before the war. He put the responsibility on the commissariat for information.

Kipling Again On Screen

Capitol's 'The Light That Failed' Leaves That Strange Feeling

Competition Is Great But Picture Belongs To Colman; Regan Headlines Stage

By Gerald G. Gross
Substituting for Nelson B Bell.

Hollywood can produce sensitive, delicately wrought pictures when it has a mind to, pictures the full appreciation of which may turn on an abstract bit of dialogue or a symbolic photographic shot, but whether it pays to do so is still a moot question.

"The Light That Failed" is such a picture. Endowed with the artistic finesse of Ronald Colman, who can do no wrong; an uninvolved story with great human appeal, and the skilled producing-directing hand of William A. Wellman, it yet leaves one with the feeling—well, that between type and film, the former mode of expression still works out better in many instances.

Perhaps this impression is the result of conditioning to the knock-down-drag-out school of movie making. Whatever the cause, an honest appraisal calls for the opinion that "The Light That Failed" is not as great as the sum of its parts.

Admirers of the Kipling novel about the gallant Englishman who was stricken blind at the peak of his art career may be assured, in any event, that the picture is faithful to the book. The ending is quite unhappy, in the popular sense. Few liberties, if any, have been taken with the characters, if memory does not play false. Withal there remains that disquieting feeling which lingers even after allowances are made for such technical faults as occasionally disjointed sequences and several lengthy periods of inaction.

Colman, as Dick Heldar, is a British war correspondent in the Sudan who returns to London to paint after suffering a head injury from a tribesman's saber. He would marry his childhood sweetheart but she, having her own ambitions as an artist, puts him aside.

One day into the studio apartment of Colman and his best friend, Torpenhow (Walter Huston) strays a girl of the streets (Ida Lupino). Her hellish countenance intrigues Heldar and she reluctantly consents to sit for a portrait. Then, enraged because the artist interferes with her attempted captivation of Torpenhow, she destroys the finished canvas. Blindness strikes Heldar, however, before he can view the result of her fury.

Heldar declines the pity of Maisie (Muriel Angelus), the girl he loved, and, on learning from Bessie (Miss Lupino) herself of the irreparable damage she has done, he returns to the desert to be slain in a cavalry charge.

Huston, Miss Lupino and Miss Angelus, as well as Dudley Digges and Ernest Cossart, in chief support, give excellent performances but the picture belongs to Colman, and that is not forgetting the stirring battle sequences or the Wellman direction. His is a difficult acting job and he carries it out handsomely.

On the stage, Phil Regan is back singing "My Wild Irish Rose," "Night and Day" and other favorites. The Lathrop Brothers and Virginia Lee present a smart dance routine. Frankie Conville is the bill's comedian. Jeanne Devereaux, ballerina, does a pleasing number with the Rhythm Rockets and Arthur LeFleur, "the human top," revolves by his teeth until you wonder why the centrifugal force doesn't make him burst.

The best ear entertainment on the bill, however, is composed of Art Brown's organlogue, in which the audience sopranos join in on "The Little Red Fox" and the bassos on "Asleep in the Deep," and the overture conducted by Morgan Baer which presents a novel arrangement of "Lover, Come Back to Me."

Lot of Women

An abundance of feminine appeal graces Joe Penner's latest mirthquake, "Millionaire Playboy." Lovely Linda Hayes is the leading lady and 12 beautiful young players appear as "hotel guests" in the picture.

Actor's Son Acts, Too

Guy Kingsford, son of Walter Kingsford, will be seen in "Jackpot."

provides something sweet and fresh to look at in "Geronimo" between sequences of hard riding and Indian whooping in the picture now playing at the Metropolitan

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, Feb. 23.

JOHN GARFIELD who is looked upon with disdain by his former Group Theater colleagues—because he succumbed to the blandishments of Hollywood gold—went to the Group office yesterday to visit The Actors . . . Philip Loeb stared at the prodigal Garfield, and pointed to the film star's rich raiment. "Look at him," said Loeb, contemptuously. "The Hollywood actor with his $175 suit" . . . "Just a minute," Garfield protested, eagerly, "I never spend more than $35 for a suit" . . . Loeb ignored this penitent touch. "Then look at him," he stated. "The Hollywood actor—making all that big dough—and spending only $35 for a suit."

ROBERT IRWIN, the sculptor who received a life-sentence for the Gedeon murders, is not expected to live much longer. He's tubercular . . . Gypsy Rose Lee has been snowbound for four days, at Highland Mills, N. Y. She'll dig out only to perform at benefit shows . . . One of America's best known porno-realistic writers lunched at the Algonquin yesterday, and complained to Frank Case: "I feel terrible. I'm sick to my stomach." And Case, solicitous, asked: "Was it something you wrote?" . . . George Abbott, who will produce "Too Many Girls" for R. K. O., won't use the cast of the current Broadway production. It will be directed by Garson Kanin, who once was Abbott's assistant.

AN UNCENSORED REPORT from London Tuesday revealed this detail of the British raid on Borkum, the most successful air-raid of the war, during which many Nazi seaplanes were destroyed . . . The commanding officer in that raid was Max Aitken, son of Lord Beaverbrook, the publisher of the London Daily Express . . . The raid was directed by three superior officers for the Air Ministry—three men who had worked as sub-editors on the London Express.

TED LEWIS is telling the story of a vaudevillian who approached a banker and applied for a loan . . . The banker examined the applicant's record, and rejected him. "But I'll grant the loan," he challenged, "if you can tell me which one of my eyes is the glass one" . . . The vaudevillian stared at him, and said, with great assurance: "The left one" . . . "Correct," replied the banker. "How could you tell?" . . . "It was easy," confessed the actor. "It's the eye that looked more sympathetic."

GOV. LEHMAN has assured the small-loan companies that if the bill governing their interest-rates isn't passed, he'll have another bill introduced calling for an investigation of these companies . . . John Houseman, associate of Orson Welles, flew to Hollywood to join him there in connection with the Welles film projects. But Orson arrived here Tuesday—his fortieth transcontinental trip within the last three months.

EDWARD CHODOROV, now at MGM, worked for Sam Goldwyn until the producer wanted him to write the screen-play for a movie called "Splendor" . . . Chodorov insisted that he didn't like the story, that he wouldn't do it, and that the picture never should be made. . . . Goldwyn therefore discharged him, produced the picture—and it flopped . . . A long time thereafter, Goldwyn, preparing to produce another film, summoned his scenario editor and asked for the names of available writers. One of the names mentioned was Chodorov. . . . "I don't want him," the producer fumed. "He was associated with one of my biggest failures."

LAURENCE OLIVIER, rehearsing for his road tour with Vivien Leigh in "Romeo and Juliet," received a newspaper clipping from Bob Ross, who will direct the show. The clipping, from a Southern paper, announced a showing of "Wuthering Heights," and billed Olivier as "Mr. Scarlett O'Hara" . . . "Maybe I'll keep that billing, for our tour," Olivier told Miss Leigh . . . "If you do, my dear," his fiancee replied, "then you must bill me as "Mrs. Heathcliffe.'"

Columbia

Although the significance of the title escaped us when we viewed "Remember the Night" yesterday, we came away thoroughly satisfied that the picture is, indeed, worthy of a second run on F street. It is a somewhat garbled little piece, running the gamut of comedy of the ilk of "It Happened One Night," to very tense courtroom drama, and with an ending too grim, we thought, for a motion picture that is 90 per cent comedy, but nevertheless "Remember the Night" rises above its plot and offers a very pleasant hour of entertainment.

Our heroine, it seems, is a shoplifter. Not an ordinary shoplifter, but one of those shady ladies who only lifts from the best of shops. She meets the hero, a Mr. Dewey type of D. A., who has "never lost a case," in court, where she is on trial for the theft of an umpteen-carat bracelet. The district attorney sees that it's Christmas time and his fair victim is a cinch to win acquittal from the jury, imbued, as it is, with good will toward men, so he wisely wins a postponement of the trial until after the holidays.

He then does an about-face, posts bond for the lady and whips off to Indiana with her for the vacation. From this point the picture goes berserk, presenting some of the most hilarious sequences the screen has ever recorded, with actors, director and audience all having a marvelous time.

In the starring roles, Fred MacMurray, who is also on view at the Earle this week, and Barbara Stanwyck acquit themselves admirably. Mr. MacMurray is as convincing a Hoosier and rising young lawyer as we've ever seen, and Miss Stanwyck rises to every mood the moody play presents. But it is to the minor players, we thought that belong the laurels, for "Remember the Night" would have fallen far short of its success in less capable hands than Elizabeth Patterson, Sterling Holloway, Beulah Bondi, and "Snowflake."

Rounding out the program at the Columbia are a Krazy Kat cartoon that is not as funny as it might be, a technicolor short depicting an interesting incident in the life of Mendelssohn, and latest M. G. M. newsreel.

Brennan Ready To Collapse as Work Piles On

'I'm Just Plain Punch Drunk,' 40-Year-Old Octogenarian Asserts

By Frederick C. Othman
United Press Hollywood Correspondent

Hollywood, Feb. 23 (U.P.).—Walter Brennan, who functions as a kind of de luxe peon for Sam Goldwyn, Inc., Ltd., reported today that he'd acted in so many movies lately he's punch drunk.

Since Christmas, 1937, the 40-year-old Brennan, who removes his teeth and specializes in 80-year-old parts, has been in one picture after another, with no time off, except for a few days between roles to learn lines and get wardrobe fittings.

"And I'm just plain punch drunk," he said. 'I can't eat and yet I had to gain 20 pounds to play in my last one. And I can't sleep except when I shouldn't. "I got up this morning at five, as usual, for my regular call, and got dressed. So when the call came at 5:30, it said I didn't have to show at the studio until eight. "I just dropped down to the sofa and when my wife came down later she found me snoring, with my hat and overcoat on."

In boss hostler make-up of the kind that disguised him so even Mrs. B. couldn't have recognized him, Walter was telling his troubles on stage 14 at Twentieth Century Fox, where he was appearing in the color picture, Maryland." With Fay Bainter, Charles Ruggles, Brenda Joyce, John Payne and Marjorie Weaver.

Brennan was interrupted by his agent, Phil Berg, who walked onto the set full of enthusiasm and plans for Brennan to act immediately in a film at R.-K.-O.

Usually when an actor's 10-per-center finds him a job he gets a pat on the back and a drink of good rye whisky.

"I just can't do it," Brennan said. "Tell 'em thanks, but that I'm slap happy. I've got to get some rest."

In the last two years Brennan has appeared in major roles in such picures as "The Texan," "Mother Cary's Chickens," "The Cowboy and The Lady," "Kentucky," "Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Castle," "Stanley and Livingston," "They Shall Have Music," "Northwest Passage," "The Turps Call on The President," "The Westerner," and "Maryland."

Only three of these pictures were made by Goldwyn, who pays Brennan a four-figure salary. All the others were manufactured by other studios ,to whom Brennan was loaned, like a baseball player, or a salaried slave.

Howard

A group of Sterling Sepia stars unveil colorful entertainment wares for a week's display behind the footlights of the Howard theater, this week. Les Hite with his group of California music makers, head the stage show, making his Washington debut a gala one.

Prominently studded with his own compositions, "Board Meeting," "It Must Have Been a Dream' and "I Love My Baby," Hite leads his boys through their musical paces, reaching their climax with Gershwin's "Taint Necessarily So." His featured singer, Teabone Walker, proved a show stopper with "Evening' and Toni Anthony, band's songstress, pleased with "Dreams."

Highlights of the supporting bill were the Miller Brothers and Lois, new combination of an old favorite dance team, who are still tops in taps. After a two month stay at this T street show shop, Comedian Johnny Mason with Johnnie Viegel, straight man, in their graveyard bit solidly convince patrons that they are this theater's all-time fun favorites.

Other performers of note are the Lang Sisters, a pair of talented tapsters; Elma Turner, peppy soubrette, and the Addison Carey chorines, well drilled in their rapid-fire routines.

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, Feb. 23 (INS).—Put down the name of Betty Field in your little red book as a 1940 star—for Paramount is really going to town for this youngster who was outstanding both in "Of Mice and Men" and "Seventeen." I congratulate Paramount for their wisdom in not labeling her with tricky "glamour" titles for she plays both serious and comedy roles. And now for the first step Para is taking to make her a star: They've just bought "The Duchess Rides High" for Betty and Fred MacMurray—a new play by C. Coates Webster which is so good Para will "angel" it on Broadway before the picture starts.

In the meantime Betty is having a successful fling on the stage herself in "The Male Animal" in New York. Warners were very anxious to get her for the movie version which they will make—but Para said "No" because they have no intention of farming out their new star bet.

Joanne Benedict, the 15-year-old girl who got herself both in this column and in the news section when she sold her scenario "Joan of Arc," to Columbia, was tested today. She is an amazing little girl who lives on a cattle ranch in Hanford, Calif., with her family, but she is so talented that Sam Briskin believes he may have another Orson Welles in embryo, so he tested her for the lead in her own story. Joanne is not a beautiful girl, but she is an attractive child with titian hair and a charm that is more potent than mere beauty. It will really be something if she makes the grade in her own story.

Not so long ago we were writing pieces for the paper that Olivia de Havilland and Jimmie Stewart were a Hollywood towsome. Then Olivia started going places with Tim Durant and Jimmie, who is one of Hollywood's most popular and best-liked bachelors, had dates with other girls. Even so the interest in these two young people is still strong. Well, although Olivia is on suspension from Warners and will not be called back until after "Flight Eight" is finished, it wouldn't surprise me if she is teamed with Jimmie Stewart in "Honeymoon For Three," the movie in which he is to star for Warners. I hear on good authority that Olivia would gladly accept that role, but so far Warners are not admitting any plans for her.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Eddie Albert's new heart-throb is Beverly Holden. Looks as if Don Alvarado made a mistake when he loaned Eddie his girl and his dress suit for the Warner party; a new argument is on between Samuel Goldwyn and Zorina. She wants to be free to go into Irving Berlin's musical but so far Sam, who holds her contract, says no; Norma Shearer, who owns stock in Selznick International will come in for some of the gravy on "Gone With the Wind;" John Ford, who hasn't been to one of his premieres for 12 years, will attend the "Grapes of Wrath" shindig.

The Darryl Zanucks are entertaining with a supper party at Ciro's after the premiere; Bob Hope's sixth anniversary gift to his wife is a diamond cross and hers to him Gladstone bags; all the little girls Joan Bennett invited to her daughter Diane's birthday party were very excited over meeting Shirley Temple, who was a guest; George Montgomery, the new Twentieth Century-Fox heartbeat, is bringing his whole family of 14 to Hollywood for a visit; are Loretta Young and Tom Lewis becoming a habit?

June Preisser choo-choos to New Orleans to meet a new sister-in-law; Perc Westmore gets his final citizenship papers March 15; Mrs. Allan Dwan hosted a luncheon at the Tailwaggers party at Ciro's taking her guests later to Perino's opening. Mrs. David Butler, who is well again after a long siege with rheumatism, was in Marie's party which carried on from luncheon until dinner time. The Tailwaggers are giving an academy award at the Grace Hays Lodge Sunday for the best canine in movies.

Asta, Daisy and all the rest are expected to be contenders. I had a lump in my throat when I saw a gorgeous Seeing Eye dog furnished by the Tailwaggers safely lead a blind man to his automobile.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

In Hollywood

Hollywood, Feb. 23.

Secretary of Labor, Mme. Perkins, had never been on a motion picture set before she came to Hollywood. She lunched at Metro with Jimmmy Roosevelt, Eddie Mannix, and was taken throughout the lot, asking very intelligent questions about the industry, labor, and was surprised at the magnitude of our business. She was fascinated by Spencer Tracy playing Thomas Edison, and watched him duplicate the first phonograph record Edison ever made. And this is what he said: "Hello, hello, Mary had a little lamb. Its fleece was white as snow, and everywhere that Mary went the lamb was sure to go. Ha, ha, ha!" And when it played back I'm sure Edison was no more surprised than was Mme. Perkins. I must say she charmed everyone with her graciousness.

HOPPER

Speaking of Edison reminds me of a story told by Norman Taurog, who directed "Edison the Boy." Before they started the picture, Mickey Rooney said to him: "Please don't let me mug. Give me a good sound slap if I overdo lines of action."

Judy Garland was so upset over the news about Artie Shaw's marriage she could scarcely get through her song on the air that night. Everyone will tell you that Artie is difficult. Well, the trouble with Artie is, he aims at perfection. Once when he had a swell job as a clarinetist, he didn't like the music, so walked out and went to work for the WPA. Gave up his orchestra for the same reason, doesn't like hot swing, but he's forming a band of 100 pieces to play sweet and semi-classical music and expects to tour the country from coast-to-coast.

Now that "Pinocchio" is well launched, Walt Disney is enthusiastic about "The Sorcerer's Apprentice." He separated, while recording, many of the phrases in "The Fire Bird" so they would blend better with the animation, and recorded different instruments separately, then pieced the various sound tracks together, making a full symphony tone. The music alone cost him $450,000. When Stravinsky, who composed it, was here not long ago, he played it for him. Composer was a little startled at what they'd done with his music, and asked why. Said Walt, "Well, you see, it's better for my animators this way."

Which is just what Orson Welles did with scenes for "Dinner at Eight." Watching Orson do a radio play is the best show in town. He's like a little boy, and could have invented the phrase "perpetual motion." Keeps three secretaries hopping, can imitate anybody, and does at the drop of the hat.

Sinclair Lewis, who's crazy to act, hopes if Woollcott is out of "The Man Who Came to Dinner" he'll get to do it, but Moss Hart, who'd also like to act, is hanging around for the job.

Phyllis Brooks invited Jimmy Stewart to the Hal Roach party in order to impress her former boy friend, Cary Grant, with a grand entrance and was disappointed when she found Cary was not there. Sure, they left early.

Movie Stars Try Not to Be Themselves

Acting natural is essential, but that's not the same as being yourself to an actor or actress. Most of them play parts entirely different from their real selves. Want to meet Bogart, Sheridan, Blondell, Lamour as they really are? Read Lucie Neville's Sunday Post article.

War Or Sniping?

A group of 24 Representatives, 20 of whom are Democrats, have extended an invitation to their colleagues to join them in an "incessant war on unemployment." The hostilities, it appears, will be formally opened at a conference on Monday.

The prospective campaign is said to be wholly without political intent. But in some quarters the move is regarded as an effort to focus public attention upon domestic issues and to subordinate the "distraction" of the European war.

It would, of course, be wholly illogical to approach domestic unemployment as a question having no connection with international dislocations. But if the scope of the problem is not underestimated it is certainly desirable to call continuous public attention to the Nation's number one economic problem. A multitude of faulty panaceas has to some extent obscured the fact that no effective plan has yet been devised by the Government for the abatement of abnormal unemployment.

There is a slightly ominous sound about the remark of one of the participating Congressmen who hopes the forthcoming meeting will focus attention on the necessity of expanding the CCC program. The public, he says, does not realize "the seriousness of the slash in the budget." If the conferees assemble with the belief that the unemployment can be permanently mitigated by increased Government spending, their deliberations may easily do more harm than good.

The Temporary National Economic Committee, which has been taking expert testimony for months, must by this time have acquired much useful information about the nature of the present-day deterrents to industrial expansion. As any fundamental solution of our unemployment problem undoubtedly lies in the stimulation of private investment in ways calculated to create new jobs in new industries, the House group might to advantage confer with members of that committee before committing themselves to a program of action.

Interview With Hitler

There is nothing surprising in the report from Berlin that arrangements are being completed for a conference between Herr Hitler and Mr. Sumner Welles in the German capital next week. There would have been more news, according to accepted definitions of the word, if the Fuehrer had refused an audience to the Undersecretary of State during the latter's visit to the Reich.

No official definition has been given to the mission on which Mr. Welles, together with Pierrepont Moffat, chief of the division of European affairs in the Department of State, is now embarked. But it is surmised that the general purpose of their trip is to sound out official opinion on war objectives as viewed from the major capitals of western Europe. If the various viewpoints collected by the American envoys are not completely irreconcilable a basis might be found for a constructive intervention by President Roosevelt in behalf of a negotiated peace.

It is of course impossible for our diplomatic representatives in any single capital to present the picture as a whole. Nor can separate reports, no matter how well-informed, be satisfactorily pieced together on this side. To accomplish this synthesis requires a mission similar to that for which the President has selected two of the most highly-trained and objective career men in the service. Their trip of inquiry may, of course, be wholly barren of results. But alternatively it may prove of enormous potential importance.

The first prerequisite to success is that Mr. Welles and Mr. Moffat should be officially received by those who hold the reins of power in the capitals they plan to visit. If either Mussolini or Hitler, or if either Chamberlain or Daladier, should refuse to confer with them, then these two glorified reporters—for that is really the role they are filling—might as well return forthwith. It would not be enough for the mission to make contact with number one in some of the nations it visits. Their reception must everywhere be uniform.

Herr Hitler's willingness to receive Mr. Welles is therefore an indication that the preliminaries of the mission are being successfully accomplished. It does not mean anything more. The scheduling of the reception next week is far less important than what takes place when the Fuehrer and our Undersecretary of State sit down together. And the speech which Hitler will undoubtedly make to our special envoy is likewise less important than the answers he gives to whatever pertinent questions Mr. Welles may ask.

Information on these points is not likely to become public until long after the conversations scheduled for next week have taken place. But the fact that these conversations are being arranged is at least indication that the Welles mission has met no insurmountable hurdle at the outset of its very delicate task.

Selecting A Trustee

The SEC has very reasonably refused to serve as trustee in bankruptcy for the Associated Gas & Electric Corporation, although empowered to do so under the holding company act. The regulatory and supervisory functions of the commission are a tremendous and absorbing task, leaving no time for the assumption of new duties. Furthermore the SEC is not equipped to take over the management of a huge utility system.

The abortive move to make the SEC the trustee is apparently favored by a group of Government officials who are anxious for a Government agency to push holding company reforms vigorously in connection with the reorganization plan. The selection of a trustee or trustees has, therefore, become not simply a matter of securing a qualified person but of securing someone whose views on public utility problems and policies are acceptable to the New Dealers.

The conflict that has arisen over the possible alternative choice of former Undersecretary of the Treasury John W. Hanes as trustee is intensified by injection of such ulterior issues into the discussion of his qualifications. In Senator Norris' opinion the fact that Mr. Hanes has been indorsed by certain investment bankers and by the former management of the company is sufficient to disqualify him for the post of trustee.

"It is obvious," Mr. Norris says, "that the great mass of security holders who have suffered tremendous losses would never have confidence in a trustee who could be suspected of owing his appointment in any way to the intervention of the Hopson management and of Wall street bankers, whose participation in the Associated Gas & Electric itself ought to be the subject of investigation and censure."

A majority of the SEC disagrees with Mr. Norris, holding that Mr. Hanes' affiliations do not constitute a statutory disqualification, although the facts have been brought to the attention of the court which appoints the trustees. The controlling consideration for the court is, of course, whether the person appointed to serve as trustee is genuinely disinterested as well as competent to discharge the duties of office. Indeed the Chandler Act, under which the reorganization is to proceed, requires the appointment of an independent trustee entirely divorced from the old management and from investment bankers who have underwritten securities of the bankrupt corporation.

The law undoubtedly contemplates a complete separation of reorganization proceedings from domination by former managements and interested investment bankers. The independent trustee, furthermore, is charged with the very important duty of preparing a reorganization plan. And he is also expected to bring to the attention of the court any irregularities, fraud or mismanagement that may constitute a basis for claims.

The mere fact that Mr. Hanes' disinterestedness has been challenged, whether justly or not, counts against his selection, even though it may not disqualify him to serve under the terms of the law. It is assuredly desirable that the trustee should have the confidence of all classes of investors and creditors, and it is imperative that he should devote himself wholeheartedly to the task of conserving the property of the company under his control and of pressing the claims of creditors without fear or favor.

If the selection of a trustee is based solely upon these primary considerations, no difficulty should arise in finding an appointee who meets all relevant tests of fitness.

Mass Stowaway

To be a stowaway on an ocean-going vessel is the romantic dream of many a boy and the accomplishment of very few. For this somewhat specialized undertaking to be achieved by a mother with three small children is a feat which none can help admiring. And the officials of the Italian line, who disown all thought of action against this American woman, have unanimous public approbation.

As Mrs. Margaret de la Rosa Madden Alvarez told her story to officers of the ship it still seems incredible that she and her family should have been able to remain both hidden and well-fed throughout the voyage from Lisbon to New York. To newspapermen who met her at the boat, Mrs. Alvarez was less communicative, saying, "I'm a businesswoman. I'll pose for $200. ... for the reporters I'll make another cheap bargain with them."

Only slightly less poised than the mother was the 6-year-old daughter, Maria, who regularly made trips from the dining room conveying food for her own family and the mother and two small children in whose cabin the seven lived together. Unaware that her mother had told the story, little Maria was caught on her last expedition and asked where she lived. With a remarkable mixture of truth and acumen, the child replied that she lived in the dining salon.

Although married to a Spaniard, Mrs. Alvarez's passport established her as an American. So she was permitted to land and proceed on her way to Philadelphia, whither she set off on a dollar borrowed from a company official. It is to be hoped that in that friendly city she will experience the better times such courage and determination deserve.

Off Murmansk

The reported concentration of Anglo-French warships off the Arctic coastline of Russia, Finland and Norway brings into sharp focus the question of Soviet-Allied relations.

According to the Danish newspaper which first published the report, the British and French war vessels hovering in the vicinity of Murmansk and Petsamo are there primarily to prevent the shipment of contraband from Russia to Germany, including a possible transfer of Russian submarines to the German navy.

The move may thus be interpreted as in line with the announced determination of the Allies to prevent the further use of Norwegian territorial waters as a means of avoiding the Franco-British blockade. As the voyage of the Bremen from Murmansk to its home base in Germany has made clear, this safe passage from the Arctic to the Baltic is entirely feasible. What the Bremen could do other and smaller ships are able to do, have done and, no doubt, are doing.

Yet it is questionable if any large volume of supplies has gone to Germany from Russia over this route. Murmansk is remote from Russia's chief centers and is connected with them by a long railroad now monopolized by the Red army for its operations against Finland. Poor as transport facilities across Poland may be, it is clearly much more simple for Russia to ship goods to Germany that way than by the round-about, difficult and hazardous Arctic route.

A second inference, however, is that this reported Allied naval concentration foreshadows a more active Franco-British policy in support of Finland. As long as Norway and Sweden are determined to avoid direct military involvement in the Finnish war, real difficulties stand in the way of large-scale Allied aid to that hard-pressed country. Given a large enough Allied naval force, however, a landing on Finland's Arctic coast might be effected. But since the Russians are now in possession of this coast, such action would seem tantamount to French and British military action against the Soviet.

That the Allies are prepared to go that far is still subject to doubt, in spite of Mr. Hore-Belisha's exhortation yesterday. But pending final decision on this fateful question, the Allied warships in the Arctic may serve as a useful reminder, both to Russia and to Germany, that Great Britain and France are not prepared to write off Finland and the other Scandinavian states as dependencies of the Moscow-Berlin Axis.

Contented CCC

It is not surprising that, as J. J. McEntee, the director-designate, has revealed, the Civilian Conservation Corps has been singularly free of the Red virus and equally unreceptive to other totalitarian ideologies. It would, on the contrary, have been surprising if the reverse had proved to be the case.

Communism and fascism can only flourish in an atmosphere of discontent. The youths in the CCC camps come from low-income families who, theoretically, should be ready to listen to persuasive agitators. But these youths are not discontented. They haven't the time to be discontented.

They are engaged in socially useful work which occupies their time and their energies. They are provided with nourishing food and good shelter, with recreational and educational opportunities and, last but not least, with vocational guidance and training designed to fit them for permanent employment.

The CCC has won many encomiums during the seven years of its existence. The praise has been fully deserved. In addition to the great number of worthwhile projects which it has undertaken and brought to a successful conclusion the camps have been first-class training schools in practical patriotism.

Letters To The Editor

The F Street Picketing

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There is a serious mistake in your editorial of February 23 regarding the picketing on F street.

Your editorial states that the CIO is picketing the Jelleff store "in protest against employment of AFL union members." This is incorrect, as the United Construction Workers Organizing Committee, which was doing the picketing, does not object to employment of AFL workers.

Our only reason for picketing Jelleff's is explained in a statement we released today when we withdrew our picket. It is the AFL that objects to employment of CIO labor and which started the picketing on F street. Furthermore, the AFL has threatened to continue the picket for a year or more even though the job on which our men worked has been completed.

"Stop Arming Japan"

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I should think every member of Congress would hang his head in shame that his own country has been a party to the dastardly work Japan has been carrying on in China these two years or so by furnishing over 90 per cent of Japan's aviation gasoline, as well as scrap iron for war materials!

In the name of humanity it is up to this country to clamp down an embargo on all war materials to Japan without further delay!

Do we want to help China as the English helped Poland or as they are helping Finland? Their intentions may be very good, but it is rather late to help a people after they are all driven out of their country, or after much of their country is covered with their corpses!

On The Attitude Of Youth

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A few recent letters in The Post on the subject of Dorothy Thompson's advice to the Youth Congress prompt me to offer my two cents worth. I have as full a heart as she, though I can't feel sure you'll be able to print me in equal strength.

I had not thought to formulate the attitude of our young people as John Chamberlain did, but I must agree he was penetrating in describing it as distrustful of words, wary of promises which were not translatable into economic security and anxious for greater civil liberty. Miss Thompson's piece unwittingly justifies, brilliantly, precisely that feeling.

It is incorrect, besides being palpably unfair, for her to say that because they distrust words they inhibit the process of thinking. It is rather a gratifying indication that they have been able to withstand the charm of beautiful, nay, convincing words. Their Missouri attitude of "show me" parallels the equally healthy skepticism of that 97 per cent of us toward the shininess of the armor of the combatants in Europe's war, as Mr. Gallup has testified.

Miss Thompson offers them another dithyramb of eloquent words. In fact, her eloquence would urge them to defeat the very purposes of self-preservation for which they are organizing. They will not succumb to the promises of a Hitlerian demagogue because they have learned from history that these promises are unrealizable. Goethe should have let Dr. Faust stop at "In the Beginning was the Deed," instead of permitting the poor scholar to revise history in the interests of the Word.

Deeds count, for the organized youth—organized because of their political maturity. That is also why they were sullen to the President. His deeds—the New Deal—received their unstinted support. The funny thing is that they are still in favor of it while he is not.

They now fear a relapse into the starvation of Hooverism—starvation not only of body, but in education and economic opportunity. They shudder at the coming demoralization of their whole generation. Does Miss Thompson wonder they were sullen?

The President also strove to silence their expression of nonconformist opinion on the issue of peace or war. The Administration, after years of inactivity in the face of the known facts, has begun to jail communists and progressives, using technical law violations as the means to such suppression of this selected group. These are undeniable attempts to suppress nonconformist opinion on the question of peace or war. They are facets of one drive to insure that all expressed opinion—and all thought—shall be that which it pleases the Administration to favor. And what shall that be?

The facts of the British invasion of our integrity by the use of bayonet-wielding soldiers to seize the clipper's mail are kept secret for a month; their friction with us over contraband control and the neutrality zone engender no inflammatory words, no arousal of popular passion. But the false claim that the City of Flint was detained by the Russians, without even mention of the removal and internment of the German prize crew, was shouted from the housetops and the State Department built it up almost into a China incident. Or compare the similar incitement of popular passions over the passport-forgers whom the Russians caught in the act and jailed.

These are the deeds, Miss Thompson, which arouse their fear that because they have demonstrated their ability to draw dissident conclusions from such actions, as the rest of progressive America does, they will be denied the freedom of arriving at such conclusions. Necessarily, their consequent spirited defense of civil liberties must protect the communists, whose congenital suspicion of capitalist government makes them often the first to point out threats to civil liberties, correctly or not.

And the youth are correct in believing that the attack upon known communists is logically succeeded by the suppression of those whom the attackers accuse of being secretly radical. After the magic words, the suppression of nonconformists. It was not Weimar but the Brown House of Munich that outlawed them.

History continues to unfold, and the most encouraging thing about today is that, uniquely in American history, the youth of the country are organized for progressive political action.

I don't imagine you can give me so much space as to equal one of Miss Thompson's columns, but I know I would if I were in your place.

Government Of Men

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Senator Tobey has introduced in the Senate a resolution requiring to be stricken from the census questionnaire questions relating to one's income and its sources, together with other questions of the most offensive, personal, and private nature that not only violate the constitutional rights of the citizen, but which are not even authorized by the census law. These questions should arouse the indignation and resentment of the people, and they should lose no time in urging upon their Senators to support this resolution.

In the first place there is no justifiable reason for such impertinent questions, nor is there any worth-while purpose to be served by them, but on the contrary such information can be and probably will be used, if judged by the past, for improper political purposes by the Administration. Secrecy is promised regarding the answers to these questions, but we know from past experience that little confidence can be placed in promises of New Dealers.

The general understanding was that the income-tax returns would be inviolate, and yet they have not only been broadcast to the world but have been made the basis by this Administration to persecute, discredit, and to punish critics of the New Deal.

The trouble with us today under the "New Dispensation" is that there is too much lawmaking by executive authority, and usurpation by bureaucrats of the constitutional functions of the Congress. While Congress must necessarily in some cases authorize promulgation of regulations by executives to put into effect some laws, such regulations must never contravene the law or be in conflict with it. Otherwise the exclusive power of the Congress to legislate is usurped, and we have a government of men and not of laws.

The newspapers could render no greater public service than by bringing this matter to the attention of the people and combating this tendency in our Government.

Traffic Problem

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am confronted with a traffic problem which I hope that you will be able to solve or bring to the attention of someone who may be able to help me.

Unfortunately, I am a resident of downtown Washington and a car owner. I am sure that my parking difficulties are very probably no different than any other motorist's in this city. I would like very much for someone in an official capacity to try, if he could, to imagine what we motorists are up against.

I live on Massachusetts avenue between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets northwest, being bounded on Thirteenth street, Fourteenth street and Vermont avenue by "snow ban" parking signs with "no parking" on M street and limited parking on all other streets.

It is absolutely, and I do mean absolutely, impossible to find any available parking space after 10 p. m. I have just had my car impounded by the Police Department for overtime parking. I feel that I am voicing the sentiments of the motorists in this district, having personally witnessed no less than a dozen cars ticketed in the last few days.

If you can find an answer for motorists in this downtown area, I am confident that you will have the respect and gratitude of all car owners.

The Post Impressionist

Deaf—And Slightly Dumb

Forked lightning flashed. Thunder reverberated. The black heavens opened and the rain came down in a pelting flood.

"Did you hear it?" one of the living-room guests wanted to know.

"No," I replied, "but I felt the vibration."

Nor had I heard my friend. For I was lip-reading.

Another streak of lightning. Another crash of thunder.

"Go on with the story," I said.

"Oh, yes!" said my friend. "Now——"

I resumed lip-reading.

A short while later came a series of lightning flashes—more growling thunder. And then it happened. The daddy of all lightning bolts must have struck home. Its glare lit the dark sky. Thunder rent the atmosphere. And—the living-room lights were snuffed out.

I stopped lip-reading. I had to. Fishing in my pocket for a matchbook, I struck a light, held it aloft.

"Go right ahead," I told my friend. "I'm listening!"

There are several types of deaf persons. There are the mutes. There are the stone-deaf, the hard-of-hearing, the progressively deaf, the slightly deaf, the deaf-in-one-ear. With auditory equipment damaged beyond repair, I am stone-deaf. None of the hearing aids are of benefit. An accident involving spinal injury and resultant fever destroyed the auditory nerves, left me totally deaf at the age of 17.

Specialists examined, delved, consulted. The prognosis, in brief, was "N. G." Henceforth my aural appendages were to be mere props, something to wash behind, pedestals upon which to mislay pencils.

But one cannot become a deaf-mute at the age of 17. My voice was as robust as ever, my lingual vocabulary unhampered. A teacher of lip-reading was called in. I got down to the serious business of teaching eyes to take the place of deadened ears.

"Here is a hand mirror," wrote my teacher on a paper pad. "You must use it for home-work in mastering the rudiments."

"How?" I inquired aloud.

"By holding it in front of you," she wrote, "and watching your own lips as you recite the vowel sounds 'ah,' 'ee,' 'eye,' 'oh,' 'oo.' Later we will study the consonants."

Followed days on end, hour upon hour with that hand mirror. What matters it that between spasms of careful scrutiny in mouth movements—twisting those of ah ees, eyes, ohs, oos. I shifted my gaze to inspect other facial parts—to search now and then for a stray blackhead—to see if there were molar cavities—to observe the quivering epiglottis—to flatten or tilt the nose and note the radical change in expression—or even to see if I needed a haircut?

I mastered the rudiments—but not lip-reading. You never completely master it. The study of lip-reading, like many other arts, is semi-perpetual. You cannot become letter-perfect. New problems rise, new subjects develop.

Take, for example, the prospective employer who turned out to possess perhaps the most magnificent walrus moustache south of the Bering Sea. I assure you there is nothing in common between a devotee of lip-reading and a walrus moustache. I further assure you I did not get the job.

We both meant well, no doubt, but that oversized facial adornment was too much. Before the interview ended I felt like grasping its handles, lifting it and saying: "Pardon me, I didn't see the last 72 words." The futility of that "conversation" reminded me of the two dumb Boy Scouts in a dense forest, 1 mile apart, trying to wigwag flag signals.

There have been other episodes just as hilarious. There was the case of an older cousin—a dignified, right-thinking lawyer with a very fine courtroom voice and a rapidity of diction that was the despair of stenographers. Moreover, he never moved his upper lip. Neither does Charlie McCarthy. I discovered quite early in my lip-reading career that my cousin's propensities for keeping a stiff upper lip was an insurmountable barrier to a two-way conversation.

Nevertheless, we persisted. One day he and I were passing the time of day.

"What are your plans for the summer?" I wanted to know, proceeding to concentrate on his lips for the reply.

As usual, it was no use. My cousin launched forth at his usual rapid-fire clip. With a resigned sigh, I nodded my head mechanically at intervals, assuming a pseudo-intelligent look. And then, as he finished, the miracle happened. Or so I thought.

But—had I really understood him? It couldn't be! My cousin isn't the sort to indulge in such exoletives. Yet, what else could it be?

After a long, strained silence, I mustered courage.

"Who," I inquired, "are you calling a so-and-so?"

He stared aghast. He grew red in the face. He clapped a hand to his forehead and slumped in his chair.

"No! No! No!" he groaned. "Nobody's a so-and-so"

He took pencil and paper and wrote: "I'm just inviting you down to our new summer place at Silver Beach!"

Like being a smithy on a merry-go-round or a deaf-mute telephone operator, a number of friends say my occupation is a bit incongruous.

For—I'm a radio-script-writer. And—I've never heard a radio. I became deaf a few years before KDKA in Pittsburgh, came forth with the world's finest commercial broadcast.

"Just the same," said one of my co-workers, recently, "it's a good thing you're deaf. You don't have to listen to your own programs."

"Maybe," I answered, noncommittally. "But—once in a while I can smell them." WALTER REGAN.

Bleeding-Heart Liberals

THE FATAL DEFECT of that which we have been accepting as liberalism here since the New Deal began is the dogged and rather insulting refusal of its spokesmen, most of them writers, ever to sit down and take inventory. An incidental defect, but one which tends to rile our problems rather than settle them, is the arrogant attempt of such people to read all cautious persons out of the party, if not out of the human race. As a result, liberalism has come into disrepute with many who are true liberals but find the label taken over by a noisy and intolerant and often dishonest minority.

When I say dishonest I do not mean merely mistaken but willfully dishonest. Proof of dishonesty occurs constantly in the writings of members of the left wing who are to the right of communism. We know, of course, that all Communists are liars who regard truth as a silly affectation of stupid people, but we expect something better from liberals. Yet anyone who keeps a check on them soon discovers that they give themselves the better of it in little ways which are scarcely noticeable at first. We find them, when they want to answer an argument, permitting themselves to state the other person's contention in indirect quote. This is a familiar trick. It permits the bleeding-heart liberal to shade the proposition, and he then proceeds to destroy a contention which never was offered in the first place.

I HAVE SEEN it done often, even by big-game bleeding hearts and doubledomes whom you would give credit for more self-respect, to say nothing of the question of honesty. It is as though a mathematician were to move a decimal point to the left or right to suit his convenience. And one of my editor friends in Washington tells me of his disappointment in a famous liberal writer, not a Communist, when this picturesque old maneshaker remarked that he had long since given up his old journalistic respect for exact truth in petty facts and now was interested only in general effects.

In the sector of which I speak there is a constant propaganda to the effect that anyone who dissents on any matter is not merely indifferent to misery but rather favors it. It seems unnecessary to say that this is not true, but persons so accused are likely to retreat from liberalism merely because the neighborhood has deteriorated.

Economics is a side-show science, like phrenology, but finance is more of this world, and financiers agree that when the public debt reaches a certain point in proportion to the income of the people the cost of the debt becomes unbearable and repudiation ensues, followed by confiscation. It may not follow that dictatorship comes then, but the experience of other countries certainly indicates that it does and must. Yet liberals of the kind that I am discussing clamor for more spending and horribly revile those who think it might be better to pause short of inflation and confiscation. You would think that the less reckless Americans can hardly wait for the day when they will have the pleasure of seeing children starving at the curbs and storm troopers, in shirts of brown and silver clubbing their parents with bats.

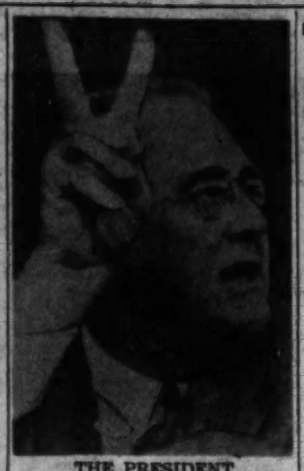
ON THE CONTRARY, however, the conservative liberals—if you will allow me that term—are themselves alarmed at the prospect of the brutalities of a dictatorship arising from the ruins of a complete financial collapse.

Liberalism, on the extreme left of the group, has come to advocate collectivism as the only salvation, forgetting, I suppose, that only a few years ago, before the New Deal, all liberals hated regimentation, which is the maiden name of collectivism. Collectivism is what the Germans have, too.

In the first enthusiastic, emotional days of the New Deal it was kind of fun to see rich men made to jump through hoops, but it soon occurred to some that if the rich and powerful could be treated so and sneered at when they attempted to stand on their rights, then it would be easy to make the little people, too, jump through the hoops. Emotional liberals rarely bother to get out a pencil and an old laundry bill and try to figure out how long it will be possible to stand off a crash or what will happen to liberals, with their passion for free and insulting speech, if it continues.



THE PRESIDENT
Unless he indicates soon whether he wants another term, or whether two have satisfied him, the agonies of the Democrats will be pitiful to behold. See Mark Sullivan's article today.

Producer, firmly—I tell ya we gotta do a "Wind" picture. A twenty million gross! Imagine it!

Assistant—Well, there's that new book "Out With the Gale."

Producer—It's no good. It ain't got no Atlanta fire!

Assistant—How about that scenario "In With the Tide?"

Producer—Don't the ridiculous! "In With the Tide" has a heroine who is a good woman. Worse than that, the hero is a gentleman! You can't gross twenty million with a story about them kind of people.

Assistant (reflectively)—The main thing is to get a book that has had plenty of ballyhoo.

Producer—And the next main thing is to get one that could run four hours!

Milton (a cousin of the producer)—I got just the woman for the part.

Producer—For what part?

Milton—For the part we'd have if we had the right scenario.

Producer—There was a writer in here last week with a scenario that had two Scarlet O'Haras in it, both worse than Selznick's. He had three Atlanta fires in it and the whole of Sherman's march to the sea.

Assistant—It was strictly a two-hour show.

Producer—Yeah, but didn't he have an idea to stretch it out by showing Sherman's march in slow motion. (He rings four buzzers and instructs four menials to look this author up again.)

Milton—I got a friend who has a book called "The Hurricane in Illinois." It sort of combines the features of "Gone With the Wind" and these Abe Lincoln pictures. It's got everything except the big plantations.

Producer (in disgust)—It's gotta have plantations.

Assistant—I've been thinking of an idea . . . it combines "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and "The Birth of a Nation" with "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" and "Grapes of Wrath." We could burn Richmond, Chicago and even Kansas City.

Producer—How about the two principal characters? Are they both positively low-grade no-goods?

Assistant—The heroine marries six times, marries twice during the funeral of her last husband and steals two sweethearts from her own sister.

Producer—Great!

Assistant—The hero is strictly a louse, too!

Producer—Now we're getting some place! Could we make it last four hours?

Milton and the Assistant—A story like that could be made to drag six!

Producer (triumphantly)—Boys, we got it!

This Cruel Silence

By Mark Sullivan

Democratic Distress

IF PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT knew the distress he is causing Democrats by his course about a third term, human kindness alone should be enough to lead him to speak. The occasional public expressions of pain and protest from Democratic Senators and other party leaders do not tell more than a fraction of the story. It is the uncertainty that hurts. If Mr. Roosevelt were to say, now, that he wishes a third nomination, that step would offend a considerable number of leaders. But Mr. Roosevelt's silence embarrasses practically all.

A Senator or member of the House is up for renomination; or in the States, a Governor or local officeholder. His nomination will be decided in primary elections that come anywhere from March 12 in New Hampshire to May 28 in Texas. In practically all cases, the incumbent is faced by a contestant. And over practically all contests, hangs the third-term question, like a fog, obscuring and bedeviling. The third term is eclipsing all other issues and considerations.

SHALL THE LOCAL candidate for renomination, for Senator or what-not, say, he favors a third term? If he does, and if thereafter Mr. Roosevelt renounces a third term, the candidate is left out on a limb, carrying an unnecessary liability, which harms him and does no good to Mr. Roosevelt. On the other hand, if the local candidate says he is opposed to a third term, he throws to his opponent all those Democratic voters who are ardent for four years more of Mr. Roosevelt.

If the candidate remains silent, tries to avoid the issue, his opponent is sure to build a fire under him, to smoke him out. And the smoking-out process is more embarrassing to an avowed candidate for renomination to Congress than to Mr. Roosevelt, who is following a course which avoids avowal. Some candidates for Congress assume, as they have a right to, that Mr. Roosevelt will not try for another term. But that position means more embarrassment if Mr. Roosevelt, while the primaries are under way, says he is a candidate. Concrete cases, illustrating these variations of embarrassment, all arising from Mr. Roosevelt's silence, compose much of the conversation of party leaders.

These bedevilments, trying enough in the primaries, will in many cases carry over into the general election. In hundreds of cases, Democratic candidates for Congress and other offices will go into the general election in November carrying handicaps acquired in the primaries. This will occur regardless of whether Mr. Roosevelt is or is not the Democratic candidate for President. In one event, Democrats who have said they oppose a third term will be running on the same ticket with a Presidential nominee who is actually running for a third term. In another event, Democrats who have been in favor of a third term will be running after the third-term idea has been rejected.

MR. ROOSEVELT'S course is creating an extraordinary situation, extremely damaging and demoralizing to the Democrats regardless of its effect on Mr. Roosevelt. Conceding, for argument's sake, that Mr. Roosevelt is renominated; conceding he might have enough personal following to be re-elected, it would still remain likely that the number of Democrats elected to other offices would be relatively small. Conceding, again for argument's sake, that Mr. Roosevelt might be re-elected, it would also be conceivable—indeed, it would be likely—that he would have a Congress much more unfriendly to him, more disposed to restrain and frustrate him, than the present Congress. In fact, it is not only conceivable but likely that even if Mr. Roosevelt were re-elected President, the lower House of Congress would be Republican.

Regardless of anything about the third term, it is certain the Senate will be Democratic, because so many hold over. It is likewise certain that the Democratic Senate will be sullen against Mr. Roosevelt. If Mr. Roosevelt got a third term, he would have an unhappy time. His mistakes of his first two terms, his pledges unfulfilled, would be overtaking him, chickens coming home to roost. And he would have a sullen Democratic Senate, together with a House probably Republican and certainly unfriendly.

SOME OF THE embarrassments put upon Democrats by Mr. Roosevelt's present course are public and glaring. In Ohio, some 52 Democrats, condidates for delegate to the Democratic National Convention, apparently are [illegible] to sign a formal document, required by law, saying they will suppport for the Presidential nomination, an Ohio Democratic politician who they know, and everybody knows, has no faintest chance of the nomination. The candidates for delegate will do this as a frank device to enable them to be actually for Mr. Roosevelt if he is a candidate at the time the convention meets.

The equivocation into which men are forced does not omit Mr. Roosevelt himself. When, at a press conference, he is asked if he has anything to say about the entry of his name in Illinois, and when he replies that he doesn't know a thing about it—that response makes a large draft on the latitude of evasive reticence reasonably permitted to a public man who prefers not to give a candid answer.

Some Notes On War And Peace

III—The Other War

IN THIS ARTICLE I shall venture to draw upon the experience of 1914-1918 to demonstrate the proposition that the strategical results of a war determine the basic conditions of the ensuing peace: By the basic conditions of the ensuing peace I mean those accomplished facts, consequences of the war itself, which were unalterable by the statesmen who wrote the treaties of peace.

LET US FIX them in our minds:

1. The Russian military power had collapsed, the Czarist empire had been overthrown, Russia was prostrated by revolution and civil war. When the statesmen met in Paris in the winter of 1918 all Russian authority as a great power had broken down in the borderland from the Baltic Sea to the Black Sea and the Balkans. Finland, Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania, White Russia, Western Ukrainia, Poland, Bessarabia had been broken loose by the German conquest, by the Russian collapse, by their own rebellions, and then by the German defeat. There was no central and dominating authority, Russian or German, in this whole region.

The situation was an accomplished fact when the peace conference met. The situation was caused by the military disintegration of Russia in 1917 and by the military disintegration of Germany in 1918.

2. THE AUSTRO-HUNGARIAN empire, which had maintained the political and economic unity of the peoples of the Danube Valley, was in ruins and had been dismembered before the peace conference met. The Czecho-Slovaks had been recognized as an ally before the conclusion of the war, and they were already de facto and de jure an independent state. Poland was already an independent state, sovereign though its boundaries were not fixed. The Southern Slavs were a recognized independent state with a recognized title to the province of Croatia. Hungary was torn by revolution, and in this state of military weakness lost Transylvania to an invading Rumanian army.

Thus, as a result of the war, which had exhausted the Hapsburg empire, the imperial unity had broken down; as a measure of war designed in the first instance to hasten the military collapse of Austria-Hungary, the Allies and the United States had made binding commitments to the Poles, the Czecho-Slovaks, the Jugoslavs, and the Rumanians. These commitments inhibited them from restoring the political unity which the war had in fact destroyed.

The fall of the Romanoffs and the Hapsburgs had, therefore, removed the unifying force of a central authority throughout eastern and central Europe. The simultaneous collapse of the German empire left this vast region, mixed in nationality and without previous experience in self-government, to the administration of some ten new, more or less artificial, internally divided and externally feeble, states.

This situation was not created by the Paris conference. It existed when the conference met, and it was caused by the war.

3. THE TURKISH EMPIRE had collapsed as a result of military defeat, and its authority in the Moslem world from Syria to the Red Sea and the Persian Gulf was gone. This collapse had been promoted by the encouragement of an Arab rebellion and of a Zionist campaign; these two measures of war had involved somewhat contradictory promises to the Palestinian Arabs and the Zionist Jews, and these commitments were an essential part of the situation already existing when the peace conference met.

4. THE GERMAN COLONIES had been conquered during the war, some by France, some by Great Britain, some by the Union of South Africa, some by Australia, and some by Japan. While it is arguable that it would have been desirable to restore them to Germany, for the purposes of this discussion it is important to remember that it was the war and not the peace conference which destroyed the German colonial empire, and that the restoration of the colonies at Versailles would have required not merely the renunciation by France and Great Britain of what their armies had conquered, but also the use of compulsion on the dominions and upon Japan to give up what they had conquered.

5. The exhaustion of Germany and the disintegration of her army made Germany impotent during the peace conference. The reason that Versailles was a dictated peace was that Germany was too weak to insist upon a negotiated peace.

6. The main theater of the western war was in the northern departments of France. The loss of this industrial region had weakened France during the war; the great offensive launched in order to expel the German army had cruelly decimated a generation of Frenchmen; the devastation by the great battles in this region had imposed a very costly reconstruction upon the French nation.

Thus, because France had been invaded, the French nation was committed to obtaining tangible guaranties that the invasion would not be repeated. Because the invasion of France, as a result of the German violation of Belgian neutrality, had caused such losses of men and of property, the French nation was committed to the policy of weakening and of impoverishing her intrinsically more numerous and more powerful neighbor.

THESE FACTS demonstrate the proposition, it seems to me, that the character of the peace was controlled by the strategical consequences of the war itself. The statesmen who met in Paris at the end of 1918 had to begin with the situation which had resulted from the four years of war. They could not reconstruct the world that had existed before 1914. They could not build a better world upon the foundations that had existed before 1914. Those foundations had been destroyed. They could not build the world they might have liked to have built in 1919.

They had to make a peace in the devastated, dislocated, and exhausted Europe of 1919, and they had to make that peace in the great region from the Rhine to the Urals, where, though the Allies had as victors a high prestige, they had nothing resembling complete power and full authority. For the Russian, the Austrian and the German power was demolished, and in 1919 there was throughout the region no power to replace it.

This teaches us, I believe, that the character of the settlement in a great war is shaped not at the eventual peace conference but by the war itself.

Berlin, Feb. 23.—Speaking to members of the foreign press this afternoon, Dr. Robert Ley, head of the German labor front, described the old-age pension plan which Reich Fuehrer Adolf Hitler had ordered him to map out, as "the greatest social work in history," but did not reveal details of how or when it would be realized.

He and his assistants, he stated, are still "considering all possibilities" but had not arrived at definite conclusions.

Among the methods which are under consideration, he stated, was a general levy on the entire nation to support the aged.

"The Reich should contribute to the support of the poor who helped them get rich, just as they should contribute to the support of the state which protects their riches. To put through this plan in any case, I will have to take away something from one section of the population in order to give it to the other. Rich industrialists such as Krupp owe the workers and the state a debt of gratitude which they can be called on to pay."

Stalin's Puppet Politbureau

How Bolshevik Oligarchy Was Eliminated

By Boris Souvarine.
Special Correspondent to The Post.

THERE IS MUCH talk these days of Moscow's Politbureau (often written "Politburo," after the German, significantly enough). Hitherto, an almost universal faith has reposed in the Council of Commissars of the People. The fiction behind this has now been uncovered. It has taken all of 20 years to reveal, behind the Council of Commissars, the mysterious Politbureau, well known to political experts.

By a curious paradox, there has never been more talk about the Politbureau than now, when the Politbureau has lost every shred of real authority. For it is a positive truth that the Politbureau of today no longer exercises the slightest power at all.

It is quite a necessary thing to be aware of one's enemies. That is why this dangerous legend, which masks the actual state of affairs in Moscow (and who knows where else?) ought not be allowed to endure. Bolshevik propaganda aims at spreading the belief that there exist at the Kremlin divergence of views, controversies, differences of opinion—as is the case with Western democracies. The counterfeit character of this impression is all the more reason to pierce the mystery without delay.

THE DOGE OF VENICE employed an all-powerful Council of Ten, selected by a Council of Sixty. Similarly the Doge of Moscow has flanked himself with an all-powerful Council of Nine (who, in reality, have not always been nine); named a Council of Seventy-one, who have not always numbered so many. But number has nothing to do with our purpose. It is enough merely to know that there exists a Council of Nine—the Politbureau—in order to appreciate its history.

The U. S. S. R. is under the domination of one party: the Bolshevik, or Communist, Party, which applies the full weight of its authority. The party elects in its congress a Central Committee, which in turn elects a Political Bureau, the name of which has been contracted to Politbureau. In reality there is no election, in the true sense of the word; but only the make-believe to which all elections in totalitarian countries have sunken. Candidates with no opponents are chosen by a supreme chief, then smoothly elected in advance.

That supreme chief, in this case, is Stalin. As Bernard Shaw once said, Stalin was elected secretary of the party by a committee whose members he himself had designated precisely for the purpose of electing him secretary. There is, then, behind the Politbureau a greater power: the secretariat. For a long time, it has been said in Russia that the dictatorship of the proletariat has been replaced by the dictatorship of the secretariat.

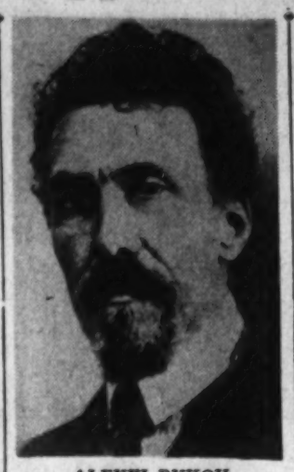
ARTICLE THIRTY-TWO of party statutes stipulates: "The Central Committee shall organize, for political activities, a Political Bureau; for the purpose of directing the work of organization, a Bureau of Organization; for running affairs, having the nature of organization and putting into execution, the secretariat." To throw light on this fairly obscure text, it will be sufficient to demonstrate how this works in practice.

Formed by the Central Committee of the party several days before the coup d'etat of 1917, the first "Political Bureau" consisted of seven members—or, better yet, five members plus two heads—



ALEXEI RYKOV,
Former leader of the Right Opposition; afterward liquidated

Lenin and Trotzky, with Zinoviev, Kamenev, Sokolinkov, Boubnov and Stalin. It was their mission to spread promptly, without formality or argument, the seeds of revolution. After the victory, it ceased to exist; surrendering its duties to the Central Committee. During the civil war, the need for an organism of restraint made itself felt again. A quartet composed of Lenin, Trotsky, Sverdlov and Stalin became the second Political Bureau; but, according to the decision taken, "with the obligation to consult all the members of the Central Committe present at the appointed time at Smolny (the governmental building)." As a matter of fact, Trotzky and Stalin were nearly always with the armies, while Lenin and Sverdlov conducted the office of the Politbureau themselves, with the aid of the few comrades available.

In 1919 the Politbureau was increased to five members: Lenin, Trotzky, Zinoviev, Kamenev and Stalin. It freed itself of current business, thrusting this upon a bureau of organization, or "Orgbureau," likewise consisting of five members. Lenin was not afraid to write that it was a veritable "oligarchy." The oligarchs needed secretaries to put into execution the results of their deliberations.

There was, first, Helene Stassova, the niece of the celebrated art critic and writer of music; then Sverdlov, who died of typhus; then the trio, Krestinsky, Preobrajensky and Serebriakov; then Molotov, assisted by Mikhaylov and Iaroslavsky; and, at last, in 1922, Stalin, with Molotov and Koulbychev as aides.

WITH A LITTLE attention, this history tends to uncover the secret of the political success of Stalin. Only he, it can be seen, was a member of the Politbureau and the Orgbureau at the same time. Although the Politbureau occupied itself with remoter politics, the Orgbureau was consecrated to day by day administration. When Stalin became the secretary, he seized in his hand all the wires essential to supreme power; that is to say, the nomination of functionaries.

By the time of Lenin's death, in 1924, Stalin had posted his tools almost everywhere.

The Politbureau brought into association three of his assistants: Molotov, Kalinin and Bukharin. But the death of Lenin left one place vacant, and opened the struggle for the mantle of power. The Politbureau was increased to seven members: Trotzky, Zinoviev, Kamenev, Bukharin, Rykov, Tomsky and Stalin, plus six assistants, Kalinin, Molotov, Roudzoutak, Djerzinsky, Sokolnikov and Frounzey. The secretariat was composed of Stalin, with Molotov, Andreyev, Kaganovich and Zelensky.

FIRST THERE was Trotzky to smash, then Zinoviev and Kamenev, who presented some obstacle; then Bukharin, Rykov and Tomsky, whose shadows threatened him; then all those whom he might suspect of having an idea in the backs of their heads. Stalin maneuvered with great finish against them, and they foolishly let themselves be struck off one by one. He increased the number of members of the Politbureau, and of the assistants, to eliminate everyone capable of contradicting him, and at the same time give advancement to his own men.

After the Fourteenth Congress of the party, the Politbureau had nine members: Trotzky, Zinoviev, Bukharin, Rykov, Tomsky, Kalinin, Molotov, Voroshilov, and Stalin; assistants, Kamenev, Roudzoutak, Djerzinsky, Ouglanov and Petrovsky.

After the Fifteenth Congress, there were still nine members: Bukharin, Rykov, Tomsky, Kalinin, Molotov, Voroshilov, Roudzoutak, Kouibychev and Stalin; assistants, Ouglanov, Petrovsky, Andreyev, Kirov, Mikoyan, Kaganovich, Tchoubar and Kossior.

After the Sixteenth Congress, there were ten members: Rykov, Kalinin, Molotov, Voroshilov, Kaganovich, Kirov, Kossior, Roudzoutak, Koubychev and Stalin; assistants, Mikoyan, Tchoubar, Petrovsky, Andreyev and Syrtsov.

After the Seventeeth Congress, there were ten members: Kalinin, Molotov, Voroshilov, Kaganovich, Kirov, Kossior, Kouibychev, Orjonikidze, Andreyev and Stalin; assistants, Mikoyan, Tchoubar, Petrovsky, Roudzoutak and Postychev.

After the Eighteenth Congress, there were finally nine members again. This is the real Politbureau: Kalinin, Molotov, Voroshilov, Kaganovich, Mikoyan, Andrey, Zhdanov, Kruschey and Stalin; assistants, Beria and Shvernik.

AN EXAMINATION of these lists permits several lucid observations: (1.) The liquidation of members of the Right and of the Left. (2.) The liquidation of all the companions of Lenin. (3.) The liquidation of every individual capable of, or culpable of, having a personal opinion. (4.) The constitution of a Politbureau composed exclusively of tools of Stalin.

It is common knowledge how Stalin liquidates persons who cease to please him. It is death, with or without apology; or deportation in the general direction of the Polar Circle. The members of this rump Politbureau know this better than anyone. That is why such a thing as disagreement among the Council of Nine is unheard of.

The Politbureau of today has no more importance. Its members blanch at the mere thought of falling out of line. The secretariat—that is to say, Stalin—assisted by Malenkov, Andreyev and Zhdanov, governs without let-up of pressure. Stalin commands; all others obey. It is with him, and him alone, that we are concerned. Such will be the case until catastrophe overtakes him, or he himself falls victim to political shake-up at last.

February 23rd—1940

Thank you Mr. Lewis—

We have just heard from a representative of the C. I. O. that, in a spirit of co-operation, they have decided to call off their picket who has been picketing the A. F. of L. whose men are employed on our construction job in the reconstruction of our building at 1214 F Street.

This puts an end to a most disagreeable situation for us and we are glad to give credit to the C. I. O. for taking the first step to conclude it.

Before writing "finis" to this matter, however, we must express our thanks to The Washington Post, the Evening Star and the Washington News for the informative articles which have appeared in their news columns, to the various newspapers for their fine editorials on the subject, to Station WOL for radio time and most of all to the people of Washington for their hundreds of congratulatory messages and assurances of support, "pickets or no pickets." Thank you all most heartily.

Sincerely,
Frank R. Jelleff

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes

New York, Feb. 23.

FOR MY time and money there's no greater chuckle purchasable in our village than the No. 1 Dog Show of the year, which rages unchecked at Madison Square Garden three days a winter, under the ticket of the Westminster Kennel Club. I like dogs, but I have only the deepest loathing for my fellow citizens who keep them cooped up on the twentieth floor.

Alice Hughes

But what kills me and other non-professionals in dogdom is the high church style in which these terrific Garden exhibitions are run. It is an unforgettable sight to behold our four-footed friends pranced around and posed like so many night club show girls au naturel, while owl-eyed judges peer at them intently, as though one misplaced hair counted 100 points down. Naturally, it's a howl to the layman, because she doesn't know anything about all this canine science, and in her darker moments thinks there is something faintly phony about the revered judges, too. Man's best friend just can't be that complicated, no how

The great moment at the Garden show comes when the Lord High Poo-bah names the Best Dog in Show—a meaningless phrase to the layman. Best dog for what—fetching in the paper, sitting by the fireplace or biting a burglar in the seat of the pants? This year a great popular favorite got the big prize—a cute American-bred cocker spaniel called "Champion My Own Brucie." The closest competitor was what a dog man calls "the most famous dog in America," called "Champion Norman Saddler," a fox terrier, the kind our kid brothers had as pets years ago. So now you know what to order for this year's dog—a cocker spaniel.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—It doesn't seem possible, but Lent is two and a half weeks over, and many of the girls are beginning to think more secular thoughts—such as the matter of the Easter rig-out in which they will march on March 24—the earliest Easter since 1913, when a lot of us were wondering if we'd rate a new white hair ribbon.

Flower Tones for Tweeds and Cosmetics

Not only do the newest cosmetic tones suggest appealing flower colorings but spring tweeds are interpreted in the same flower shades. Pictured here is Miss Inez Hester, New York beauty specialist, now in Washington with suggestions for springy new make-ups. Her Balmoral tweed suit is in flower blue, pinky beige and grey, worn with a sprightly chignon hat. Her alligator bag and dyed corn necklace are in Hot Pink—the rich, warm pink repeated in her lipstick. She seems to be having a puzzling time deciding between the fragile petal pinks and a glowing geranium pink for the finishing touches of powder and rouge.

A Delicious Pie With a Coffee Accent

BOSTON CREAM PIE is a dessert in the best Back Bay tradition. It made a good name for itself the first time a wise colonial housewife put a cream filling between two rounds of cake and served it up as an "emergency pie" with a cup of hot coffee to the visiting George Washington. Anyway, that is the alleged story. The following recipe is not alleged but a certain one that has been found to make a delicious dessert, called Coffee Cream Pie.

Coffee Cream Pie

Scald 2¼ cups milk with 1-3 cup ground coffee in top of double boiler over hot water. Strain through a fine sieve or cheese cloth. Combine and mix, 2-3 cup sugar, 1-3 cup flour and ¼ teaspoon salt; add 2 slightly beaten eggs. Add the hot coffee milk mixture and return to double boiler. Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly, until thickened; cover and cook 5 minutes longer. Remove from heat, and add 1 teaspoon vanilla. Cool, spread between sponge layers and sprinkle top with confectioner's sugar. Eight servings.

Average Height Is Increasing, Doctor Reports

Children today are more apt to reach six feet or over than ever before. Dr. Israel Bram makes this statement, adding that "during the past two or three decades, the average height of boys and girls has been steadily increasing."

A greater intake of vitamins, Dr. Bram suggests, may be one reason for this increase in human stature. "We have become decidedly diet-conscious and exercise conscious . . . Without adequate vitamin intake, it is conceivable that the important ductless glands of the body, particularly those concerned in growth and development, i. e., the thyroid, the pituitary and the gonads, are retarded in function."

A study of fathers and sons from Harvard shows that in the student population for at least the past 80 years, there has been a marked annual increase in height, and "sons are absolutely taller than their fathers."

Celia D. Mosher, writing in the California State Journal of Medicine, states that of 4,000 women students who entered Stanford University during the past 30 years, the average height had increased more than an inch.

A 20-year study of University of Cincinnati freshmen shows that freshmen are taller and heavier today than they were 20 years ago. Chinese living under improved nutritive conditions in Hawaii grow to greater stature than people of the same racial strain in China. Japanese living in California show increased height and weight compared to their immigrant parents.

The increase in outdoor life and greater exposure of the body to sunlight, in addition to greater vitamin intake, have also been suggested as factors contributing to stature increase.

Right Foods Aid Skater's Figure

Sonja Henie Also Attributes Complexion To Healthful Menus

By Ida Jean Kain

Sonja Henie, the ice queen, averages 15 miles per skating performance during which she sometimes races along at 40 miles per hour. There is one young woman who gets plenty of exercise.

With such fast and furious activity her daily ration, you would imagine that Sonja might have a little difficulty in keeping her weight up to par. Not exaggerating, she must burn well over 3,000 calories a day.

As it happens, Sonja was the first movie star I ever interviewed. I had the preconceived notion that all the stars were languid hothouse beauties with a low hemoglobin and more temperament than vitality. I was completely dazzled by the sheer exuberance of health radiated by the lovely young Norwegian.

That she likes the right foods is to be surmised from her peach ice cream complexion. She has a preference for fresh fruits, vegetables, milk and soups a la Norway. These health and beauty foods are the basis of her daily menus. When working hard, she also likes liberal quantities of lean meats.

Diet Easy for Her

At that time, she told me, she never dieted, didn't need to diet because she exercised so much, and she added, "When I am hungry, I eat; and I eat what I like."

But nowadays, she is watching her diet to control her weight. Being on a perfect diet from choice and habit, it is extremely easy. All she has to do to make the scales behave is take the sweets out of the menus.

Two morals are to be deduced from this: In the first place, exercise keeps the figure perfect. Sonja has a really beautiful figure! But in the second place, no matter how much exercise you take, it will not allow you to eat as you please!

There are also a couple of "nevertheless." The first is that weight control is always easy when the basic diet centers around the foods essential to health. In that case, deletion of the extras will suffice to make the scales behave. Finally, with exhilarating exercise and good habits of eating, a beautiful figure is guaranteed.

Use Large Muscles

The perfect exercise is that which uses the large muscles of the body in outdoor activity, Skating, skiing, tennis, badminton, swimming—they are all good. Health authorities agree that every woman should have at least one hour's activity daily in the fresh air. When the measurements are disproportionate, this should be supplemented by specific exercise to build up or slim down the measurements.

Once the average woman becomes weight conscious, she is apt to put too much dependence in diet, neglecting exercise. This not only fails to improve the figure as weight is reduced, but it is a detriment to the health.

Sonja Henie's lithe and graceful figure is due to exercise and diet. She controls the curves by eliminating sweets from her diet, and including fruits, vegetables and milk

Mary Haworth's Mail

Hurt by Fiance's Failure to Send Sentimental Tokens on Special Days, Girl Asks, "Am I Foolish?"

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: For the past two years I have been going with a boy to whom I became engaged at Christmas. Prior to the time of our engagement, I overlooked it when he failed to remember me on special occasions, such as Valentine's Day, Easter, etc. But now that we are engaged, I find it rather hard to excuse his negligence.

We live 30 miles apart and I see him on an average of once a week. We write to each other during the week and while I answer his letters promptly, he takes his time about acknowledging mine. He works and so do I, but I always find time to answer his letters, while he spends his leisure at the movies. Whenever I ask why he hasn't written, he gives the same old answer, "I haven't had time."

I have sacrificed pleasures in order to remain faithful to him and I feel that I have a right to expect him to write more promptly and also to remember me on special occasions. I feel that he doesn't really love me, when he fails to show me these little attentions. I wonder if I'm being foolish or selfish in expecting the "little things" that mean so much to a girl? Do you think I should break the engagement, but continue to be friends with him? Once I talked of breaking the engagement, but he was so terribly hurt that I couldn't go through with it. Please give me your opinions as quickly as possible.

WONDERING.

Pledges and Symbols Keep Love Alive

DEAR WORRIED: Surely a girl is not being "foolish or selfish" in expecting her avowed true love to keep her gallantly reminded of his devotion during the period of courtship and engagement, when pledges and symbols are well nigh indispensable preliminary substitutes for the material and immediate manifestations of tender allegiance which characterize happy married companionship.

On the contrary, the betrothed man who fails to "remember" his sweetheart with sentimental tokens on "special occasions," such as Easter, Valentine's Day, her birthday, etc., is behaving in a foolish, selfish manner. To be "foolish," the dictionary tells us, is to be unwise; to show lack of judgment. To be selfish is to "care unduly for oneself, in disregard or at the expense of others." Your fiance is foolish, lacking in judgment, in letting the flame of love die out of your heart for lack of fuel; and his neglect is inspired by supreme selfishness—by the assumption that he can let you do the heavy work of keeping the relationship in repair.

However, you have already learned from experience that his selfishness is invulnerable to plaintive suggestion; that nagging aggravates, rather than corrects, the dismaying situation. And if this is true now, in days which should be the most roseate and sentimentally indulgent in your respective lives, you may expect that the friction engendered by dissimilar philosophies of behavior will become more pronounced when the high tide of romantic expectancy recedes; as it will when—and IF—you two settle down to the routine association of marriage.

So, if you don't like your fiance's behavior—as, obviously you don't, and justifiably—it is wiser to break the engagement than to try to reform him by the lecture-and-exhortation method. The only alternative would consist of trying to educate him, by gracious and generous example, in the technique of love's expression which you most admire, and which all sensitive lovers spontaneously employ. Yet it is doubtful that he would respond favorably to the subtly instructive approach, for the reason that he is too complacently self-engrossed to see that he has anything to learn from another's behavior.

Answer To "Angelica" Indignantly Challenged

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have been reading your interesting column for years but today (February 4), for the first time I am indignant at your apparent lack of insight. I refer to your reply to "Angelica"—who presents the problem of a friend of hers, an expectant mother, who, fearing death, desires to will her child to her family's care. It seems obvious that you have not been blessed with children, or you could not callously dismiss the woman's fears as "neurasthenic," nor charge her with "cravenly surrendering to hysteria."

As a result of my own intimate experiences with the processes of birth in the medical profession, I feel safe in saying that nearly all expectant mothers who are awaiting their first child show the same reaction to some degree. In a few cases, the attitude is justified; in others, it is merely foresight.

This woman's mother is living. Her character and disposition are known to the daughter. It is possible that the husband's family does not rise to the standards of the wife's family, or even to the standards of the husband himself. And supposing he were left with the child, he could not give the baby adequate care unless he spent 24 hours each day with it, as a mother would. No, if he kept the baby in his home, he would of necessity have to employ an outsider, perhaps an ignorant one, to care for his child.

Thus I feel, my dear Miss Haworth, that you condemned this women's attitude hastily. Of course, there is little danger of death if she has adequate medical care. But surely, even if you have had no personal experience of the kind, you should know that pregnancy, like the climacteric, induces uncontrollable moods of fear and unreason. I was not so affected, yet before the birth of my first child, I felt that same urge to insure the baby's welfare in the event of my death. But my mother was gone, so I let it pass. I heartily approve of most of your work, but please—no more of these impulsive judgments. Sincerely,

NANCY.

Motherhood Begets Self-Control and Courage

DEAR NANCY: In remarking to "Angelica" that her friend was "cravenly surrendering to hysteria," I was speaking from personal experience, which begot a viewpoint different from yours. I have children, and it seems to me that the total panoramic experience of motherhood is primarily productive of self-control and courage—such as one might never have developed had one been denied that experience.

Salmon Casserole A Prize Winner

Mrs. W. L. McIntyre, 2415 Fourteenth street northeast, Washington, D. C., was the winner of the fifth prize in this week's Post recipe contest. Her recipe, which was omitted from the contest Friday follows:

Salmon Casserole

Recipe: Place 1-3 can of salmon in greased casserole. Cover with a layer of sliced hard eggs (using 5 eggs in all) and 1-3 can of mushrooms and 1-3 can of mushroom soup. Sprinkle with permesan cheese (using 1½ cups cheese in all). Repeat in this order of ingredients until the casserole is filled. Pour jigger of sherry over all. Place in moderate oven and bake for 20 minutes. Serve in paty shells or on toast. Serves 8.

Make New Chair Covers

A REAL spring beauty! That's what a pretty slip cover makes of your dingy chair or sofa—and easily you run one up.

A gay ruffled cover of chintz in a "calico" is a sprightly pattern. Tiny flowers in many colors are sprinkled on a French blue ground—and seams are trimly bound in a flower color.

But, whatever fabric you choose, you make your slip cover the pin-on way in three simple steps.

1. PIN AND CUT. Smooth fabric over back and seat, leaving a 4-inch tuck-in between them. Have fabric right side out, for bound seams. Now pin along the lines of the upholstery and cut 1½ inches outside pins for seams. Similarly, pin and cut pieces for arms, sides, back and front.

2. BASTE AND TRY ON. Remove the pinned cover, baste along the lines of the pins. Then fit carefully to get that custom-made look.

3. STITCH AND FINISH. When making bound seams, trim the edges neatly, have the binding cover the stitches. The perkily gathered flounce you add last of all—and now you have a slip cover to grace any room!

Step-by-step directions and diagrams for the pin-on method are given in our 40-page booklet, "Making Slip Covers Successfully." Explains fully how to estimate material, fit and finish slip covers for every type of chair and sofa. Has decorators' suggestions on materials, trimming.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, "Making Slip Covers Successfully," to The Washington Post, Home Institute, 100 West Nineteenth street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Hostess Finds Hassock Invites Informal Talk

Talented Woman Asked, and Received, One for Christmas

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

THE difference in a woman who has a flair for hospitality and home-making and the one who doesn't is usually a question of values. She with the flair can see the possibilities of both commonplace things and out-of-the-ordinary ideas . . . she'd rather make out with the old kitchen stove (which works all right even if it doesn't look as slick as a whistle) and use the money for a charmingly sociable extravagance.

An enormous hassock, for instance, to stand out in the middle of the floor and big enough to seat two or three comfortably or more in a push. It's really a modern adaptation of a Victorian notion. In a home we admire, presided over by a woman as talented as a hostess as she is clever as a mother, a hassock like this was her choice for the family's Christmas present to her. And before the holiday parties were over, everybody saw the point of such a piece, even those who couldn't get the idea in the beginning.

Her living room has sea green walls and a two-tone light beige rug. The sofa in copper velvet has extra cushions in flowered chintz with a light green ground and russet to yellow tones predominating in the pattern. This chintz is used for curtains and for slip covers on three upholstered chairs. An open-arm chair has a green and copper-striped seat—the same material being used for seats of the side chairs. The furniture in this pleasant room trends mostly toward blond modern—at least that's what she's getting as she adds new pieces. And yet certain of her old 1918 walnut fit genially into the scene, for it's not a stylized room. Brass andirons, brass lamp bases and brass candelabra and Chinese pewter bibelots provide pleasant accent.

And the hassock, in a rough textured beige material, now stands in front of the fireplace and invites casual intimate hours of talk and banter, and extra seating space for parties. It says, at a glance, that comfort, informality and jolly good times are the order of the day. Yet at the same time it adds style and individuality and we'll bet our antique sugar tongs that it will prove well worth its cost as the years go by.

Meat Pie Topping

Rich biscuit dough, lightly flecked with minced parsley and celery seeds, is a natty new topper for meat, fish, chicken or vegetable pies.

Sun, Nature's Tonic, Needed by Adults Not Only Children

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

"The human flower, of all flowers, is most in need of the sun." This was the categorical statement of the French historian Michelet.

We hope that all the readers of this column have embraced as many opportunities as possible to take their place in the sun in the dark days that we have been experiencing; especially that the babies and children have had the opportunity of doing so. "Skyshine" even on dark, smoky days, is one-fourth as effective as sunshine.

But the dark days are almost over. The smokefall of our winters reaches its peak about January 15. The pollution of the air with smoke in American cities has a direct influence on the amount of sunshine we get, there being twice as much in December as in July. Even rain and snow do not decrease it.

Begins to Wear Off

But in February the smokefall begins to wear off and if you have had no chance before, get the baby and the children out in the sun for an anti-rachitic dose of energy. "Anti-rachitic" means the prevention of rickets.

Rickets is a disease of darkness. Infants under six months of age are most susceptible to it. It appears with its heaviest incidence in the early spring months after the deprivation of sunlight of the short, dark, smoky days.

The sunlight acts on the infant's skin as it acts on the green leaf of a plant. It produces vitamin D, which prevents rickets.

Rickets is a disease of the bone, due to lack of sufficient lime and phosphorus, the building blocks of the bones, which make them strong and sturdy. Without calcium deposits they become soft and are liable to deformity—knock-knees, bow-legs, bent ribs, twisted arms. There may be plenty of calcium in the diet, but without vitamin D to fix it in the bones, it is not utilized.

Supplied by Fish Oils

Vitamin D can be supplied in the diet in the form of cod-liver oil or halibut liver oil. I am asked what form of cod-liver oil I recommend; it makes no difference so long as the oil measures up to United States Pharmacopoeia standards and has the proper number of vitamin D units.

But adults need sunshine, too. The sun is the great source of energy of the world. Systematic exposure to the sun causes an increase in well-being and strength—the blood grows richer, the tone of the muscles better. It is a real spring tonic.

Throng of Notables Attend Ferguson Tea

Society Turns Out in Force for Event In Honor of Mrs. Wiggins, Hostess' Sister; Frothy Sherbet, Sherry Regale Guests

By Elizabeth Henney.

Through the marble halls of the Wyoming Apartments yesterday afternoon flowed a steady stream of silken gowned and fur swathed members of Washington society, hundreds of them, to the tea given by Mrs. Garland Ferguson in honor of her sister, Mrs. Maude Merrimon Wiggins, of Washington and Greensboro, S. C.

In the cozy drawing room with its rich furniture of antiques, the hostess, her guest of honor, another sister, Mrs. William M. Crawford (here for a visit from South Carolina) and Mrs. Ferguson's daughter, Mrs. William B. Snow, jr., received the guests from 4:30 to well after 6 o'clock.

Mrs. Ferguson wore an all-black floor-length crepe tea gown, which set off her silver hair most effectively. Her only ornaments were two rhinestone clips and she wore a cluster of gardenias on her shoulder.

Mrs. Wiggin, the guest of honor, was also in black, the material of narrow strips of satin and chiffon and fashioned with a very bouffant floor-length skirt, tight basque waist, short puffed sleeves and a sweetheart neckline. With it she wore a corsage of gardenias.

Mrs. Crawford Wears Gowns of Red Crepe

Mrs. Crawford was gowned in a red crepe frock which swept the floor and was accented with gold trim. Mrs. Snow, daughter of the hostess, topped a full-length black silk jersey skirt with a long-sleeved, high-necked, form-fitting jacket of sky-blue which was accented down the front with a design of gold braid. Both Mrs. Crawford and Mrs. Snow wore gardenias.

From the drawing room guests wandered through the main hall of the apartment, where assisting hostesses were on hand to tempt them with frothy sherbert from a mammoth silver bowl, a cup of pineapple punch or a glass of excellent sherry.

In the dining room spring had arrived and rioted in a tempest of blended flowers over the tea table and the buffet. The exquisite tablecloth of solid Point-Venice lace drew envious sighs from the guests and the silver tea services at either end of the table gleamed in the flickering light from tall green tapers in silver holders.

Mrs. Douglas Among Those Who Pour

Pouring during the afternoon were Mrs. William O. Douglas, Mrs. Paul V. McNutt, Mrs. Bolitha Laws, Mrs. Ralph Sabin, Mrs. Harllee Branch, Mrs. Pat Harrison, Mrs. Robert Doughton, Mrs. Otis Bland, Mrs. Cloyd Heck Marvin, Mrs. Sam Whitaker, Mrs. Justin Miller and Mrs. Josiah Bailey.

Also Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, Mrs. Paul Vincent, Mrs. Humphrey Daniel, Mrs. Edward Stitt, Mrs. George C. Thorpe, Mrs. Bruce Kremer, Mrs. David McCoach, jr., and Mrs. Samuel Herrick.

Generally assisting during the afternoon were Mrs. Camden McAtee, Mrs. Richard Whitely, Mrs. Everett Sanders, Mrs. Raymond Walsh, Mrs. Frederick Weigester, Mrs. Joseph Baker, Mrs. Lowell Mason, Mrs. Frank Wideman, Mrs. Ashley Curtis, Mrs. Jennie Murchison, Mrs. Newell Ellison, Mrs. William Stroud, and Mrs. Newman Townsend.

Also Mrs. John Shea, Mrs. Reba Doughton, Mrs. James Carr Mebane, Mrs. Albert Warner, Mrs. William Joyner, Mrs. Robert McNeil, and Mrs. Rowland C. Marshall.

Cousin Accompanies Mrs. Thurman Arnold

Among the earlier arrivals during the afternoon were Mrs. Thurman Arnold, with a cousin in tow; Mrs. Thad Brown, Mrs. Bulkley Griffin and Mrs. Claude Pepper, wife of Senator Pepper.

Quite the center of attention in a large group of friends was Mrs. Allard Gasque, widow of the late Representative Gasque, of South Carolina. Mrs. Gasque, who was appointed Representative to fill out her husbands term in the House, has lately discovered a new talent, public speaking and lecturing, and is here to complete the final details for a speaking tour which will carry her throughout the country.

Dancing Class Holds Party

The Friday Evening Dancing Class met last night at the Willard for another in the series of supper dances given every winter by this group of official and residential society. Several dinners preceded the function, the largest being that held by Mr. and Mrs. John Townsend.

Guests of honor at their party at the Columbia Country Club were Mr. and Mrs. Francis Hill, jr. Mr. Hill is president of the District of Columbia Bar Association.

The company included Judge and Mrs. Bolitha Laws, Judge and Mrs. Rogers Arundel, Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Seal, Mr. and Mrs. Newell Ellison, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Wadden, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Weigester, Mr. and Mrs. Barrett Prettyman, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Montfort, Mr. and Mrs. John Darby, Mr. and Mrs. South Trimble, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Schneider, Mr. and Mrs. Justin Macklin, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hamel and Commander and Mrs. Daniel Logan.

Also attending were Mr. and Mrs. James Craig Peacock, Mr. Mr. and Mrs. Paul Shorb, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Cromlein, Mrs. Ellsworth Alvord and Lisle Smith.

Luncheon Honors Mr., Mrs. Robert At Palm Beach

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert, jr., who are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Worswick, in Palm Beach, were guests of honor at a luncheon given by their hosts on Thursday.

Another Palm Beach party of interest to Washington society was the tea given that same day by Mrs. Alvin T. Hert for the Misses Mary and Helen Patten, of the Capital. Mrs. Hert formerly lived here.

Capt. and Mrs. John H. Gibbons, of Washington, were among the guests at a luncheon given Thursday at the Florida resort by Blythe Walker Branch. The party also included Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Glasgow, the Hon. Capt. John Mitford and Mrs. Mitford, of London; Mr. and Mrs. Alexander M. Hadden, Mrs. John Wilkins, Mrs. Rodney Proctor and Henry Marsh.

E. S. U. Luncheon Parties Plnaned

Mrs. Paul Bastedo and Mme. Cantacuzene are among those who will have guests at the English Speaking Union luncheon on Monday at the Willard Hotel. Speakers will be Dr. Harry A. Garfield and Lothrop Stoddard.

Others planning to take friends to the affair are Mrs. James Oliver Murdock, Mrs. Robert E. Nelson, Miss V. Armstead Nelson, Miss H. L. Sargent, Mrs. Russell Singer, Mrs. Seth Williams, Mrs. Charles Walcott, Mrs. Ray Palmer, Mrs. M. Del Yarnell, Hugh Grant Smith, Clarence Hewes and Mrs. William Hemphill Bell.

At the speakers' table will be Dr. and Mrs. Garfield, Mr. and Mrs. Stoddard, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lincoln O'Brien, Dr. C. G. Abbot, Frederic Delano Lynch Luquer, Mrs. Edward B. Meigs and Mrs. A. G. Grant.

Reed Thomases Give Party in Garage With One-Man Band to Amuse Guests

A PARTY IN A GARAGE, with a one-man band to amuse the guests, was a highlight of George Washington's Birthday for many of the hunting set. Hosts were Mr. and Mrs. Reed Thomas, whose holiday breakfast followed the hunt with the Fairfax pack.

Guests were taken into the garage and attractive tack room adjoining recently built by Mr. Thomas, and found a long buffet table loaded with food. Drinks were served from a bar at one end of the tack room.

Well kept leathers—saddles, bridles and martingales—adorn the walls of the room, which are also decorated with paintings and photographs of horses and huntsmen. Red chintz hangings and an open fire added to the cheerful scene. Another fire blazed away in an old-fashioned Franklin stove.

The party ended with a gay Virginia reel to the music of B. M. Bridwell, of Falls Church, who plays a guitar, mouth harp, horn, and beats a drum.

FROM THE GARAGE, some of the guests wandered over to the Thomas home, Winfal, directly across the road. This is one of the most attractive house in Virginia, with pine paneled walls, dormer windows, floors of wide pine boards, and lovely antique furniture.

Before the breakfast, hounds met at the Thomas place at 11 o'clock, with about 15 riders following Stewart Preece, M. F. H. They drew Carter's Woods, where a fox was started at once. Going was deep and after half an hour's sport they checked and most of the riders pulled out on account of soft ground. However, the hounds continued on after the fox and later that afternoon the pack was seen in full cry near Vienna.

AMONG THOSE HUNTING were Mrs. Stewart Preece (the only lady out), David Wickens, Reed Thomas, Edward Howrey, Robert Graham, Naudain Simons, Jack Lewis, Joseph Wheeler and Comdr. Deke Otway.

The breakfast guests included Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Hatch, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Graham, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Howrey, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pickett, Miss Beverley Pickett, Mr. and Mrs. James Stone, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Bennett, Mr. and Mrs. Lennig Sweet, Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Parker, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Oliver, Mr. and Mrs. Naudain Simons, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Ward Sheppard, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Kimmel, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rassmussen, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Webber, Mr. and Mrs. James Marshall, Mrs. Mary Lipscomb Jamison, Robert McCandlish, James Keith and Dr. and Mrs. Edward H. Holmes, of Richmond, who are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Thomas.

MR. AND MRS. Frederick D. Richardson and their daughter, Miss Randolph Richardson, of White House, Fairfax, are spending several weeks at Miami Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Strother, of Delaplane, gave a "Gone With the Wind" theater party in Winchester on Friday, followed by a dinner at their home, Valley View. Among their guests were Mr. and Mrs. Channing Delaplane, Mrs. William Washington and Miss Jane Dudley.

Lieut. and Mrs. Thurston B. Clark, of Philadelphia Naval Air Station, flew to Philadelphia this morning to spend the week-end with Mrs. Clark's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Strother.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Borst, of White Plains, N. Y., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Wood Borst, to Dr. Arthur Morton Smith, jr., of Charlottesville, Va., son of Mr. and Mrs. Smith, of Hagerstown, Md.

The bride to be was graduated from Smith College. Dr. Smith is an almnus of Adelbert College, of Western Reserve University and of the Medical School of the same institution. He is a surgeon and chief of staff of the Martha Jefferson Hospital, in Charlottesville, and a member of the faculty of the University of Virginia Medical School.

Many Parties Planned to Bid Robertis Adieu

Popular Couple Will Leave Next Thursday For Mexico City Post

The Secretary of the Italian Embassy and Countess Roberti are going to an average of two parties a day in their honor before they leave next Thursday for Mexico City, where the count will be First Secretary.

The Counselor of the Belgian Embassy and Baroness de Gruben have invitations out for a supper in the Robertis' honor tomorrow, and the Ambassador and Countess van der Straten-Ponthoz will fete them on Monday afternoon at the cocktail hour.

Mrs. Truxtun Beale will be hostess at a cocktail party on Tuesday for Count Roberti and his attractive American wife, and that evening Mr. and Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss have planned a dinner for the popular pair at Dumbarton Oaks.

Count and Countess Roberti will make the trip to Mexico by automobile. This will be their first trip to that country, though they already have a number of friends there, among them Countess Naselli, the former Miss Helen Wardman.

Count and Countess Roberti came to Washington about four years ago. She was, before her marriage, Miss Mary Hammond and is the daughter of Ogden Hammond, of New York. Her brother, Ogden Hammond, jr., is expected here shortly for the State Department School for Foreign Service Officers who have completed their first tour of duty. He has been in Germany for the past year.

McGuire-Letts Wedding Today

The unusual gown worn by bride-to-be Dorothy Letts caused much admiring comment at the buffet supper given last night by Miss Mambie McKenna for her and her fiance, Ollie Roscoe McGuire. Miss McKenna will be a bridesmaid at their wedding this afternoon at the Church of the Covenant.

Miss Letts' frock was of white brocade, over 200 years old, which came from China. On the bodice were embroidered in Chinese characters the name of the maker of the dress and the date it was fashioned.

Supper was served at small tables centered with snapdragons and carnations in bridal white. Among the guests, most of whom will be members of the wedding party, were Mr. and Mrs. George Monk, Miss Jan Ramseyer, Miss Grace McGuire, Thomas Clagett, John Lynham, Robert Weppner, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Quinter, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Edward Oldham, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Houghton and Miss Marguerite and David Letts.

Parrs Are Hosts At Cocktail Party

Lieut. Comdr. Warren S. Parr, U. S. N., and Mrs. Parr, entertained yesterday afternoon at the Army-Navy Country Club at a cocktail party. Carrying out a color scheme of red and white, the dining table was decorated with red and white tapers, centered with red and white carnations. Cakes and candies continued the color scheme.

Assisting at the tea table were Mrs. John Ballantine, Mrs. William W. Shea, Mrs. Frank H. Schwable, and Mrs. Samuel S. Jack.

Ranking guests were the Assistant Secretary of the Navy Lewis Compton and Mrs. Compton. Others there were Rear Admr. and Mrs. E. J. King, Rear Admr. and Mrs. F. J. Horn, Rear Admr. John Towers, Chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics and Mrs. Towers; Rear Admiral and Mrs. Leigh Noyes, Capt. and Mrs. Garland Fulton, Capt. and Mrs. George D. Murray, Capt. and Mrs. M. A. Mitcher, Capt. and Mrs. Edward D. Washburn, jr., Capt. and Mrs. Sydney M. Kraus, Capt. and Mrs. Ernest M. Pace, Capt. and Mrs. Willis A. Lee and many more.

Cadys to Mark 60th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Hartwell Cady, of Mellett, S. Dak., who are visiting at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Danly, 3207 Foxhall road, will celebrate their sixtieth wedding anniversary tomorrow.

Mrs. Danly is at Garfield Hospital recovering from an illness, but Mr. Danly and their daughter, Miss Dorothy Danly, will be at home from 4 to 8 p. m. in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Cady.

Turkish Counselor Erol Gives Cocktail Party at Mayflower

Mme. Ertegun, Wife of the Ambassador, Receives With Him; Other Diplomats, Wives Partake of Buffet Luncheon

By Carolyn Bell.

The Counselor of the Turkish Embassy, Orhan H. Erol, entertained at a cocktail party yesterday afternoon between 5:30 and 7 o'clock in the Pan American Room of the Mayflower Hotel.

Receiving with Mr. Erol was Mme. Ertegun, wife of the Turkish Ambassador. Over her smart black costume she wore a sleek broadtail cape, and a tiny toque covered with red and purple flowers completed her ensemble.

Guests partook of sandwiches, stuffed eggs with caviar and sundry other dainties at the buffet. Champagne cocktails and Scotch seemed to be the favorite drinks.

Mme. Kutlu In Company

Sipping a cocktail and chatting with Mrs. Frances Mallan was Mme. Kutlu, wife of the secretary of the embassy. Very pretty is Mme. Kutlu, who yesterday wore a hat banded in scarlet feathers atop her raven hair. The Minister from Latvia and Mme. Bilmanis were in the company as were the Minister of Costa Rica and Senora de Recinos.

The commercial counselor of the Rumanian Legation, George Boncesco, was there. He reports that Ambassador Radu Irimescu, who was called abroad because of his mother's illness, will be returning next week. The Secretary of the Legation of Iran and Mme. Hadjeb-Davallou were there as were Mrs. Louis Caldwell, who was accompanied by Mrs. Jean Harlow in a gray ensemble with sleeves of chinchilla.

Leaves Soon For Cuba

Sevrin Turosinski, whose books on education are well known, dropped in for a short while. He will leave for Cuba within a fortnight and plans to write articles about the island republic. Signora Coppola, wife of the air and military attache of the Italian Embassy, was there as were the Portuguese Minister and Mme. Bianchi and the latter's daughter Miss Sibilla Skidelsky.

Others there included Mr. and Mrs. John McCormack, the attache of the Egyptian Legation, Anwar Niazi; Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Murray, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Alling and Mr. and Mrs. John O. Herrick.

Talk on Charm Draws Droves

Demonstrating that a formula for charm still draws women in droves, Miss Margery Wilson, authority on gracious living, attracted 350 members of society yesterday when she lectured at the Shoreham on "The Psychology of Poise." The meeting was the second in a series of Friday morning gatherings being conducted for both men and women by the Town Hall of Washington, of which Mrs. Richard V. Oulahan is chairman.

Several luncheons followed Miss Wilson's talk on how to achieve a more effective personality. Mrs. Paul V. McNutt, wife of the Federal Security Administrator, was the guest of Mrs. Jacob Leander Loose, and another luncheon party included Mrs. Wilbur Hubbard, Mrs. David Gunlock, Mrs. J. Fred Essary, Mrs. Charles Edward Riggs and Miss Wilson.

Others who attended the lecture were Mme. Bostrom, wife of the Swedish Minister; Mrs. William H. King, Mrs. Emory S. Land, Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, Mrs. John W. Studebaker, Mrs. James LeCron, Mrs. Huston Thompson, Mrs. Luther Sheldon, Mrs. McCook Knox and Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin.

Also Miss Sibilla Skidelsky, Mrs. Chester Flather, Mrs. James Craig Peacock, Mrs. Harold G. Walker, Mrs. William Jennings Price, Mrs. Barrett Prettyman, Mrs. Elmore Cropley, Mrs. L. Corrin Strong, Mrs. Christian Heurich, Mrs. Allard Gasque, Mrs. E. R. Finkenstaedt, Mme. Ricardo Alfaro, Mrs. Robert Greer, Mrs. Charles H. March, Mrs. Stanley Smith and Mrs. Robert Hare Taylor.

Ushering were several of the season's debutantes, among them the Misses Yolanda Alfaro, Billie Byrd West, Edith Pearson, Ann Sperry and Edith Wright.

Mrs. Roosevelt will speak March 8, and others scheduled for the Friday morning series are Elizabeth Hawes, fashion expert, and Dr. Louis K. Anspacher.

Wennerberg Baby Born on Birthday Of Washington

Washington's Birthday will always hold a special significance for the Counselor of the Swedish Legation and Mme Wennerberg, as they are parents of a girl born on the holiday at Garfield Hospital. Mr. and Mme. Wennerberg have two other daughters, Birgitta and Ingrid.

Another birth of interest to official circles was that of little Harriet Lee Hay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Barry Hay, who made her appearance in the world Wednesday at Georgetown Hospital. Mrs. Hay is the former Patricia McCarran, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Pat McCarran of Reno, Nev. Mr. Hay is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Hay of Arlington, Va.

Elizabeth Walcott, Mr. Cordis to Wed

Of interest here is the announcement by Mr. and Mrs. William S. Walcot, of Litchfield, Conn., and Daytona Beach, Fla., of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Walcott to Edward C. Cordis, son of Mrs. Thomas Edward Cordis, of Longmeadow, Mass., and Daytona Beach, and the late Mr. Cordis.

The prospective bride is a niece of Frederic L. Walcott, of Norfolk, Va., former United States Senator. She attended the Ethel Walker School in Simsburg, Conn.

Mr. Cordis attended Wilbraham Academy and the Jones School of Aeronautics.

Sacred Heart Convent Benefit Set for April 8

Mrs. Robert Whitney Imbrie, chairman of arrangements for the annual benefit for the Alumnae Association of the Convent of the Sacred Heart, announces that Monday, April 8, has been set for this year's function. The event, which features the Tableaux Vivants, to be staged by students of the convent, will take place at the Wardman Park Hotel from 4 to 6:30 p. m.

Mrs. Frank Slingluff, jr., is chairman of the entertainment committee. Mrs. Robert J. Coffey is president of the Alumnae Association.

'Leap Year Girls' Cocktail Guests

Mrs. John R. Williams' "Leap Year Girls," as she calls the young ladies assisting her in plans for the leap year ball to be held March 6 at the Sulgrave Club, were guests of honor at a cocktail party she gave yesterday afternoon at a local restaurant.

Mrs. F. Moran McConihe, chairman of the junior committee, was present, as were her assistants, who include the Misses Nancy Leiter, Helen Marie de Limur, Nancy Luttrell, Nancy Glover, Rosemary Merrill, Marilynn Himes, Alice Barry, Mary Wilson and Mrs. Gale McLean, Mrs. Lauriston Hardin, Mrs. Godfrey Kauffmann and Mrs. A. Y. P. Garnett.

Proceeds from the ball will go to the Thrift Shop, an organization run for several children's charities.

Military Attache Here From Italy

Brig. Gen. Adolfo Infante, the first military attache assigned to the Italian Embassy here since 1926, arrived earlier in the week in New York on the liner Vulcania. He was accompanied by his wife and their four children, Giovanella, 10 years old; Diana, 8; Carlo, 5, and Neri, 1½ months.

Gen. Infante has served in London and Geneva in diplomatic posts and speaks excellent English. Recently he has been in Tripoli, where he spent three years.

Signora Infante is an attractive brunette.

To Judge Show

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Hendricks have gone to Massachusetts, where they are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Francis V. Crane on their estate near Boston. While in New England, Mr. Hendricks will judge the English cocker spaniels at the Eastern Dog Club show, in Boston.

Hawaiian Party Given in Honor Of Miss King

Mrs. Eaton Marks Guest's Engagement And Her Own Birthday

One of the most original parties of the season was the Hawaiian luncheon given yesterday by Mrs. Philip Eaton for Miss Charlotte King, daughter of Samuel Wilder King, Delegate from Hawaii, and Mrs. King.

Not only were the decorations characteristic of the beautiful Pacific island, but everybody present except the hostess had been born in Hawaii. While not a native, Mrs. Eaton is well acquainted with the Territory, as she was stationed there with her husband, Commander Eaton, U. S. C. G., for several years.

Luncheon Honors Bride-to-Be

The luncheon celebrated two events—Miss King's approaching marriage to James McAndrews, son of Representative and Mrs. James McAndrews, of Illinois, and the birthday of the hostess. A linen shower for the bride-to-be brought the party to a climax.

In Honolulu it's the custom to spread Ti leaves over the table, but as these are not available here Mrs. Eaton used rhododendron, with white carnations tucked among the shiny green leaves. A green cocoanut served as the centerpiece and around it were piled pineapples, mangoes, bananas and avocados.

At each place were macadamia nuts, brought all the way from Hawaii, and tied up in little baskets with white wedding bells. White candles carried out the bridal motif and for each guest there was a bouquet of white carnations. Presents for Miss King were tucked into a huge basket tied with white ribbons and hung with silver bells.

Couple May Be Wed This Spring

At the party were Mrs. Samuel Wilder King, Mrs. E. W. Greene and her daughter, Mrs. William Bentley, Mrs. James Pine and her twin sister, Mrs. Olaf M. Hustvedt, Mrs. Groton Wood, Mrs. R. R. Lyons and Mrs. W. N. Derby.

Miss King has not yet settled on the date for her wedding, but tentative plans are for sometime in May.

Ronald Balcoms In Sun Valley

Ronald Balcom, who with his wife, the former Miss Millicent Rogers, frequently visits here, is sojourning in Sun Valley, the famous winter resort in Idaho.

Mr. Balcom was among those taking part in a recent all-day sale held there at the shop of Frederick A. Picard, Swiss designer, as a benefit for the Finnish Relief Fund. The campaign is being continued with a series of "Skiers for Finland" dinners to be held in Sun Valley.

With several other prominent persons, Mr. Balcom acted as sales clerk in the shop. Others who sold behind the counter were Mrs. John Jacob Astor, Mrs. Eleanor Young, Mrs. W. Averell Harriman, Mrs. George F. Baker, jr., Miss Ridgeley Vermilye, Mrs. Christopher LaFarge, Mrs. Lawrence Coolidge, of Hamilton, Mass., who has frequently visited here, and ski instructors Hans Hauser and Friedl Pfeifer.

Officials' Wives and Old Friends Gather at Tea Honoring Mrs. Garner

Congressional Club Is Scene of Party; Marine Band Plays

By Jessie Ash Arndt
The Post Club Editor.

Cabinet, Supreme Court and Congressional wives, and guests who were just old friends, gathered yesterday afternoon to greet Mrs. Garner, wife of the Vice President, at the tea given in her honor by the Congressional Club.

The party was one of the best of the season and brought out everybody in spring suits and bonnets. Sun streamed in the long windows of the ballroom on the second floor of the clubhouse, where the reception was held, and the Marine Orchestra, in bright uniforms, provided a colorful note in the setting as well as enjoyable music.

Mrs. Garner, who had not been to the clubhouse since it was remodeled, remarked she thought she was in the wrong place when she got upstairs. She received with Mrs. Edward Burke, the president, and other officers, standing before the fireplace opposite the stairway. The mantel was banked with ferns.

Mrs. Burke wore a navy blue jacket dress, with a piping of old rose, a matching flower, and a navy straw hat. Mrs. Garner was in black. Her tailored dress also made with a jacket that had wide revers, with a narrow polka dot edging. Her corsage was of gardenias. Next in line was Mrs. Clarence Hancock, of New York, wearing black, with a pearl necklace; Mrs. Robert L. Doughton of North Carolina, in black with a corsage of gardenias; Mrs. Ernest Lundeen, wife of Senator Lundeen, of Montana, wearing a pink feather hat and a black gown with a yoke of rose point lace and a corsage of maiden hair fern and rose-colored cyclamen; Mrs. Ewing Thomason, of Texas, in a black dress, trimmed with gold; Mrs. Samuel King, wife of the delegate from Hawaii, in black with a pheasant turban; Mrs. John R. Murdock, of Arizona, in black with a collar and pocket edges of silver sequins; Ms. Robert Rich, of Pennsylvania, wearing a green dress embroidered with gold beads and a fur hat, and Mrs. Clyde Smith, of Maine, in a black brocaded tunic dress, and black hat.

Many Come Early And Stay Late

Many guests came early and stayed late and others dropped in toward the end of the party. Among the later arrivals were Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, and Mrs. Robert H. Jackson, wife of the Attorney General, who came together. Mrs. Wallace was in a navy blue costume, her sailor hat trimmed with a pink ornament. Mrs. Jackson wore a wine-red dress and small hat of matching shade. Mrs. Felix Frankfurter, wife of Associate Justice Frankfurter, who arrived earlier, wore a grey taupe suit with a beaver yoke and a matching high turban. Other Supreme Court wives were Mrs. Stanley F. Reed, wearing a smart black costume, with a Breton sailor; Mrs. Owen J. Roberts, also in black, and Mrs. William O. Douglas, who hurried in toward the end of the afternoon, accompanied by Mrs. Louis Caldwell. Mrs. Douglas wore a print dress, on a black ground, with a small black hat and a gray fur coat. Mrs. Caldwell's dress was back and her small, hat was of pink flowers.

When Mrs. Douglas came, part of the receiving line—namely, Mrs. Burke and the guest of honor—was on an inspection tour of the new kitchen of the clubhouse and the fourth floor site of the old one.

Among those who alternated at the tea table were Mrs. Henry Cabot Lodge, who was in an attractive green frock, with a necklace of gold maple leaves, and a mink-trimmed hat; Mrs. Richard Kleberg, wearing a black dress and flat little green feather hat, trimmed with a green wing; Mrs. Morris Sheppard, Mrs. Albert Thomas, Mrs. Paul Kilday, Mrs. Edward Gossett, Mrs. Luther Johnson, Mrs. George Mahon, Mrs. Wright Patman and Mrs. Nat Patton.

Mrs. Richard Duncan, chairman of hospitality for the season, acted as hostess in the dining room, wearing a black dress, the yoke and sleeves embroidered in gold and turquise beads.

Everyone Wears Spring Costumes At Afternoon Event

Mrs. William Doak Is Among Guests

Among the guests was Mrs. William N. Doak, who had just returned from a visit in New York with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Whiting, of Neenah, Wis. She wore a black suit with pique vest and a small black hat with a pique frill forming the crown. Among others there were Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg, in black velvet; Mrs. Willis J. Davis, of Atlanta, sister of Representative Hatton Sumner, with Mrs. Mike Monroney; Mrs. Earl Michener, who first knew Vice President and Mrs. Garner when they first came to Washington and all lived at Congress Hall; Mrs. C. N. Stover, also a friend of Congress Hall days; Mrs. Jed Johnson, for whom it was the first party since she had attended the birth of Jed, jr.; Mrs. Garner's daughter-in-law, Mrs. Tully Garner, wearing a gray and gold print; Mrs. Wilburn Cartwright, Mrs. Will Rogers, Mrs. Walter A. Bloedorn, Mrs. A. J. Gronna, Mrs. James Craig Peacock, Mrs. Herron Pearson, Miss Vivian Vestal, accompanied by Miss Pearl McCall; Mrs. Clyde Williams, Mrs. Karl LeCompte, who had as her guest Mrs. Nell V. Smith, president of the Professional Writers Club.

Mrs. Malcolm Tarvar, of Georgia, had as her guest Mrs. Staton Clemmons, who has just come here as a bride from Rome, Ga.; Mrs. James Fitzpatrick, Mrs. Josh Evans, Mrs. Harry Engelbright, Mrs. E. C. Moran, Mrs. Donald Lawrence, Mrs. Herbert Walker, Mrs. Emmett O'Neal, Mrs. Ralph O. Brewster, who had as her guest, Mrs. Mary Hexton, of Bangor, Me.; Mrs. Jesse Wolcott, with Mrs. W. M. Orem as her guest; Mrs. John Donaher and Mrs. Albert E. Austin, both of Connecticut; Mrs. Clarence Cannon, who had as her guest Miss Elizabeth Kehr, sister of Miss Mary B. Kehr, principal at Gunston Hall.

Woman Leader of Moose Tells Of Work at Children's Home

Mooseheart, the project of primary interest to members of the Women of the Moose, was described to Columbia Chapter last night by Mrs. Mary Sisson Wallace, of Cincinnati, grand regent of the order, on her first official visit to the local group.

Mrs. Wallace, who recently attended a conference at Mooseheart, told of the work being carried on there. It is a "city of children" founded near Chicago in 1913 by Senator James J. Davis, head of the Order of the Moose, for orphans of members of the organization. There are now more than 1,000 children being cared for there and given academic and vocational education. The youngest at present is 2 years old, and at 18½ years the graduates must leave and support themselves by the trades they have learned.

The "baby village," where 25 children of preschool age are cared for, is one of the most appealing places in Mooseheart, said Mrs. Wallace. They live in one cottage, with four house mothers to look after them. Each little bed in the dormitory has a quilt made by the Women of the Moose and decorated with appliqued designs of cats, dogs and other animals such as children enjoy. Beside each little bed is a little chair and there are also favorite toys to be cuddled tight at bedtime.

MRS. MARY S. WALLACE

"The little tots took me by the hand to show me their own beds, their own washstands, tooth brushes and soap, towels and wash cloths," said Mrs. Wallace. "It is their home and they have the pride of ownership in their individual belongings.'

In the dining room, they showed her where they sat—and it was a memorable sight to see them take their places at little tables for four, and "eat their spinach," she said.

The Mooseheart village includes, in addition to the children's cottages (each in charge of a house mother), a bank where every child, as soon as he is old enough, starts a savings account, putting away half of all the gift money he receives; a store for the boys and one for the girls, where they may select their own clothes under the house mother's supervision; and a recreation center with entertainment, including movies, concerts and sports programs, all suited to the children of different ages.

Part of the children's training is learning to help with the work of the cottage in which they live and that of the community, as they grow older, thus developing a sense of community responsibility, said Mrs. Wallace.

She told of the work of the Child Research Institute directed by Dr. Martin L. Reymert. She also commended the local Women of the Moose for their interest in the children, their correspondence with individual boys and girls and sponsorship of Dixie Cottage, for which they provide many things that contribute the atmosphere of a real home.

Mrs. Richard Clark, senior regent of Columbia Chapter, presided at the meeting, which was at Moose Hall, 1414 I street. John Lowe, who heads the Baltimore region of the Order of the Moose, also was present, as was W. T. Leinweber, superintendent of Mooseheart, who is here for the council meeting at the Mayflower.

Mrs. Clark headed the degree team that initiated a class of candidates in Mrs. Wallace's honor. Assisting her were Mrs. Anna Gilbert, Mrs. Calvin Giles, Mrs. George Clark and Miss Margaret Mitchell.

The candidates initiated were Mrs. Agnes Hopwood, Miss Olive Henderson, Mrs. Clura Jones, Mrs. Irene Krance, Mrs. Anna Kelly, Mrs. Ola Lee, Mrs. Margaret Wangler and Mrs. Mary E. Ward.

Temperance Meeting Set

Intensive campaign aimed at correcting local conditions considered "inimical to the American home" will be planned Tuesday and Wednesday in Baltimore at a regional conference of local and State W. C. T. U. officers from the District, Maryland and Delaware.

Mrs. Ida W. Ramsay, president of the District W. C. T. U., will head the delegation from here. Campaigns in local communities, she says, will be part of a national W. C. T. U. program.

Meeting with regional leaders will be two national officers, Mrs. Nelle G. Burger, Springfield, Mo., W. C. T. U. recording secretary, and Miss Martha Cooper, Evanston, Ill., national secretary, Youth's Temperance Council.

"This conference will inaugurate programs of research and of increased local union activity in local communities." Mrs. Ramsey declared.

In research, the W. C. T. U. will sponsor local committees of temperance, church, parent-teacher, and other groups to study conditions which have an unfavorable influence on social welfare.

Increased activity will begin with emphasis on the W. C. T. U.'s educational program, including visual education, total abstinance teaching and training of children and youth.

The studies are designed to give a large volume of factual data on ocal violations of all social welfare laws, including those which restrict or prohibit liquor, gambling, prostitution, narcotics; on percentage of saloons to population, and liquor laws.

The Baltimore conference is one of a series of 25 regional meetings which will include all States. Mrs. Burger and Miss Cooper have held similar meetings in Florida, Georgia, South Carolina, Virginia and North Carolina.

City Club to See 'Lolypop's Party'

"Miss Lolypop's Party," a children's play by Mrs. Theodore Tiller, will be presented tomorrow afternoon at the membership tea of the Women's City Club. The cast will be pupils of the Children's Studio of Drama, directed by Mrs. Rose Robinson Cohen.

The tea will be in the charge of Mrs. Frances Williams. She will be assisted by Mrs. Victor O'Kelliher, Mrs. Victoria Otto, Miss Isabelle Allen and Miss Nell Price. The program will be at 5 o'clock instead of 4:30, the usual hour.

Tuesday at 5 p. m. the civic group will be addressed by Miss Louise Boynton, president of the Pilot Club. Miss Boynton, who was for several years a teacher at St. Hilda's School in China, will speak on conditions there. Miss Boynton is now a member of the administrative staff of the District WPA.

The club board also will meet Tuesday night at 8 o'clock with Miss Marjorie Webster presiding.

Hollins Alumnae To Banquet Tuesday

The Washington Chapter of the Hollins Alumnae Association will hold its annual Founder's Day banquet Tuesday evening at the Kennedy-Warren Apartments.

Miss Sarah Wambaugh, lecturer, economist and authority on plebicites, will speak.

The chapter has a big membership and expects this banquet to be one of its largest functions.

M. Eleanor Breckenridge Club to Celebrate Friendship Day, March 7, With Banquet at Wesley Hall; Kilday to Speak

ON MARCH 7, the M. Eleanor Brackenridge Club will celebrate Friendship Day in honor of the Texas woman for whom it was named. The club's second annual banquet will be given that night at Wesley Hall, with Representative Paul J. Kilday, of Texas, and Robert L. Haycock, assistant superintendent of schools, as guest speakers.

The local club was founded March 2, 1938, at the home of Mrs. E. W. Schwartze, who in 1908 was responsible for starting a similar organization on the campus of Texas State College for Women. Its purpose is to perpetuate the ideals of friendship which Miss Brackenridge, for years a leading figure in club, civic and educational life in Texas, practiced and sought to instill in others. As a study subject, the members inform themselves on national legislation affecting the status of women. They also are founding a scholarship fund with which to aid girls through college, as Miss Brackenridge did during her lifetime.

Last season, at the club's request, the Governor of Texas proclaimed March 7 as Friendship Day for the State. This occasion, set aside in honor of Miss Brackenridge, was proclaimed as a time appropriate for expressing gratitude for friends, sending greetings to them and wiping out any differences which may have marred a friendship. It is the hope of the club that this day will be observed annually, not only in Texas, but, eventually, all over the Nation. Its own banquet is held on this date, the anniversary of Miss Breckenridge's birth.

Mrs. Schwartze, who is president of the club, will preside at the affair. The program will include, in addition to the talks by the two guest speakers, a sonnet to Miss Brackenridge, read by Etta Baldwin Oldham, formerly of Dallas; a report of the scholarship committee by Mrs. James L. Russell, the chairman, and a talk on "The Life of Miss Brackenridge as a Friend," by Helen Mortos.

Other officers are Mrs. Isaac S. Pugh, vice president; Louise Finchan, secretary; Frances Mestekin, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Carl Crittenden, treasurer.

TRAVEL TALKS. Mrs. Gladys B. Middlemiss, former acting president of the Women's City Club, has been providing a number of interesting programs for local groups lately, and has more scheduled. She is presenting illustrated lectures on her trip to Africa last year. She has another story to tell—about her visit to the British Isles last summer—but has not yet given it, so many people want to "see Africa first."

Last week, she talked at the City Club and the Albright Memorial Church. On Monday, she will talk at the Washington Sanitarium in Takoma Park; Wednesday night at a meeting of the Zeta Beta Chi Sorority in the Washington Hotel; March 5, before the Marietta Park Woman's Club, when she will tell of the Burns country in Scotland, and, the first of the week in April, before the Petworth Club.

WORK IN PAIRS—Two of the candidates for State office in the District D. A. R. this season have good support at home in their work for the Daughters.

One is Mrs. Fred Mills, treasurer of Samuel Gorton Chapter and candidate for assistant State treasurer, whose daughter, Catherine, is corresponding secretary of the Samuel Gorton Chapter. The other is Miss Phebe Ann Ross, regent of Columbia Chapter, who is a candidate for State librarian. Her sister, Miss Nellie Grant Ross, also a member of Columbia Chapter, is now State chairman of the geneological records committee.

LUNCHEON MONDAY — A member-bring-a-member luncheon will be held by the Washington Ladies Auxiliary to the Jewish Consumptives Relief Society Monday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Jacob Homes, 5319 Nevada avenue. Mah Jong and bridge will follow. Assistant hostesses will be Mrs. Louis Kalichstein, Mrs. J. A. Friedman and Mrs. William Kirsch.

SORORITY MEMBERS—Constance Huntley, the daughter of Col. Harold W. Huntley, of the Army War College, and Mrs. Huntley, has been initiated into the Chi Gamma Chapter of Chi Omega National Sorority. She is a graduate of Woodrow Wilson High School, and is now a member of the Freshman class of Marietta College, Marietta, Ohio.

Also initiated into the same sorority was Miss Katherine H. Rounds, who was graduated from the Chevy Chase High School last June, and is now a member of the freshman class at Marietta. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Rounds, 6310 Beechwood Drive, Chevy Chase.

ALL AT THE WEDDING—Members of Unity Council, Daughters of America, Thursday night attended the wedding of one of their members, Miss Irene Wiley, who became the bride of Frederick Bach. The ceremony was performed at Christ Church and the bridal couple left for a motor trip to Florida. On their return, the bride will be guest of honor at a shower planned by the council for March 12.

Sorority Plans Benefit Dance

The Phi Sigma Sigma Sorority of George Washington University will hold its third annual dance on the evening of March 9, 1940, at the Wardman Park Hotel, for the benefit of the "Flora Alpert Zucker Memorial Fund."

In 1937 it was called to the attention of the Phi Sigma Sorority of George Washington University that there were insufficient community funds available to supply special medicines and medical appliances for school children of indigent parents. To alleviate this, the Washington Alumnae Club of the sorority established the "Flora Alpert Zucker Memorial Fund," which has furnished, during the past two years, eyeglasses, artificial eyes, orthopedic shoes, braces, insulin and other special medicines.

The cases are brought to the attention of the board of trustees, which administers the fund, by the social service workers in the clinics of the various hospitals, school attendance officers, and private agencies, and are cleared through the Hospital Permit Bureau of the Health Deparement.

Among the cases that have been given assistance is that of a boy 13, attending junior high school, one of a family of six children.

Daughters Plan Social Tonight

The 27 D. C. councils of the Daughters of America will have their annual George Washington social tonight. Proceeds will go to the District council. The affair will be at Almas Temple and attendance of several hundred is expected.

Mrs. Laura E. Milburn is general chairman of arrangements, assisted by Mrs. Edna H. Gaither, chairman for tickets, and two representatives from each council.

There will be an entertainment from 8 to 9 o'clock, including a parade of States in costume and dances, from those of the colonial era to the present. General dancing will follow.

A dance has been announced by Goodwill Council for March 13 at 808 I street northwest.

Maine Alumni Meet Monday

The Washington Alumni Association of the University of Maine will meet Monday night at Tilden Gardens to commemorate the seventy-fifth anniversary of the founding of the university, then called the Maine State College of Arts.

Speakers will include Charles M. Allen, son of the university's first president; Nathan C. Grover, for many years a professor at the University and now chief hydraulic engineer of the U. S. Geological Survey, and Earle O. Whittier, at one time a professor, now senior chemist at the Department of Agriculture. Lore A. Rogers, chief of dairy research laboratories, Bureau of Dairy Industry, will be toastmaster.

The committee in charge of the meeting is composed of Miss Miriam Hilton, Charles MacLean, and Lore Rogers. The president of the group is Miss Marion Lord.

Art Section Plans Spring Style Show

The art section of The Woman's Club of Chevy Chase is sponsoring a bridge tea and spring style show at the clubhouse at 2 p. m., Wednesday, February 28. Bridge prizes will be sterling silver bracelets, made by members of the craft unit of the section under the direction of the assistant chairman, Mrs. Miles Trowbridge.

Mrs. Edwin J. Cameron, drama section chairman, will be the style commentator. The continuity for the style show will be written by Mrs. Benjamin Hugh Bennett, art chairman, and Mrs. James J. Hayden. Mrs. Bennett has selected to assist her Mrs. George M. Mathews, hospitality; Mrs. J. Lester Brooks, stage arrangements; Mrs. William E. Yost, tables; Mrs. Walter Miles, posters.

Luise Rainer To Talk at Dinner For Spanish Aid

Miss Luise Rainer will speak at a dinner-discussion for Spanish refugees on March 5 at the Shoreham Hotel.

Miss Rainer, film actress, will discuss the refugee in a new environment, and the contributions of Spanish refugees to the New World. Mme. Isabel de Palencia, former minister from the Spanish republic to Sweden, will describe the plight of refugees still in France who are unable to return to Spain under the present government.

The chairman of the dinner committee is Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, and sponsors include Mr. and Mrs. Thurman Arnold, Mrs. Louis D. Brandeis, Mrs. Raymond Clapper, Mrs. Eugene Meyer, Mrs. Stanley Reed and Mrs. Henry Wallace.

Leon Henderson, president of the Washington branch of the Spanish Refugee Relief campaign, will be the chairman.

The Spanish Refugee Relief campaign has financed the resettling of 20,000 Spanish families in Latin America and Mexico. Almost 200,000 remain in France and are depending upon the Spanish Refugee Relief campaign to assist them in finding new lives and homes.

China Aid Groups To Dine Tuesday

The Washington Committee for Aid to China and the American Committee for Non-Participation in Japanese Aggression will sponsor a dinner at 6:30 p. m. Tuesday at the National Press Club.

Speakers will be Maj. Evans Carlson, on "What a Marine Saw in China," and Senator Schwellenbach, of Washington, on "America's Assistance to Japan."

Vassar Alumnae To Meet Today

A luncheon meeting of the Vassar seventy-fifth anniversary committee, of Washington, will be held at the Y. W. C. A. at 1 p. m. today.

At the last luncheon a collection of $12,900 toward the local goal of $34,500 was reported by Miss Helen Zartman, treasurer. Gifts made in the last two weeks will be recorded on a 6-foot thermometer by the treasurer today.

Plans are under way for a card party and a benefit and bazaar at which music will be played on shepherd's pipes with a brief talk on the history of bamboo pipes and how to make them.

At a recent dinner, in Poughkeepsie, in honor of Dr. Henry Noble MacCracken's twenty-fifth anniversary as president of Vassar, it was announced that gifts totaling $1,004,000, or more than half of the goal of $2,000,000, had been made. In addition, an anonymous gift of $50,000 for a low-cost faculty housing project, preference to be given to members in lower income brackets, was announced at the same time.

Entertain at Benefit

Many dinner parties will precede the Smith College Club scholarship fund benefit performance of Cornelia Otis Skinner in "Edna, His Wife," at the National Theater on Monday evening. Among those entertaining are Mrs. Emory S. Land, Mrs. Rudolph Max Kauffmann, Mrs. Keitth Merrill, Mrs. Ridley McLean, Mrs. Lewis B. McBride and Mrs. Kenneth Holland, president of the club.

Returns From Skiing

Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne, wife of the Norwegian Minister, has returned from a week's skiing holiday in Bradford, Pa.

Mount Vernon Superintendent To Talk on D. A. R. Broadcast

Charles C. Wall, superintendent of Mount Vernon, will talk on "George Washington as a Private Citizen" in a broadcast over Station WJSV at 9:45 this morning. The broadcast was arranged by Mrs. Lee R. Pennington, jr., chairman of the State radio committee of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Wall, who is a member of the Alexandria-Washington Masonic Lodge at Alexandria to which George Washington belonged, has been connected with Mount Vernon for ten years, having served under Harrison Dodge for eight and a half years and since Dodge's death, as superintendent of the estate.

The Dorthy Hancock Chapter of the D. A. R. will celebrate its twenty-fifth anniversary with a luncheon and entertainment at the Raleigh Hotel Monday at 1 o'clock.

Among the honored guests will be the charter members who still reside in Washington and vicinity. Of the 14 original charter members, 8 still are active in this chapter. They are: Mrs. Dorothy Smallwood Geare, Mrs. Marie Adams King, Mrs. Catherine Birney Strong, Mrs. Dorothy Dobyns Morrison, Mrs. Marie Tunstall Lingo, Mrs. Nina Van Arsdale West, Mrs. Marguerite Weller Hynson, Miss Anne Tuohy.

Mrs. Geare, at the date of organization, February 26, 1915, was the organizing regent.

Other guests to be honored at this meeting are: Miss Lillian Chenoweth, state regent; Mrs. Harry Grove, president of the Chapter House Corporation; Mrs. William Sherman Walker, honorary member of the chapter.

As a part of the silver celebration, the chapter will present to the new chapter house, 1732 Massachusetts avenue, a silver tea service made in America about 1801. This tea service was purchased in New York, after considerable research, by Mrs. J. R. Grove, a member of the chapter.

H. O. Bishop, guest speaker, will discuss the significant history relating to Dorothy Hancock chapter, with particular reference to the woman for whom the chapter was named.

Vocal numbers will be sung by Mrs. William W. Everett, jr., accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Lois Abernathy.

Columbia Chapter will meet at 8 p. m. Tuesday with Mrs. William J. Myrth, 1908 Second street northeast. Assisting hostesses will be Miss Dora V. Bailey, Mrs. Florence R. Cole, Mrs. Albert H. Coster and Mrs. Dora F. Gilligan.

The chapter will have Mrs. William H. Wagner, State chairman, junior American citizens committee, as guest speaker. The chapter members are much interested in this phase of the State program. Miss Phoebe Ann Ross is regent.

Seal Weighs Occoquan Case Appeal

Freeing of Man Juvenile Court Convicted Faces Legal Contest

A recommendation to appeal from a District Court order freeing a local man from Occoquan, where he is serving a nonsupport sentence imposed by Juvenile Court, was made yesterday to Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal by his assistant in Juvenile Court.

Seal will study the case, together with the decision by District Court Justice F. Dickinson Letts. Michael J. Keane, jr., is the assistant corporation counsel making the recommendation. Justice Letts ordered the release of Walter B. Wilson, colored, after a habeas corpus hearing Wednesday.

Conviction Held Unlawful

Wilson was sentenced to a year by Judge Fay Bentley on January 9 for failing to obey a court order requiring him to pay $20 a month to Mrs. Mary Wilson. Justice Letts held that since no children were involved in the case, Wilson's conviction was unlawful, pointing out that the jurisdiction of the Juvenile Court was limited by the Act of June 1, 1938, to cases involving children.

The decision, it was stated, would mean the release for five other persons now in the Workhouse.

The District Chapter, American Association of Social Workers, meanwhile petitioned Attorney General Jackson to recommend a judge of Juvenile Court with "social work qualifications" as well as knowledge of law. The petition expressed approval of the court's conduct in recent years.

Favor Judge Bentley

"Children who get into trouble," the petition said, "or whose parents do not properly safeguard their welfare, need the help of a sympathetic, trained and experienced court staff under guidance of a judge who appreciates the value of constructive supervision of these situations. Local social workers have observed with satisfaction the progress made toward this end during the past several years and hope that this trend may continue."

William H. Savin, chairman of the chapter, said he believed "there is a general hope among the membership that Judge Bentley be reappointed." He said protests of "responsible citizens" to Mrs. Roosevelt "are obviously based on partial data, selected and distorted to have a damaging effect."

Civic Federation Seeks Delay

The Federation of Civic Associations last night voted to send the Attorney General a telegram asking that he withhold designation of a judge of the Juvenile Court until further citizens' conferences might be held.

The resolution followed an extended debate on the fitness of Judge Fay Bentley for the position which she has held, and the comparative fitness of other aspirants. A committee to investigate Juvenile Court conditions was named. It consists of W. G. Henson, Mrs. Geneva Dalton and Kenneth H. Carter.

The federation indorsed the Kennedy bill for an elective council for the District of Columbia. It also voted to thank Gov. O'Conor for his action in saving two women from a mob at Snow Hill, Md.

The Industrial Home School at Blue Plains, subject of a special federation study, was discussed by its superintendent, Wendell P. Tucker. The federation recorded its opposition to a proposal to move the school to Muirkirk, Md.

The Post Commended

Plans for modernization and beautification of playgrounds were made subject of a special study by the federation, which also indorsed to a "clean-block" organization among colored school children, and a "clean-up?paint-up" campaign beginning April 1, incident to Negro Health Week.

The Washington Post was commended by the federation for its portrayal of the public schools in pictures in its Our Town section.

A committee on the Star Trophy Award, for the association evidencing highest civic interest during the last year, was named. It includes George W. Beasley, Ernest F. Harper and Emory A. Bryant.

Sleuths Chase Sleuths Till All Are Free

MRS. EVELYN LUBITZ
lost no time in calling police

Sam Lubitz, who runs a grocery at 222 H street northwest, was down in the cellar with a friend last night counting the day's receipts. Upstairs, his wife, Evelyn, was keeping an eye on things.

She kept a very good eye on things, because she soon noticed three men get out of a parked car, two of them switching pistols from holsters to overcoat pockets. That was enough for Mrs. Lubitz.

In an instant she had the front door locked and barred. She warned her husband and phoned for police. The friend decided to make a run for it, escaped and also called police. But when, after a minute or two, police still failed to show up, Sam tried to run the gauntlet and was seized by the men with guns.

At this moment police arrived from all directions and seized everybody. Sam was freed; the men with guns were freed; the police went back to their duties.

The men with guns, it finally appeared, were United States marshals searching the neighborhood for a fugitive from justice and Sam's running had made them as suspicious about him as Mrs. Lubitz had been about them.

Anacostians Back Church Proposal For Liquor Survey

The Anacostia Citizens Association last night went on record as favoring a request of the Washington Federation of Churches that there be a survey of the conditions of liquor sales in the District. The group held its regular meeting at the Anacostia Junior-Senior High School.

A resolution requesting no further cuts in personnel of the Fire Department and restoration of 15 members was adopted. The association urged in a resolution that the federation adopt an amendment requiring all associations requesting membership in the body to have settled amicably all boundary disputes.

Motion pictures of termite extermination methods were shown.

Mrs. Hermann Wed To H. M. Bralove, Shoreham Head

Harry M. Bralove, president of the Shoreham Hotel Corporation, was married to Mrs. Helen Selby Hermann, of 4010 Leland street, Chevy Chase, Md., yesterday at Fredericksburg, Va.

Bralove is 49. Mrs. Hermann gave her age as 34. Both had been previously married and divorced.

The ceremony, which was performed by Marriage Commissioner Lemuel M. Houston, was attended by members of the two families. Bralove has three sons, Bernard, an attorney with the National Labor Relations Board, and Richard and Allen, students. Mrs. Hermann has a daughter, Joy.

After the ceremony the couple left on a wedding trip. Relatives here last night said they expect the couple to be gone about two weeks.

D'Alesandro To Inspect Institutions

Bondy to Accompany Him; Hearings Will Be Resumed Tuesday Morning

Inspections of the Industrial Home School, the National Training School and District penal institutions will be made next week by Representative D'Alesandro (Democrat), of Maryland, and Public Welfare Director Robert E. Bondy.

D'Alesandro, chairman of the House subcommittee on public health, said that hearings will be resumed at 10:30 o'clock Tuesday with Bondy and Mrs. Spencer Gordon, of the welfare board, as witnesses.

Commissioners Invited

The District Commissioners also have been invited to attend the hearing, D'Alesandro said, although he indicated that he will not ask them to testify, as he had planned, because of their recent orders to effect improvements at Blue Plains and the Children's Receiving Home.

Another inspection of the Home for the Aged and Infirm was made yesterday by a delegation of a dozen women, including the wives of members of Congress, who had been advised to take the trip by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Mrs. Paul Appleby, of the League of Women Voters, headed the delegation, but the other members insisted on remaining anonymous, as the trip was intended to have been made without the fanfare of publicity that has attended previous visits to Blue Plains.

Meanwhile, the Health Department began checking on conditions at Blue Plains in compliance with directions of the Commissioners.

Gallinger Hospital physicians began physical examinations of all the inmates at Blue Plains under the direction of Dr. Edgar A. Bocock, superintendent, with the aim of separating the ill from the well.

Dr. Carl C. Dauer, epidemiologist of the Health Department, and Dr. Joseph A. Murphy, director of medical and sanitary inspections of the public schools, were directed to examine food handlers and cooks at the institution and to report to Health Officer George C. Ruhland.

At the last hearing of the D'Alesandro subcommittee on Tuesday, Bondy denied that diseased inmates assisted in serving food at Blue Plains. Frank Haskell, superintendent, has testified that they do.

Symphony Gets Rousing Ovation On Florida Tour

The National Symphony, now on tour of the South, last night received a rousing ovation from a capacity audience at Winterpark, Fla., according to a dispatch from C. C. Cappel, manager. The concert, directed by Dr. Hans Kindler, was played in the Rollins College auditorium.

Distinguished guests at the concert and the reception following included Mrs. Henry Alvah Strong, of Washington, one of the founders of the National Symphony and the mother of L. Corrin Strong, president of the National Symphony Orchestra Asssociation. Mrs. Strong is spending the winter there.

Attending a reception after the concert by Hamilton Holt, president of the college, were Irving Batcheller, writer; Carl Sandburg, poet and biographer, and Senora Isabel de Palencia, Spanish diplomat.

Pageant Weighed For Cherry Fete

Debate over a fireworks display or water pageant to round out the Cherry Blossom Festival occupied a general committee meeting yesterday at the District Building. Date of the festival will be set next week.

At yesterday's meeting were Commissioners McCoach and Allen, Maj. Horace Smith, Capt. P. J. Carroll, of the Park Police; Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, Col. Harrison Brand, jr., L. Gardiner Moore, and representatives of the National Park Service, Community Center and other civic and business groups.

Hurley Attacks U. S. Expenses In Talk to Boys

Tells Them Future Has Been Mortgaged; 500 at Get-Together

Patrick J. Hurley, former Secretary of War, last night told 500 "citizens of tomorrow" that "success will come to you, if it comes at all, because of your own efforts."

Addressing members of the Capital Area Boy Scouts, the Metropolitan Police Boys Club, the Boys' Department of the Y. M. C. A. and the Boys Club of Washington at the Museum of Natural History Auditorium, Hurley said:

"These generous men who have been preaching to you that you are underprivileged have been paying their own salaries and emoluments and supporting their big automobiles out of funds they have obtained from a mortgage on your future. Do not let anyone tell you that the money these gentlemen have obtained from the mortgage on your future has been used for your benefit.

"It has not been used that way. Your future has been mortgaged to procure funds to make suitable appropriations to keep well-organized minorities and pressure groups on the right side of the political line-up.

"Recently your friends who have been saying that you are underprivileged have asked Congress to allow them to increase the mortgage against your future to 50 billion dollars so that they will have sufficient funds for 'welfare purposes' during the impending campaign."

Hurley declared that nevertheless "the rights and privileges that were the birthright of Lincoln are your birthright." He commended the social security program, saying that "as citizens of tomorrow you will approve social security," and adding that "the social security program has not been perfected."

Music was furnished at the get-together by the Metropolitan Police Boys' Club band. A pageant of Boy Scout work was presented by various Cub and Boy Scout troops of the Capital Area. Other events on the program included a tumbling team exhibition by members of the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A. and music by a harmonica trio of members of the Boys' Club of Washington.

Md. Relatives to Give Home To Girl, Locked Out in Snow

Ada Paugh, 18-Year-Old Cripple, Laughs With Delight When Told Capitol Heights Kinfolks Will Provide for Her

Ada Paugh, 18-year-old crippled girl who used to live in a Washington suburb, is coming back Sunday—and with a smile.

For the first time since she was found last Tuesday locked out of a relative's house in Somerset, Pa., in the heavy snow—her ears, feet and right hand frozen—Ada laughed yesterday, then clapped her hands.

Her face lightened because of good news from Probation Officer A. D. Shaffer, who told her a brother-in-law, E. C. Owen, was coming Sunday to take her to a home with him and his wife, who is Ada's older sister.

Loses 90 Pounds

The Owens, who live at 121 Baltimore avenue, Capitol Heights, Md., learned of the girl's plight by a newspaper story, and Wednesday got in touch with Somerset authorities. Last night, the Associated Press reported, Judge Norman T. Boose, of Somerset, agreed, upon Shaffer's recommendation to let the Owens take the girl with them.

Two years ago Ada lived with Mrs. Owen at 2220 First stret northwest. When at that time she left to live in Somerset, she weighed 165, Mrs. Owen said last night.

Authorities at Somerset told the Associated Press that Ada now weighs 75 pounds.

Mrs. Owen now lives with her husband and son, Robert Sidney, 5, in Capitol Heights. Owen is employed in a store at 845 Bladensburg road northeast.

Neighbors called Ada's plight to the attention of Somerset Probation Officer Shaffer Tuesday. They had found the girl shivering in the 20-degree cold. She was dressed only in a flimsy black dress she had just washed.

Bruised, Says Shaffer.

Shaffer told the Associated Press that Ada's back was bruised. Ada told him, he said, that she had been beaten with a yard-long stick about an inch in diameter.

Ada was taken to a hospital in Somerset, where a physician said her condition "unquestionably is due to exposure and neglect."

Mrs. Owen said last night she was unable to understand how her sister could have lost so much weight. She has no plan for Ada, she said, except to see that she "gets plenty of nourishing food."

An attack of poliomyelitis when she was two months old left Ada crippled in the left hand and foot, Mrs. Owen recalled.

She said the relatives in Pennsylvania asked her sister to come to live with them.

Capital News In Brief

Out Overcoat—in Cell

Roy Stimpson, 47, of 465 G street northwest, sat in a police cell last night. He had mistaken a fire alarm for a police call box.

Stimpson told Police Court Judge John P. McMahon yesterday somebody had stolen his overcoat and a suit from his rooms. It was 5 a. m., he said, and a restaurant operator told him there was a police call box on the corner. He ran to the first box he saw. Policeman R. E. Maust, who found the defendant standing on the corner, told the court a police call box was across the street from the fire box.

Judge McMahon ordered Stimpson fingerprinted and continued the case until today.

To Sponsor Ship

Mrs. J. E. Schmeltzer, 4420 Brandywine street northwest, wife of the assistant director of the technical division of the Maritime Commission, will sponsor the S. S. Sea Hound, to be launched today at Kearny, N. J., the commission announced yesterday. The 492-foot cargo vessel was built by the Federal Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co.

'Midnight Oil' Poured

For the first time since The Crier gave up the ghost several years ago, National University students had a "campus" publication of their own yesterday. The first issue of Midnight Oil appeared in the school's corridors.

Most unusual thing about the four-page smooth-papered tabloid was the fact that it didn't have an editor. Although a dozen students had put in the work necessary to publish the Midnight Oil, no one wanted the top job. So the first issue observed that the post was still open. The paper will appear every other week.

Policeman Misses Overtime Auto; Tag—He's It!

Policeman Harry McDougall, Second Precinct, was "policing" L street northwest, for overtime parkers one day this week and missed one offending machine.

At the same time Motorcycle Policeman R. O. Bankert, traffic division, was patrolling the downtown area, also with an eye out for violators of the one-hour regulation. He spotted a victim in the 1100 block L street northwest and prepared a ticket.

McDougall was working less than a block away, witnessed the act and hurried to the scene. It was his automobile that Bankert had tagged.

C. I. O. Retires From F Street War of Pickets

Withdraws Its Man And Dares A. F. of L. To Do Likewise

The C. I. O. yesterday withdrew its one-man picket line from Jelleff's F street store and challenged the A. F. of L. to do the same at the Knickerbocker Hat Shop nearby.

"Both these employers are fair to organized labor," said Chairman A. D. Lewis, of the C. I. O.'s construction workers' union. "There is no reason why either should be embarrassed."

John Locher, executive secretary of the A. F. of L. local building and construction trades council, said the action of the C. I. O. would not affect the A. F. of L. picketing policy.

Denies Interunion Strife

"We are not picketing in competition with the C. I. O.," said Locher. "Our pickets are put out to inform the 130,000 A. F. of L. members here and their friends that the work in that place was not done by members of our union. We want our membership to patronize those who patronize us."

The C. I. O. picket was stationed in front of Jelleff's, where A. F. of L. workers are handling a rebuilding job, at 1214 F street northwest, while the A. F. of L. picket was posted at the Hat Shop, 1228 F street northwest, where C. I. O. workers handled an interior painting job. Both stores hired pickets to picket the union pickets.

Lewis declared that the A. F. of L. had continued its picket at the Knickerbocker shop, "although the job is finished."

"It has even gone so far as to demand that the work be done over by A. F. of L. workers and has threatened to picket for a year or more," said Lewis. "These tactics of the A. F. of L. craft union bosses are contrary to the rules of fair play. The A. F. of L. is apparently afraid to let the industrial union of the C. I. O. demonstrate its worth for the construction industry.

"We shall continue our efforts to protect the Knickerbocker Hat Shop from molestation by the A. F. of L. We wish to advise the public that the Knickerbocker Hat Shop is fair to organized labor."

Said Herman Schimel, manager of the Knickerbocker shop, after hearing Lewis' statement: "You've got it all there. I couldn't say a thing more."

Locher said: "We dont want to enter any controversy with the C. I. O. We're going to travel our own road. We're not going to discontinue our present methods of informing our members who our friends are."

Locher added that there are other pickets out around town for that purpose, and said the picket at Knickerbocker shop may stay there "for a long period of time."

Preacher Urges Christians Stop Apologizing

Today is no time for a Christian to be in an apologetic mood, the Very Rev. Chester B. Emerson, D. D., dean of Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland, Ohio, declared yesterday at Epiphany Church.

"... Rather, it is a time for a commanding assertion of the Christian values in a world that has lost all sense of value except that which is inherent in force," he pointed out in the concluding message of his Lenten series.

"But that assertion—faith—must be something more than words—it must be incarnate," continued the speaker. "No man needs to be more wide-eyed to the world of today than the Christian. He must not live in a fool's paradise, nursing his soul with the promises of a world-to-be. He must 'get him up on his watch-tower' that he may see far and wide what threatens the happiness of humanity.

"Then he must declare the purposes of God with no weak voice. Let him cry aloud that the Kingdom of God is sure to come and that it can be hastened by the faithfulness of Christians to their creed."

The Rev. S. Carroll Coale, pastor of Brightwood Methodist Church, addressed yesterday's Lenten rites of southeast churches at the Penn Theater. The coming week's services will be conducted by the Wilson Memorial Methodist Church, of which the Rev. George H. Bennett is pastor. Page McK. Etchison, president of the District of Columbia Organized Bible Class Association, and Religious Work secretary of the Central Y. M. C. A., will speak Monday at noon.

The Rev. Samuel M. Shoemaker, of New York, Moral Rearmament crusader, will speak at Epiphany Church, Monday through Friday, at 12:05 noon. (Details on page 6.)

Senate to Get Amendments To Hatch Act

Committee Passes Extension Proposals; Minton Will Lead Fight on the Floor

By James D. Secrest.

Amendments to extend the Hatch Act to cover District employes and State workers paid in part by Federal funds cleared the Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections yesterday, only to face a stubborn fight.

Senator Minton (Democrat), of Indiana, stanch New Dealer, indicated he would lead an attack on the measure on the floor.

The amendments to the "Clean Politics" Act were approved by a vote of 6 to 3 in executive session.

Besides Minton, Senators who voted against the proposals of Senator Hatch (Democrat), of New Mexico, were Lucas, of Illinois, and Stewart, of Tennessee, both Democrats.

Amendment Put Off

Voting for the legislation were Senators Hatch, George, of Georgia; Green, of Rhode Island, all Democrats, and Austin, of Vermont; Nye, of North Dakota, and Wiley, of Wisconsin, Republicans.

The committee decided not to act on an amendment to allow the Civil Service Commission to exempt Government employes who hold municipal offices in suburban Washington and other communities. Senator Hatch said the amendment probably would be offered in the House as a separate bill by Representative Smith (Democrat), of Virginia.

Senators from Maryland and Virginia had recommended this procedure, it is understood, because of the fear that the more controversial Hatch amendments might not be enacted at this session of Congress.

One of the amendments is designed to clarify the position of District employes who, though powerless to vote locally, have never been sure whether or not the present Hatch Act prevented them from engaging actively in politics elsewhere.

Allen Spared

The amendment will not affect Commissioner Allen, who was named chairman of the Democratic Central Committee when John B. Colpoys, U. S. marshal, resigned immediately after the passage of the Hatch Act. The Commissioners are specifically exempt, as are policy-making officers of the Federal Government.

While Senator Hatch expressed hope of bringing his bill to a vote within a fortnight, foes of the measure hinted that it may encounter a filibuster by the attachment of the anti-lynching bill as an amendment.

Minton complained that the extension of the act to State highway workers would give political organizationh with large campaign chests an "unfair advantage" over a candidate who can rely only on the support of persons who have benefited from his patronage.

Senator Stewart said he considered the bill an invasion of States' rights.

Penalties Provided

As approved by the committee, the bill would make the Civil Service Commission the enforcement agency of the act. The commission would be empowered to order Federal funds withheld from States where the law was violated.

State employes paid in part by Federal money, chiefly in the highway and social security divisions, would be barred from active campaigning by the Hatch amendments.

Msgr. McAdams to Lead Retreat Tomorrow

Msgr. Edward P. McAdams, rector of St. Joseph's Catholic Church, will be retreat master for tomorrow's day of recollection for the ladies of St James', St. Joseph's and St John's churches. It will be be held at the Washington Retreat House, 4000 Harewood road northeast under the sponsorship of the Washington Retreat League.

DR. JAMES WOLFE, Vice President

NANCY MILLER, Hostess

FREDERICK LEVY, President

Central Business Association last night contributed $50 to Opportunity House, First and I streets northwest, at a benefit party held in the club studio, Fairfax Hotel. Seventy members and friends attended.

A check for the amount was presented to Arthur Clarendon Smith, head of Opportunity House, by Frederick Levy, president of the association.

The program included a humorous talk by J. Garrett Reilly, solos by Mrs. Helen Robicheauz, selections by a quartet from the Washington a Capella Choir, Betty Wade, Frances Kimmerling, Fred Stuart and Larry Alsop, Hugh V. Keiser, past president of the association, introduced all the guests.

Contract Let For New War Department Unit

The Public Buildings Administration yesterday awarded a $4,329,500 contract to John McShain, Inc., of Philadelphia, for construction of the first unit of the new War Department building.

The company was low bidder among ten contractors who submitted proposals for various types of surface finish of the structure. That accepted calls for limestone and granite exterior facing.

Work will get under way within a few weeks, after which the contractor has 450 days to complete it. The unit, to be followed in time by two others, will be located in the northeast corner of a site bounded by 21st, 23rd, C and E streets northwest.

Its completion will permit War Department employees now scattered throughout more than 20 rented office structures to be brought into the new building and the Munitions Building.

The new unit will be seven stories high and contain 310,000 square feet.

High Mass to Be Said Tomorrow at Noon

Solemn high mass will be offered tomorrow at 12:15 noon at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Eighth and N streets northwest, with Dr. John T. Ellis delivering the sermon. The Rev. Joseph E. Gedra will be celebrant.

Dr. John K. Cartwright, rector, will speak on the Catholic Radio Hour at 7:30 p. m. over WOL.

Western Five Defeats Wilson in 28-27 Thriller

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

Orlando, Fla., Feb. 23.—Would you like to hear an enlightening dissertation on the art of playing the outfield? That is what the remarks of Clyde Milan amounted to when he discussed today the possibilities of converting Third Baseman Buddy Lewis into a big league outfielder for the Nats.

POVICH

First off, however, it ought to be stated that Mr. Milan, who is a Washington coach, is no green hand at the outfielding business. The big league centerfielders in his day were rated in this wise: 1, Tris Speaker; 2, Ty Cobb; 3, Harry Hooper, and 4, Clyde Milan. In fact, there was always some doubt that Milan belonged in the No. 4 spot. On defensive ability he wouldn't be misplaced directly behind Speaker, according to a good snare of baseball men.

Milan was the fastest man of the lot. That is, on the straightaway. He led the league in stolen bases, and in the sunset of his career, when he was playing the outfield for Memphis at 40, he pranced to 25 stolen bases. He couldn't hit with the illustrious centerfield company of his playing days, but aside from Speaker there wasn't anybody who could go as far for a fly ball. Speaker could go farther.

We tell you all this about the seam-faced Milan because he made no mention of it himself while letting his mind's eye wander over the talents of the great men of baseball that he knew. As he sat in a corner of Tinker Field plucking wisps of grass, as is the habit of the old-timers, he talked about young Buddy Lewis' prospects of becoming an outfielder.

I'd have to say that he'll do all right. That's my job this season, to make an outfielder out of Lewis and I like the whole idea. He ought to be the right sort to work with. He's got youth, and that's a big help. And he's serious about it, and that counts, too. It isn't as if he was resenting being moved from third base to the outfield. He doesn't feel that he was a flop at third. He's earnest about helping the team.

"They want to make a rightfielder out of him, and most people have a mistaken idea about rightfield. It isn't the easiest field to play. The easiest field is center. Right and left are tougher, honest. Ground-covering is only one phase of playing the outfield. The centerfielder covers the most ground but the right and leftfielders have the toughest hits to handle.

"The ball hit to center does only one of two things—it rises or sinks. But in right or left, you've got to handle the freak hits that have all the english on them. A right-hander's hit to rightfield can be the toughest type of ball to judge. It looks as if it's coming right at you and then it curls up and dies in front of you. Until they fade and quit they look the same as a line drive.

"Sure, the best ground-coverer should be in centerfield, but he won't necessarily be the best outfielder. He doesn't need the throwing arm that the rightfielders need, for example. And he doesn't hvae to play those freak hits. But he can't be even a good centerfielder unless he can turn his back, take his eyes off the ball, and go back for it.

"That was the greatness in Speaker. He played closer to the infield than any other man in the league, because he could go back so far. And playing in close, he cut down those low line drives and Texas leaguers that go for hits today. But I saw Speaker booed by his own fans in Cleveland in 1912 for playing such a shallow centerfield. We were hitting balls over his head and none of us could understand it. Then we learned that we were playing with a livelier ball. They put the first rabbit ball into the game in 1912.

"I used to play a shallow centerfield myself, because I was always pretty good at breaking back for a ball. There's a drain pipe still out in short center of Griffith Stadium where I'd stand for every hitter in the league except Cobb and Crawford and Ruth and Speaker. With them up, I'd move back. Watch the centerfielders today. They play 20 yards back of that spot for every type of hitter and lose those low liners and Texas leaguers we used to catch.

"Buddy Lewis will discover that the easiest thing about playing the outfield is catching a fly ball. Any sort of ball player can do that. The difference between great outfielders and poor ones is the way they handle ground balls and make throws. The first thing Buddy Lewis must learn is how to charge a ground ball. The outfielder who doesn't is of no value to his team. He can't wait for the hits to come to him. Lewis' infield experience should be a great asset to him there.

"Then he'll have to learn how to throw all over again. He's got to junk that side-arm throw he used as an infielder. It's no good in the outfield. A ball thrown side-arm from the outfield curls up and quits at the finish. You've got to throw overhand to get that over-spin on the ball. Overspin is everything to a good throw.

"Lewis' throwing should be good enough. He says he can throw overhand, and I believe him. He's got those nice sloping shoulders that make good throwers. Broad shoulders might be all right in the physical culture ads but they're no good to an outfielder. It's like prizefighting. The square-shouldered guys are muscle-bound and can't hit. They're all tied up. The worse looking the shoulders the better.

"An outfielder can be a great fly hawk and have a swell throwing arm, but he's still a total loss unless he has one other asset. He's got to know where to throw the ball. There is more margin for error in outfield throws than in infield throws. Nothing looks as stupid as a throw to the wrong base. There's no time for thinking as you turn the ball loose. The thinking has got to be done some time before the ball gets to you."

On the Line

—With CONSIDINE

New York, Feb. 23.—Fat Eddie Mead, manager of Henry Armstrong, has eaten so many beef stews in his time that he beefs from habit, but the current stew he is in—over the postponement until next Friday night of the Armstrong-Garcia fight—is comical. "They postpone the fight just on account of a blankety-blank pimple on Garcia's leg," he squawks.

CONSIDINE

For Eddie engineered the phoniest injury in recent ring history late in 1938, and Garcia that time was the victim of the coup. The Filipino was scheduled to fight Armstrong for the welterweight title on November 2, 1938. Garcia had considerable trouble making the weight, but was in shape and ornery. So on the day before the match Armstrong tripped over his shadow, while boxing with it, and took a highly spurious prattfall. While he was picking himself up he fell again, like a sue-for-damages zealot going into his act when the subway comes to an unexpected stop. He let out a practiced yell of pain, and the fight was postponed 23 days.

Garcia couldn't stay at that razor edge during the long delay. He sloughed off, then had to go through the rigors of another sweating out. Armstrong, staying inside as much as possible, gave him a good beating on the night of the fight, after weathering a punch that nearly broke his neck. But a lot of the boys along Jacobs Beach insist that Mead won the fight for Henry, by engineering the pratter. In fact Henry later admited it was a phony, but when Gen. Phelan let loose a militaristic roar, Henry claimed he was misquoted.

There has been an impression here and there that Mike Jacobs was outsmarted in letting Garcia and Armstrong (both of whom he controls) fight for Promoter Charles MacDonald in Los Angeles. Jacobs told us today that before he gave the boys their release he wrung the following promises from them and their managers:

If Armstrong wins, New York is to get the return match (although there is a little State ruling to the effect that one champ cannot fight for another title in New York.)

If Garcia wins, a Garcia-Ken Overlin fight.

A promise from Garcia that may lead to a Garcia-Hostak fight here this summer.

An Armstrong-Bummy Davis fight for the welterweight title, which, of course, won't be at stake in the Armstrong-Garcia fight, which seems to be for the midget-sized middleweight championship.

Pardon us if we don't join in the tear-letting and hand-wringing over the fact that "poor old" Babe Ruth faces another year without a baseball job. Poor old Babe happens to be in better shape right now than the industry of baseball. I don't think the game owes him a nickel, and as a matter of fact Babe doesn't think so either—if pressed. One helped the other. It was a splendid draw.

Off Babe's hilarious days as a player, he would not seem to be of managerial timber. Yet he muffed a definite offer to manage the 1934 Detroit Tigers (they won the pennant after the late Frank Navin bought Mickey Cochrane and made him manager, when Babe ignored his letters) and has had several offers from minor league teams. One of the Brooklyn officials tells us that while serving as a Dodger coach Babe had great trouble remembering the signals, and his signal-giving assignments had to be cut to the bone.

The ideal job in baseball for Babe would be that of a good will ambassador, traveling with those educational movies, shaking hands with the halt and the lame, and talking to schools and other groups on the character-building qualities of the game.

If baseball owes Babe a post, doesn't it owe Cobb one? After all, Ty was more of the leader type, and quit with 30 more records than Ruth established. And how about Speaker, Lajoie, Wagner, Young, Johnson, Alexander?

Askins Victor Over Young, N. C. State; Cox Advances on Forfeit in Tourney

Special Dispatch to The Post

Columbia, S. C., Feb. 23.—Coach Heine Miller's title hopes were somewhat walloped to the wayside tonight as his Maryland boxers were defeated in three out of five bouts in the preliminaries of the fourteenth annual Southern Conference tournament, held at the University of South Carolina fieldhouse.

Maryland still has five pugilists to send into the semifinals tomorrow afternoon. Nathan Askin, 135, and Izzy Leites won their encounters last night. Norman Hathaway, 155, and George Pyles, heavyweight, drew byes, and Newton Cox, defending the middleweight title, won on a forfeit.

Askins vs. Graninger

In the semifinals tomorrow, Askin meets Graninger, of Virginia Tech; Hathaway takes on Woolwine, of Virginia Tech; Cox battles with Rion, of Clemson; Leites pairs off with Sowder, of Virginia Tech, and George Pyles boxes Baxter, of South Carolina.

Izzy Leites easily outpointed Johnny Murphy, of Duke, in a 175-pound battle. The Terrapin pugilist, employing a vicious left uppercut, pounded the Duke boxer throughout the bout. Once in the third round it appeared as if Leites was going to hit Murphy into a horizontal position. But the Blue Devil fighter held on gamely.

Maryland's title defense started in poor pugilistic fashion as Johnny Harn dropped a decision to Olin McDonald, of South Carolina, in the 120-pound division. Outweighted by 7½ pounds and pitted against the class, Harn could do no more than keep coming at his opponent. But McDonald, by reason of a long and effective left hand, took Harn's measure in each of the three rounds.

Tries for Knockout

A hard right by McDonald found Harn's nose and the Maryland boy was bleeding throughout the bout. Realizing that he needed a knockout, Harn took the offensive in the third round. Twice he connected with rights to McDonald's jaw. But the Carolina bantamweight bounced off the ropes and countered with some victory-telling blows.

Defeat came again to the Terrapins in the 127-pound division, when Clemson's rugged and undefeated Kenneth Dorn barely outpointed Bob Bradley. It was a split decision, with Charles Short voting for the Maryland boxer, but Ed Brockman and Archie Allen casting their votes for the Benbal battler.

Clemson Fighter Wins

The bout was filled with action, both boys slugging and looking to find each other's jaw with a haymaker. Employing a bobbing and weaving style, Dorn came up inside Bradley's defense in the first two rounds with low lethal lefts. Bradley rallied in the final round. He drove Dorn into the ropes with a flurry of rights and lefts. Then, just before the final gong, Bradley rocked Dorn. But the Clemson pugilist took it, stayed in and was declared the victor.

The smile returned to Coach Heinie Miller's countenance when Nathan Askin, fighting at 135 pounds, went into the ring and gave Ed Young, of North Carolina State, a three-round boxing lesson. A vicious puncher, Young tried to hammer away at Askin's jaw with overhand rights. But, as he forged

Patty Berg Gains Finals

Minneapolis Star Beats Jean Bauer

Orlando, Fla., Feb. 23 (U.P.).—Former National Champion Patty Berg, of Minneapolis, gave par a drubbing today and eliminated Jean Bauer, of Providence, R. I., 8 and 7, to go to finals of the mid-Florida women's golf tournament.

Miss Berg tomorrow will play Clara Callender, of Long Beach, Calif., who defeated Mrs. Lillian Zech, of Chicago, 4 and 3.

Patty overwhelmed Miss Bauer with nine pars and two birdies. The Minneapolis lass had a 2-under-par for the 11 holes of the short match.

The long-driving Miss Callender was 8 over par for the 15 holes of her match. She dropped only one hole to Mrs. Zech.

Budge Beats Hendrix in Straight Sets

Redhead Gains Finals Of Southeastern Pro Play, 6-2, 6-1 and 6-1

By the Associated Press

Miami Beach, Feb. 23.—Donald Budge proved his supremacy on the courts again today by winning straight sets from Arthur Hendrix in the $2,500 Southeastern Professional Tournament.

Hendrix, who beat Bill Tilden to enter the semifinals, didn't even make it tough as the powerful Californian raced through the match with a 6—2, 6—1, 6—1 victory.

Budge will enter the finals Sunday against the winner of tomorrow's other semifinal between Fred Perry and sixth seeded Walter Senior, of Chicago. Fans expected a renewal of the Budge-Perry feud.

Hendrix, a former Lakeland, Fla., boy, who turned professional as coach at the Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md., couldn't fathom Budge's unerring capacity for placing shots in the back corners. After a few games, it became apparent he was badly outclassed.

Fort Hunt Wins

The Fort Hunt CCC Shamrocks ran wild at Fort Myer last night to wallop E-2 by a score of 108-62.

Ambers Beats Bummy Davis Before 20,000

Lou Finds Range After Fourth to Give Foe Boxing Lesson

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 23.—Lightweight Champion Lou Ambers played "little man who wasn't there" tonight as he bewildered, befuddled and thoroughly beat Brooklyn's Bummy Davis in a 10-round nontitle scrap before a standing-room-only crowd at Madison Square Garden. Ambers weighed 139, Davis 146½.

Before a capacity house of 20,586 that paid in a gross gate of $66,749, Ambers put on a brilliant demonstration of how a skilled, experienced boxer can tame a tough but crude puncher. The Herkimer (N. Y.) Hurricane got the unanimous verdict of the two judges and Referee Bill Kavanaugh as he made Davis look like a nonplussed beginner through the last half of the fight.

Bummy, the product of Brooklyn's hard-bitten Brownsville section, who had come through 37 bouts without defeat, never was in it after the first four rounds.

He lost the first round for a low punch. In the next three heats he drove home enough of his explosive lefts to get the nod in each on the Associated Press score card, but in the fifth the champion started to take control of the situation, and from there on you could have

Strafaci Gains Dixie Golf Finals

Miami, Fla., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Frank Strafaci, of New York, former National public links champion, won his way to the finals of the sixteenth annual Dixie Amateur Golf Tournament today by defeating Bobby Dunkelberger, of High Point, N. C., Southern champion, 4 and 3.

Strafaci will meet Earl Christiansen, of Miami, at 36 holes tomorrow. Christiansen eliminated Fred Dowling, of Toledo, Ohio, 3 and 2, in his half of the semifinals today.

Yankee Club Reported Sold to Coast Group

New York, Feb. 23 (INS).—It was reported from the Pacific Coast late tonight—but could not be confirmed here—that the world champion New York Yankees either have been sold, or are about to be sold, to a syndicate.

This syndicate, according to the reports from the West Coast, proposes to install Postmaster General James A. Farley as president at $50,000 per year, and plans to list the Yankees' stock on the New York Exchange.

A previous West Coast report, to the effect that a group of movie magnates wished to buy the Yanks, failed to elicit any statement from the Yank management except that "the Yankees are not for sale."

That was the only answer which could be obtained to tonight's report.

Md. U. 'Dark Horse' In Conference Meet

Record Entry of 49 Teams to Compete At Chapel Hill Tonight; N. C. Favored; Kehoe May Lower Record

Special Dispatch to The Post

Chapel Hill, N. C., Feb. 23.—The University of Maryland is conceded an outside chance of dethroning North Carolina as Southern Conference indoor track champion in the annual meet starting here tomorrow. Duke also is expected to be in the thick of the running.

Forty-nine teams—a record entry—with about 400 representatives are ready for a wholesale onslaught on records in the eleventh indoor games.

Maryland is counting on defending champions Jim Kehoe, in the half-mile, and Mason Chronister, in the mile, for certain victories. Kehoe, who has been running in the big-time indoor meets against such aces as Johnny Woodruff and John Borican, is expected to lower his own record of 1:53.6.

Chronister, who set a meet record by winning the mile in 4:16, last year, will be up against strong opposition, but figures to repeat. His chief rival will be Jim Davis, of North Carolina.

Joe Murphy, the Terps' Conference 60-yard champion, will not defend his crown because he hasn't been able to get into his best condition. Maryland, however, will have a trio of entries in the sprint—Kenneth Barnes, Elmer Rigby and Alan Milller.

The Maryland relay team, one of the favorites in the mile race, will be composed of Chronister, Kehoe, Warfield and Miller.

Other Maryland entries will be Wylie Hopkins and Francis Morris in the high jump, Francis Morris in the broad jump and Charlie Morris in the shot put.

Spring All-Star Game Approved

Belleair, Fla., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Baseball Commisisoner K. M. Landis approved today plans for the spring all-star baseball game to be played at Tampa, March 17, for the benefit of the Finnish Relief Fund.

At a meting attended by President Will Harridge of the American League, Manager Bill McKechnie of the Cincinnati Reds, who will pilot the National League team; Joe Williams and other committee members, Landis agreed to admission prices and other game details.

Admission will range from 50 cents to $5. Players composing the two teams will be selected by baseball writers covering spring training camps and will be announced in about a week.

Baker Describes Detroit Tigers as 'BigQuestion Mark'

Lakeland, Fla., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Del Baker, manager of the Detroit Tigers, came up today with the observation his ball culb was "a team full of question marks."

DEL BAKER

"If individual players live up to their capabilities, the club will be greatly improved and we'll give somebody a scrap," he commented.

Baker pulled into Lakeland, Sunday, after a where the Tigers begin spring training automobile trip transcontinental from Portland, Oreg.

As to the benefits to be derived from shifting slugging Rudy York to first base and big Hank Greenberg to the outfield, "only time will tell," Baker said.

"There's no way on earth to tell how the outfield or infield will stack up now," the Tiger manager added. "In fact, I'd say that three positions in the infield are open to argument."

He said that Charley Gehringer, at second base, was the only fixture.

Outfielder Kelleher Optioned to Seattle

Newark, N. J., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Outfielder Francis Kelleher, was optioned to the Seattle club of the Pacific Coast League today by the Newark Bears of the International League.

The Newark club said, Kelleher who they used chiefly in utility roles, was sent to Seattle to give him an opportunity to play regularly. It is expected he will play third base or the outfield for Seattle.

Raiders Win Position in Tournament

Winners Overcome 11-Point Deficit; Schenker Shines; Tigers Miss Chances

By Bill Burnett

Western High wrote its name along with those of Roosevelt and Central as certainties of getting in the interhigh cage tournament next week by defeating Woodrow Wilson, 28-27, last night in one of the most thrilling clashes of the season.

A meager gathering saw the Raiders, beaten by Wilson in a regular series game, overcome an 11-point deficit to take their revenge. It was the first game of a playoff for the third and fourth places in the title tourney, necessitated when Wilson, Western and Eastern ended their regular seasons in a deadlock. The next will be Tuesday afternoon, Wilson and Eastern meeting for the only remaining spot.

Wilson in Form

Despite its painful defeat, Wilson looked better than at any other time this season—even the night it pinned a 25-22 beating on the Westerners. The Tigers had raced into a 13-5 lead at the first quarter and in the second they held margins of 18-7 and 20-9. Intermission found Wilson still out front, 20-11.

Seven straight points by Irving Schenker helped the Raiders bring the count to a mere 25-20 in favor of Western at the end of the third period. Then came Wilson's disastrous sag.

Held to 2 Points

It scored only 2 points, both by Bart Fugler on foul shots, in the last quarter as Schenker, Jimmy Karas and Hal Mitchell registered a total of 8. The last 2-pointer of the game, with four minutes left, proved the winning one. Karas hung up that one to give Western its first—and a very important—lead. Fouled by Moke MacDonald as he scored, Karas missed the free toss allowed him. Jake Hilleary missed another 1-pointer a few seconds later.

Schenker was the high scorer for Western and the game with 12 points, 1 better than the total of MacDonald.

Gallaudet Ends Campaign Tonight

Coach Blair Smith's Gallaudet College cagers aim to close their basketball season tonight with a victory when they face a strong Frostburg Teachers College quintet at Gallaudet gymnasium on Kendall Green at 8:15 o'clock.

The Blues will be at their best. Those likely to see action are: Carmen Ludovico and Hal Weingold, forwards; "Ducky" Duick and Georgie Hanson, guards; towering Marvin Wolach at center.

Gallaudet is preparing for its second annual All-College night.

Tigers Get Nelson, Of A's, on Waivers

Anaheim, Calif., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Hold out Lynn Nelson, righthanded pitcher who won 10 games for the Philadelphia Athletics last year, was sold to the Detroit Tigers tonight for the wavier price of $7,500.

Manager Connie Mack announced the sale at the A's training camp here.

Jack Cooper Wins Hydroplane Race

West Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—Jack Cooper of Kansas City today won the 225 cubic inch hydroplane race, featured event of the second day of the Golden Jubilee Regatta of the Palm Beach Yacht Club, run over the rough, windswept Lake Worth course. Cooper scored two firsts and one second place to collect 1,100 points.

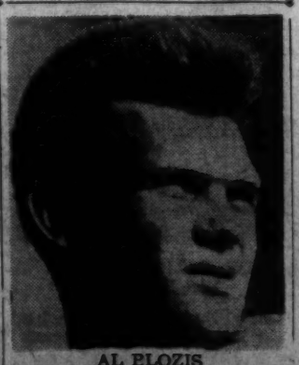
Blozis Returns to Action Tonight

G. U. Shot Put Star Entered in American Championships

Al Blozis, Georgetown University's giant sophomore shot-putter, will make his first appearance since establishing a new world record tonight when he competes in the United States track and field championships at Madison Square Garden

Blozis, who set his mark of 53 feet 8¼ inches at the Garden last Saturday, will be the favorite in a strong field, including the other two outstanding collegiate shot-putters, Ryan and Watson. Ryan is defending champion

In addition, the Hoyas have entered two relay teams, a varsity foursome in the mile and a freshman medley quartet. The varsity four will be seeking their sixth victory of an undefeated season and also their second in succession over New York University's great team. The Violets will be much stronger tonight than they were last week, when Georgetown beat them in the Seton Hill games. Jim Herbert, their crack anchor runner, will return to the line-up.



AL BLOZIS

The Hilltop's fresh medley relayers will be making their first start of the season. The team is composed of Phil Graves, Jim Fish, Jack Doolan and P. McAtee.

World Record Holder Favored to Take Title From Ryan

Chandler Harper's 67 Leads New Orleans Open Tourney

Portsmouth Youth Ties Course Mark

Puts Together 32 And 35 for Edge In $10,000 Play; Three Have 70's

By the Associated Press

New Orleans, Feb. 23.—Chandler Harper, 25-year-old pro from Portsmouth, Va., smashed a sensational 32, 35—67 over the long, windswept City Park links today to tie the course record and lead the first round of the $10,000 New Orleans Open Golf Tournament.

One of the last players to finish 18 holes, Harper bettered the 36, 32—68 which put Ben Hogan, of White Plains, N. Y., in second place and the 35, 34—69, which gave Tony Long, of Inwood, Long Island, the third spot.

Five players were tied at 70 and four at 71, making a total of 12 entrants to beat the course par of 72.

Best on First Nine

Harper, who declared his round was about the best of his career, "considering the course and the wind," got in the best licks on the first nine.

At the end of eight holes he was five under par, his margin at the finish. He breezed the second nine with a birdie tenth, a bogey fifteenth and the rest par, missing a course record when a 20-foot putt stopped on the rim of the eighteenth hole.

The young Virginian, who put the big-name favorites in the shade—for a time at least—has never won a major title, although he held his State amateur championship three times and Open crown twice.

Hogan's bad luck with his putter kept him from the day's and the course's best round. He missed a three-footer on the fourth, three-putted the sixth and on the final three holes putts of under 6 feet stopped inches short.

Snead Draws Gallery

An estimated 8,000 persons, admitted free, followed the players. The biggest gallery trailed (Slammin) Sammy Snead, of Shawnee, Pa., whose one-under-par, 36-35—71, was only for a ninth-place tie.

Low amateur was Wilford Wehrle, of Chicago, with 37-36—73, followed by Fred Haas, jr., of New Orleans at 39-35—74.

Tied at 70 were Lloyd Mangrum, of Oak Park, Ill.; Paul Runyan, of White Plains, N. Y.; Craig Wood, of Mamaroneck, N. Y.; Harold (Jug) McSpaden, of Winchester, Mass., and Ralph Guldahl, of Chicago.

Gene Sarazen, the venerable Connecticut farmer, despite his age and a sore thumb, cracked out a 71 to tie with Snead, Vic Ghezzi, of Deal, N. J., and Bub Williamson, of Fort Wayne, Ind.

Two Generals On All-State Court Team

Virginia Also Gets Two Berths; Other Goes to Richmond

By the Associated Press

Richmond, Va., Feb. 23.—Three Virginia schools contributed to the Associated Press' 1940 all-State college basket ball team announced today, marking a departure from a two-year trend to dominance by a single institution.

Two players were selected from Washington and Lee's State championship team, two from the University of Virginia, and one from the University of Richmond.

The men were named as outstanding performers by head coaches of the State's universities and colleges.

Harman at Forward

Bill Harman, University of Virginia player, who has led the State in scoring honors with 217 points, won a berth at forward, along with Dick Pinck, of Washington and Lee. Both are juniors.

The center position was awarded to Howard Dobbins, another Washington and Lee junior, who stands 6 feet 3 and weighs 205 pounds.

Billy McCann, University of Virginia junior, and Stuart Hoskins, a University of Richmond senior, were named to guard positions.

Pinck Only Repeater

Pinck was the only player who was also a member of last season's all-State team, an aggregation which was dominated by four of Roanoke's "five smart boys."

Three of the players were designated as Virginians, Harman hailing from Bridgewater, McCann from Richmond, and Hoskins from Fredericksburg. Pinck is from Paterson, N. J., and Dobbins from Louisville, Ky.

The scoring records of the five men selected were impressive: Harman, 217 points; Pinck, 194; Dobbins, 183; McCann, 137; Hoskins, 100. As a unit, the five have averaged better than 50 points a game.

Selected on the second team were Tom Ingram, Virginia Tech, and Virgil Andrews, William and Mary, forwards; Bill Burge, University of Richmond, center; Moran Mackey, William and Mary, and Bobby Foster, V. M. I., guards.

Sea Gulls Top Eagles by 2-0

Third-Period Goals Beat Washington

Atlantic City, N. J., Feb. 23.—Norman Tustin and Ed Powers combined scoring efforts to give the Atlantic City Sea Gulls a 2-0 victory over the Washington Eagles in an Eastern Amateur Ice Hockey League game tonight.

Both goals were by Tustin on passes from Powers in the third period.

Columbus Boxers End Season Here Tonight

Undefeated Louisiana Tech Favorite in Match At Turner's Arena; 127-Pound Bout Between Taub and Hand Expected to Be Feature

The final match of the District college boxing season will be seen at Joe Turner's Arena tonight when Columbus University's Fighting Explorers end their campaign against Louisiana Tech's battling Bulldogs at 8:30 o'clock.

The Bulldogs boxed the undefeated and heavily favored Explorers to a 4-to-4 draw here a year ago and are said to be even more formidable this season.

Although Louisiana Tech will enter the ring the favorite, Columbus will be the choice of many to upset the visitors and gain an even break on their season. The Explorers recently routed Kentucky, 5½-2½, after having lost consecutive matches to Miami and Catholic Universities by identical 4½ to 3½ scores.

The feature bout is expected to develop between Lou Taub, Columbus U's hard hitting 127 pounder, and Bobby Hand, Louisiana Tech's undefeated star.

A revision in the heavier weights necessitated by a ruptured blood vessel which will deprive Columbus U. of the services of Abe Cohen in the heavyweight division may work a hardship on the Explorers.

A newcomer will be introduced by the Explorers at 155 pounds when Elmer Jacobsen, a Minnesota Swede, faces Bill Maxwell, of the Bulldogs. Jacobsen receives the call because of the necessity of moving up representatives in the other divisions a notch.

Charley Cox advances to 165 pounds; Bill Crum, to 175 pounds, and Lou Hayman to the heavyweight spot.

Hayman, a legitimate light heavyweight, will spot Louisiana Tech's Ed Lee Roberts pounds and inches in the unlimited bout. Roberts, a terrific puncher, lost a close decision to Columbus U.'s Andy Keady late season after having his opponent on the verge of a knockout in the last round.

The pairings:

counted Davis' effective punches on the fingers of one hand.

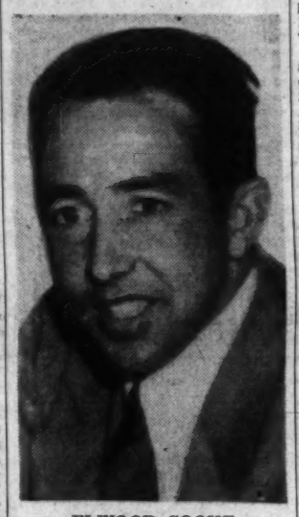
Ambers, constantly circling to his left to keep clear of those wicked southpaw smashes, was catching them on his gloves, or ducking inside them, or dancing back to leave Davis fanning the breeze. In the clinches he was catching the left in the crook of his arm, pinioning it there while he cuffed Bummy's red and puffy features with lefts and rights.

Once, in the sixth, Ambers stuck out his chin as if daring Davis to hit it.

In the seventh, Ambers was beating Bummy to the punch with right hands, wrestling him all over the lot in close. In the closing seconds of the ninth, he caught Davies flush in the face with a right hand and then shook his head when Bunny didnt go down.

Davis learned to fight rough and stuck to it. With the help of some of those pile-driving lefts to the short ribs, a few elbows and backhands across the face and one fine sample of holding and hitting, he had Ambers looking a bit worried. But then Lou got the hang of things, and it was smooth sailing.

Three Seeded Stars Lose in Indoor Tennis



ELWOOD COOKE

Cooke, Fishbach, Alloo Victims of Second-Round Upsets

By the Associated Press

New York, Feb. 23.—The seedings in the national indoor tennis tournament were shattered in three places today as Edwood Cooke, of Portland, Oreg.; Edward Alloo, of Berkeley, Calif., and Joe Fishbach, of New York, were eliminated by unranked opponents in second-round matches.

Cooke, a finalist at Wimbledon last year and rated behind top-seeded Bobby Riggs in the draw, bowed to Marvin Kantrowitz, of New York, and Lehigh University, 6—3, 2—6, 9—7. His defeat came a few minutes after the sixth-seeded Fishbach had dropped a 7—5, 3—6, 9—7 encounter to Alfred Jarvis, of Tenafly, N. J.

In the concluding duel of the day, Alloo, who preceded Fishbach in the seedings, was swept aside by big Frank Froehling, of Chicago, 6—4, 6—4. Riggs rested today and will make his bid for a spot in the third round tomorrow when he faces Lester Kabacoff, Alloo's fellow townsman.

Two other seeded players who saw action were more fortunate. Frank Bowden, of New York, listed fourth, defeated Vincent Paul, also of New York, 6—4, 6—2, while in another all-New York battle, Chauncey Steele, seventh seeded, disposed of J. Norman Anderson, 8—6, 6—1.

Both Cooke and Fishbach stood at match point against their opponents, but neither succeeded in converting his advantage. Both losers ran into prolonged erratic streaks that nullified the gains they made in their more efficient moments. As for Alloo, he was never really in the contention against Froehling and the match consumed less than a half hour.

Landon Halts St. Albans Five

Winners Annex 10th Of Season, 18 to 16

Leading until the end of the third period, Landon Prep was forced to rally strongly yesterday to nip St. Albans, 18-16, in a rough-and-tumble battle at the Landon court.

It was Prep's tenth victory against four setbacks this season, and Paul Baker took the biggest credit for the victory. He tallied half of Landon's points on three field goals and as many foul shots. Hannon and Terry split honors for the losers with five points each.

Bethesda Beats Little Hoyas

Overcome Early Lead To Win 15th Game

One of its fanciest rallies of the year won a 34-28 cage decision for Bethesda-Chevy Chase High yesterday over Georgetown Prep.

Trailing by 14-12 at the half and 24-18 at the third quarter of the game at Bethesda, the hosts romped into the lead midway of the final session and won going away. It was their fifteenth triumph in 20 games.

Johnny Shumate, one of the highest point-makers in this vicinity, was the big gun in the attack, scoring 12 points. Duke Hashagen accounted for 7 for the winners before he was sent out on fouls. Prep's Devine also had four personals against him. High scorer for the losers was Sport Barrett, with 8.

In a preliminary Bethesda Jayvees won their eleventh straight game, 40-6, over the Little Hoya juniors.

'Brain Trust' To Coach Terp Eleven in 1940

Faber, Woods, Heagy Named to Succeed Dobson at Maryland

By the Associated Press

Football at the University of Maryland will be given triple attention this year, at least as far as coaching is concerned.

Geary Eppley, athletic director, announced that three former Maryland athletic stars would collaborate as a "board of strategy" in spring football training which began yesterday.

They will "doubtless" continue to handle the school's football fortunes next fall, Eppley added.

The coaches, who have all been connected with Maryland University since their graduation, are:

Albert Heagy, line coach for three years under Frank Dobson, who resigned in 1939.

Al Woods, freshman coach since 1937.

Several backfield and line stalwarts from last year are gone but the new football "board" will have 15 lettermen experienced in all positions as a nucleus for 1940. In addition there is a large turnout of semiexperienced and freshman material.

Lettermen expected to return are: Ends, Dick Shaffer, Frank Dwyer, Leo Mueller; tackles, Bill Krouse, Ralph Burlin; guards, George Gienger, John Morton; centers, Bob Smith, Jim Wharton; backs, Joe Murphy, Fred Widener, Mearle Duvall, Bernie Ulman, Milton Lumsden and Jack Warfield.

Graduation took a pair of first-rate tackles, Ralph Albarano and Bob Brown; George Lawrence, stellar guard, and Pershing Mondorff, John Boyda and Frank Skotnicki, backs.

The 1940 schedule:

September 28, Hampden-Sydney; October 5, Pennsylvania at Philadelphia; 12, Virginia; 19, Florida at Gainesville; 26, Western Maryland at Baltimore; November, Georgetown; 16, V. M. I., Lynchburg; 23, Rutgers; 28, Washington and Lee, at Baltimore.

Harris Picks Hudson To Open Exhibitions

Rookie to Start Against New York Giants March 10; Nats' Manager Anxious to Test New Player's Pitching Talent

By Shirley Povich
A Staff Correspondent

Orlando, Fla., Feb. 23.—Stanley Raymond Harris today confessed a bit of impatience what at this writing must be interpreted as flattering young Sid Hudson, tall rookie right-hander from the Florida State League. Harris announced that Hudson would start the Nats first exhibition game, on March 10, against the New York Giants.

SID HUDSON

"I'm in a hurry to find out how much of a pitcher Hudson is," said Harris. "His record of 24 wins and 4 defeats in the Florida League last year sort of fascinates me, and if he can pitch a little bit, I want to know about it.

"In our situation we'll take particular pains with any young pitcher who looks as if he will develop. Hudson strikes me as that sort and he's going to get every chance. If his fast ball is all that they say it is, I'll be happy, because he seems to know how to behave out there on the mound.

Teacher's Pet

It is no secret that Hudson is the darling of the Nats' bosses as far as the younger crop of pitchers is concerned. Both Harris and Clark Griffith are impressed with his actions on the mound and the manner in which he lets the ball go. His 6 feet 4 inches provide great leverage and in the Florida League he was a master of coolness and control.

The Nats' bosses speak of Hudson not without the realization, however, that his triumphs were achieved in Class D baseball, which is as low as a player can descend without plopping entirely out of organized baseball.

"Ordinarily we wouldn't be much concerned about Hudson," Harris was saying, "except that this is a year when we can't overlook any sort of possibilities. In another year we may be trying to develop him for one of our farm teams, but if he shows signs of fogging his fast ball past the hitter, we'll try to bring him all the way."

Williams Seems Better

In the ordinary appraisal of matters in the Nats' camp, young Hudson would rank far below such as Almon Williams, bought from the Class A-1 Southern Association; Paul Gehrman, drafted from the Eastern League, and Bucky Jacobs, an acknowledged star in Class B baseball. But Harris is in a mood to rush the development of Hudson if that can be done.

"I wouldn't attempt any such thing," Harris was saying, "if I didn't think young Hudson was the proper sort of a medium for taking that kind of a long gamble. I've never seen a young pitcher with his meager experience who had as much poise. We can't tell about that definitely, of course, until we see him in a ball game, under fire, but that's my thought in the matter now."

Many of the crop of young pitchers who were frowned upon by Harris in last year's training camp are now commanding added respect from the Nats' manager, who is in no position to turn down anybody resembling a league prospect. Eight pitching jobs on the Washington club are wide open.

Because he won 13 straight games in the Eastern League last season, Bucky Jacobs is no longer regarded as a mere farmhand. Neither is Early Wynn, the chunky fast baller who was Charlotte's leading pitcher. Harris, who at this time last year already had consigned that pair to the minors, is now willing, nay eager, to bear with them until a much later date.

Post-A. A. U. Tourney Entry Blanks Ready

Those point-for-point struggles that mark play for the championships in the District A. A. U. basketball tournament sponsored by The Washington Post, will start on March 4. Entry blanks for the event came off the presses yesterday and are available at The Post sports department and at the Boys Club of Washington, 230 C street northwest.

As previously announced, competition this year will be limited to three classes—unlimited for men, 145 pounds and under for men and boys and unlimited for girls. Inability to secure a suitable playing floor earlier has forced the committee to pass up the lighter boys' classes this year.

Entries close at midnight on March 1 at the Boys Club.

The rules, printed on the entry blanks, are the usual ones. Players in the 145-pound class cannot weigh over the limit. They will be weighed in before the tournament.

Members of girl teams must send in individual physical examination certificates.

The championships, as usual, will be decided on an elimination basis, the losing team in any game being automatically disqualified from further participation in the tournament. Rules of the national basketball committee of the A. A. U. will govern all games. The unlimited and 145-pound teams will play 20-minute halves and the girls 8-minute quarters.

The entry fees remain the same, $3.50 for each team. All players must be registered in the A. A. U. Blanks for this purpose are available along with the entries.

Meade Gains Photo Decision in Hot Duel With Flinchum

Perpetuate Victor Over Rifted Clouds

Veteran, Apprentice In Brilliant Finish; Go Home Is Third; Winner Pays $5.60

By the Associated Press

Hialeah Park, Fla., Feb. 23.—An overcoated crowd today was treated to one of the prettiest duels of the season with the running of the sixth race, a six-furlong dash for grade "C" veterans. They saw Don Meade, champion of 1939, and Jack Flinchum, the apprentice lad who holds a royal chance to wind up on top of the Nation's hooters this year, hook up in a long, thrilling drive. Meade's mount, R. L. Gerry's Perpetuate, received the photo decision over his younger rival, who was astride Herbert M. Woolf's Rifted Clouds. Dewitt Page's Go Home was third, a length and a half behind.

Perpetuate, the $5.60 for $2 choice, finished on the outside in 1:11 flat.

Both Meade and Flinchum got the most out of their mounts, Flinchum's back, down on a straight line with that of his mount, and Meade, sitting higher but pushing and handriding his hardest, helping Perpetuate to gain the verdict. Had Porter Roberts, on Go Home, ridden as well, the Page colorbearer might have been a more dangerous contender. Go Home was not kept in a straight course but finished resolutely.

Remarkable Stops

Rifted Clouds, the third choice, soon disposed of Remarkable, then was joined by Perpetuate after leaving the backstretch. The hair-raising duel ensued all the way to the finish line, with the result in doubt until the numbers flashed on the board.

Thirteen 2-year-old platers staged a wild scramble down the 3-furlong straightaway as the program got under way. Red Burr, the $6.20 for $2 favorite under Eddie Arcaro, jumped into the lead just after a good start and gamely held to his advantage. The chestnut colt registered by a length in :34 flat.

Chives, paying $47.40 for place, closed full of run and gained the place by a length and a half. A half dozen horses figured in the photo battle for third position. Nowo received the verdict, when there was a long delay while the judges studied the picture before deciding that Aphrodite was fourth.

Narghileh unseated Jockey Donoso going to the post and galloped off for a mile before being caught. The filly, second choice before she ran away, showed good speed in the actual race and finished fifth.

Petesar Scores

Petesar gave the talent two straight successes by earning a length and a half victory over the mile and a furlong route of the second contest. Mighty Fine accounted for runner-up honors, five lengths in advance of Spanish Ball. Settler stole a wide lead, then curled up after a half mile. Spanish Ball shot into a daylight lead, but, he, too, got that tired feeling entering the stretch. Petesar spurted into command in the stretch and staved off Mighty Fine in a drive, paying $7.10.

Don Meade and Trainer George Odom achieved a consecutive double when Marshall Field's Mont Kau, a recent sprint winner over the main track, made up nearly 20 lengths and won the seventh race, decided over one and one-sixteenth miles of the turf course. The Jacopo colt looked like a thousand-to-one shot around the first turn and on the backstretch.

Gains Contention

The 3-year-old campaigner suddenly dashed into contention near the head of the stretch. After turning for home, he bounded to the front as if the others were tied to a post and clicked by 3 lengths to return $19.60. Argonne Woods was second by a half length over Betty's Bobby.

Roy T., despite the fact that he was picking up 10 pounds over his last race, scored a gamely earned triumph over the platers in the 6-furlong fifth contest. Bright and Early was headed out of the purse while saving second money. Ken McCombs hustled Roy T. to the front and did a workman-like job of keeping the $14.50 for $2 shot in the van all the way. Bright and Early forced most of the pace. The fancied Billy Bee was outrun all the way.

NATS' ROOKIE PARADE

At Orlando Camp

(This is another of a series of sketches on the rookies seeking jobs with the Nats at their Orlando training camp.)

FIVE—PAUL GEHRMAN, PITCHER

Out of the biggest sawmill in the United States where he was grading lumber and running a ripsaw came husky Paul Gehrman to launch a pitching career in organized baseball. As a 212-pound right-hander he is now one of the top-flight rookies in the Washington camp.

He was pitching semipro ball and working in the mill out in Bend, Oregn., not far distant from his mother's farm when his fellow workers urged him to enroll in the Cincinnati Reds' baseball school at Medford, Oreg. His speedy entrance into organized ball followed.

PAUL GEHRMAN

Cincinnati scouts watched him pitch only three innings and then signed the dark-haired barrel-chested lad to a contract of the Durham farm team in the Piedmont League. That was in the spring of 1937, and the Reds took him to spring training.

The Reds gave him three chances to stick in the big leagues. Each spring for three seasons they brought him back from the minors, always turned him loose again. He could win at Durham and Birmingham and Albany but the Cincinnati club was never impressed with his big league prospects.

Gehrman won 21 and lost 12 in '37 with Durham in 1937 and also served a spell with Albany in the International League, but the Reds didn't choose to protect him from the draft last fall and the Nats claimed him for $6,000.

The Nats' chief concern about Gehrman at this writing is divorcing him from some of his poundage. Easily acquired weight has always hampered him and he is 14 pounds overweight at this writing. The Nats Southern Association scout recommended him for his fast ball.

He's German, as the name implies, with the same Teutonic propensity for taking on weight. He's 6 feet tall and 23 years old, and cheerfully admits that for 3 years he was a volunteer fireman out in Oregon.

Bill Bennings

At The Post

Selections at Hialeah Park.

Dear Al:

Perhaps a letter I received yesterday explains why Confucius' stock dropped suddenly. It is from FBA and reads: "We have been watching your Confucius horses and have decided that they have gone far enough. So we're going to stop Confucius' clock by putting a small wager on his horse every day. This never fails. In fact, when Clocker Mike began to fall off in his pickings it really wasn't Mike's fault at all, but ours. You see we started following him immediately his horses began folding up. Why I remember once or twice his horse had a three or four length lead in the stretch when—"wham" out went the anchor and "fooie" went our bet. After looking at the chart on Cantata, Confucius' pick, you will see that the horse hit a high note at the start, took a length lead, drew out farther, had command in the midstretch and then "out went the anchor" and Cantata hit low "C" to finish sixth. If FBA is so poison that he can stop them, he could get a job slowing down heavily played favorites for the bookies. He might get a steady salary which, after all, is a bit more certain than trying to get a winner home. Florida's betting money has been plenty fresh this winter. Joe Stein, of the State racing commission, says that the total wagering should be $6,000,000 ahead of last year when $55,272,416 was bet on horses, dogs and jai alai, the Spanish game on which there is mutuel play. Hialeah promises to go $3,000,000 over last year. (Clocker Mike has been looking over my shoulder. He saw me putting down those big figures and chiseled me for a half-check for dinner.) Confucius say: Big Pebble gather no moss. BILL.

First race—Bubblesome, if ready, should take down first money in this opening sprint. Appears capable of handling that 118-pound assignment on his best races. Irish Moon was third last out and could have needed that effort. Mordecai is good and will be in there knocking.

Second race—Some Boy appears well placed in this field. Likes the route and gets in with only steadying weight. Midshipman is rather inconsistent but deserves attention in this brand of company. Golden X has won at this distance.

Third race—Lady Bethyl won her last like a trained seal. I give her an edge today over Braving Danger, a veteran which awoke recently. Transday should go well and is a possible surprise.

Fourth race—Nosy may be the right one in this rather open sprint for 3-year-olds. Anderson will do the booting and he is better than a green hand. Sundodger and Sack are good now and will battle it out if I have overestimated the ability of the top one.

Fifth race—Sir Damion was scratched out of the McLennan Handicap to save his underpinning. However, if he is to go in the Widener next week he will have to be given a hard tightener. If he stands up under a drive, he should take this purse. Technician and Dolly Val to take care of the place and show awards.

Sixth race—I'm forced to take front-runners in this bulky field. Victory Morn fooled me by showing excellent form last out. Has plenty of early push and may carry the crushing 126-pound assignment to victory. Woof Woof and Red Dock appear capable of taking care of the others.

Seventh race—Bailiwick has been jockeying around for a position and deserves a top chance in this. Room Service and Cave Hill to fill out the money bracket.

Eighth race—Redbreast, Weary Flower and Seed is the way I prefer them in the day's finale.

Best bet—Some Boy.

Flamingo Stakes Lures 13 Entries at Hialeah Park Today

By the Associated Press

Miami, Fla., Feb. 23.—Joe Widener's flamingoes take their annual walk tomorrow, and then the customers at Hialeah Park will watch 15 3-year-olds scramble a mile and a furlong for $20,000 in the thirteenth running of the Flamingo Stakes.

This well-heeled event is expected to attract a near-record crowd to Widener's fancy plant, giving fresh cash register impetus to an already prosperous season. To justify the fancy name, the 400 large, awkward, salmon-pinkish birds that usually stand around the infield looking bored will be paraded up and down the greensward.

First important 1940 test for 3 year-olds in the East, the Flamingo Stakes will be overshadowed in importance at Hialeah only by the $50,000 added Widener Handicap on the closing date of the meet, March 2.

Herbert M. Woolf, of Kansas City, owner of the Woolford Farm, will be trying to capture the stakes for the third consecutive year.

Woolf won in 1938 with Lawrin, which later went on to capture the handsome Kentucky Derby prize, and again in 1939 with Technician.

This year the Woolford colors will be carried by the entry of Inscolad and Prompt Pay. They carry 116 pounds and will be ridden by Jockeys F. A. Smith and W. D. Wright, respectively.

Mrs. Payne Whitney has entered her Greentree Stable's Red Dock, winner of the recent $5,000 added Bahamas Handicap, while her son, John Hay Whitney, has nominated Woof Woof.

Barring last-minute scratches, the 15 entries will bring a gross purse of $29,475, with $22,950 for the winner. Stakes post time is 4:30 Eastern standard.

Other entries, their imposts and jockeys: Red Dock, 120, Eddie Arcaro; Day Dodger, 114, Buddy Haas; Victory Morn, 126, Jimmy Stout; Woof Woof, 114, Irving Anderson; Samuel D., 114, E. On Fishing

ACKERMAN

Miami, Fla., Feb. 23.—Now that our trip is in its last days, and we are thinking of the long northing ahead of us, a thought comes that for the great amount of money Uncle Sam spends on his Weather Bureau he is entitled a far better grade of weather than he has received during the past 30 days.

For the score and a half more years we have fished Florida waters, never have we seen the going so unfavorable. However that might well come under the heading of fisherman's luck, and counting everything, we have had a swell time.

Just missed a Washington angler, T. O. Nichols, at Key West. He was out on our favorite grounds, the Marquesas—holed up on account of the wind. Haven't yet heard how he made out.

Saw another pair at Matacumbe, and missed Floyd Akers at Key Largo, where he has been fishing from George Smith's Inn-By-The-Sea.

Had one last go offshore today, and saw Bill Hatch running before a stiff southwester just north of Fowey Rocks Light, with a sailfish so large the tail stuck out of the Patsy's fishbox like a pair of outriggers. And as far as we know, it was the only one taken. Bill seems to have them marked with his name. Just goes out, gets one, and heads for home.

Missed a trip to Flamingo, fly-rodding for tarpon on Monday because Frank O'Brien found it necessary to jump over to Havana, but attended one of the famous Wednesday evening get-to-gethers of the Miami Beach Rod and Reel Club, where a Washington angler, J. Edgar Hoover, was the guest of the evening.

We have always had the idea it was in our own area that the fishingest bunch in all these United States was to be found but, after meeting the rank and file of this club, we are forced to change our mind if they are a reasonable yardstick by which to judge this section.

Learned to some extent of the preparations Miami anglers made for a trip across for Bimini marlin, when we saw one serving his lines with dental tape. A trick well worth noting for bay bluefishermen, who have lost many lines due to the fish striking at the bubbles running off the knot in the line.

We have practiced the same idea in other days, but with ordinary silk, which doesn't begin to compare to the tape. It fairs the line down to less than the actual diameters of the two lines, and without decreasing in any way the strength of the line.

Another idea for striper and bluefishermen—the roller tips. They have been on the market for some time. Lately, on some of the finest rods, being incorporated in every guide.

Until seeing it worked out with actual weights and testing the friction with scales, we took the roller as just something else to be added to a rod. Now we are for them on any rod—these tips are available from flyrod weights on up to those for the big 40-ounce telegraph poles used for the great game fish.

Mount Rainier Five Bows To Gonzaga

Purple Takes 23-16 Victory With Aid Of Second-Stringers

Gonzaga High cagers took their second triumph in 20 hours yesterday afternoon at Mount Rainier gym, leading all the way to beat the Mounts, 23-16. It was the second victory of the Purple over its suburban foe this season and tenth victory in 17 games.

Winners over St. John's, its ace rival, Thursday night by a 32-23 count, Gonzaga used its second-stringers during most of yesterday's game. Bob O'Lone played his first full game and matched the point record of the team's best scorer, Freddy Rice, each with 8 points. Best scorer for the losers was Hughes, who tallied three field goals for six points.

Gonzaga jumped into a 7-2 lead at the first quarter and was never headed as it handed the Mounts their eighth setback in 16 games. At the half it was 13-8 and at the three-quarter mark, 19-16.

In Quest of Victory

Pittsburgh, Feb. 23 (AP).—Harry Boro, Negro heavyweight boxer, who goes to the post here against Gus Dorazio, of Philadelphia, Monday night, will be seeking his thirteenth straight win since turning pro. Boro hurt his hands in his last two bouts, but his manager said today the injuries have healed and the mitts "were never in better shape."

A. I. B. Holds 35th Annual Dinner Tonight

1,150 Reservations Have Been Made for Banquet and Dance

By Thomas M. Cahill.

Largest attended in the history of the organization will be the thirty-fifth annual dinner and dance of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, at the Willard Hotel, tonight. The chapter president, Francis E. Robey, Bank of Commerce and Savings, will preside, and a record-breaking total of 1,150 reservations have been made. Included will be many Government officials, bank officers and chapter leaders from all the principal Eastern cities, as well as a large representation of local bank officers and employes.

Dr. Harold Stonier, New York executive manager of the American Bankers Association, and J. LeRoy Dart, Jacksonville, Fla., vice president of the American Institute of Banking, will speak as representatives of their organization, and the principal address will be by James A. Gheen, New York, a well-known after-dinner speaker.

The committee making arrangements for the meeting includes Walton L. Sanderson, Hamilton National Bank, chairman; Aubrey O. Cooley, Hamilton National Bank; Richard A. Norris, Lincoln National Bank; Frank M. Perley, American Security & Trust Co., vice chairmen; Frances E. Werner, Hamilton National Bank, secretary; Herbert D. Lawson, jr., Washington Loan & Trust Co., treasurer; John M. Christie, Riggs National Bank, decorations; Robert H. Lacey, Columbia National Bank, dinner; Kenneth Birgfeld, American Security & Trust Co., entertainment; J. Earle McGeary, W. B. Hibbs & Co., publicity; Edward M. Blaiklock, Washington Loan & Trust Co., reception; Paul J. Seltzer, American Security & Trust Co., seating.

U. S. Loan League

A. D. Theobald, Chicago, assistant vice president of the United States Savings and Loan League, will address the regular monthly meeting of the district of Columbia Building and Loan League next Tuesday on "What Makes the Executive." He is coauthor of the most recently published book on the business, "Savings and Loan Principles," a member of the faculty of the Northwestern University School of Commerce, and secretary-treasurer of the American Savings and Loan Institute.

THEOBALD

Much study has been focused by the United States League in recent years on the problems of the executive of a savings and loan institution with an eye toward arriving at a clearer distinction than has existed between the functions of the executive and that of the board of directors. Mr. Theobald's address will touch upon some of the facts which that study has developed.

Life Ins. Co. of Virginia

Its sixty-ninth annual report shows that Life Insurance Co. of Virginia continues to make satisfactory progress in every department and is adequately meeting the chief responsibilities of a life insurance company, namely, provision of security for policyowners and their beneficiaries.

In releasing this report to the company's policyowners and field representatives, Bradford H. Walker, president, state the company's operations in 1939 produced even better results than in the previous year. He calls attention to the following as highlights of the sixty-ninth annual report: Insurance in force was increased by $27,612,181 to $528,053,461, while assets were brought to $105,334,172.49 by the addition of $4,663,325.92. The sum of $4,284,825.40 was added to policy reserves, which now stand at $86,-759,016.46. Further protection for policyowners is provided by capital, surplus and contingency reserves aggregating $16,956,929.73.

The past year saw further liberalization of the company's weekly premium policy contracts and the granting of those new benefits to old policyowners without cost. The company is represented in Washington by A. E. Call, district manager; P. X. Callahan, manager (ordinary department), and Special Representatives Mortimer E. Bell, C. Carlisle Ames and William H. Ely.

Industrial Bankers

Three low rate industrial loan companies affiliated with Southeastern Industrial Bankers, Inc., made regular quarterly dividend payments this month to all stockholders of record February 1. It is announced by Lewis Eisele, vice president and treasurer of the parent corporation.

The companies whose stockholders received checks include the City Industrial Savings & Loan Co. of Hyattsville, Md., which paid 7 per cent on preferred stock, and 10 cents a share on Class B common and $1.60 a share on Class A common; the Southeastern Discount Corporation of Washington, D. C., which made payments of 7 per cent on preferred and 5 cents a share on common, and the Bethesda Industrial Savings & Loan Co., whose regular quarterly dividend of 7 per cent on preferred and 10 cents a share on common was disbursed to stockholders on February 17.

A total of 14 low interest rate lending institutions in the District, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia are affiliated with Southeastern Industrial Bankers, Inc.

Security Offerings $61,921,414 in Week

New York, Feb. 23 (AP).—Public offerings of new securities continued in good volume during the short week ended Wednesday totaling $61,921,414, Poor's Publishing Company reported today. The amount, however, was substantially below the extraordinarily high total of the previous week.

The demand for new money remained dull, accounting for only 17 per cent of the week's offerings. The rest represented the refunding of existing debts. Industrial issues, totaling $13,000,000, were the largest so far this year.

Wheat Recedes After Advance Of 2c a Bushel

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Feb. 23.—Forecast of a cold wave over the grain belt and the day's budget of war news stimulated enough buying to hoist wheat prices almost 2 cents a bushel today to the best level in seven weeks but most of this advance was wiped out before the close.

Redemption of loan wheat at some markets was reported substantial, due to attractive prices ranging up to more than 20 cents over loan rates in many instances. Hedging of wheat thus marketed contributed to selling pressure which the market had to absorb, and this, along with profit taking, caused the reaction. Statements of government authorities indicating that war has produced no improvement in farm exports attracted attention.

Wheat soared as much as 1⅞ cents in the first hour. This lifted May contracts to $1.07¼, the highest since January 3 and almost 12 cents better than at the start of February. July sold at the best level since December 19 and September established a new high for the season.

After midsession, however, selling increased, battering quotations down steadily. The close was only ⅛@½ higher than Wednesday, May $1.06@1.05⅞, July, $1.04¼@1.04⅛. Corn finished ¼ off to ⅛ up; May, 57¼@57⅛; July, 57⅝; oats unchanged to ½ higher; rye, ⅛@1 cent up and lard 2 higher to 2 lower.

Mme. Curie Develops New Spark Plug

Akron, Feb. 23 (AP).—Perfection of a new spark plug utilizing polonium, substance discovered by Madame Curie, was announced today by Firestone Tire & Rubber Co.

Use of electrodes containing polonium, which emits 4,000 times as many Alpha rays a second as an equal amount of radium, gives the new plug ability to speed acceleration and operate more economically, the company said. The technical explanation offered is that the Alpha Rays accomplish a breakdown which maintains the air between the negative and positive electrodes in a condition conducive to instant sparking.

Brokers' Loans Rise $7,000,000 in Week

The Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday that last week's loans to brokers and dealers on securities held by reporting member banks in New York City totaled $472,000,000. The week ended Wednesday and the total represented an increase of $7,000,000 when compared with the previous week.

Loans for the corresponding week a year ago totaled $640,000,000.

Freight Traffic Climbs Above Past Two Years

Week's Loadings Are 5.4% Over 1939, 13.4% Over 1938

Loading of revenue freight for the week ended February 17 totaled 607,924 cars, the Association of American Railroads announced yesterday. This was an increase of 31,279 cars or 5.4 per cent above the corresponding week in 1939 and an increase of 72,058 cars or 13.4 per cent above the same week in 1938. Loading of revenue freight for the week of February 17 was a decrease of 18,979 cars or 3.0 per cent below the preceding week.

Miscellaneous freight loading totaled 240,895 cars, a decrease of 3,139 cars below the preceding week, but an increase of 19,177 cars above the corresponding week in 1939.

Coal loading amounted to 131,734 cars, a decrease of 13,927 cars below the preceding week, but an increase of 5,756 cars above the corresponding week in 1939.

Grain and grain products loading totaled 30,897 cars, an increase of 1,723 cars above the preceding week, and an increase of 2,315 cars above the corresponding week in 1939. In the Western districts alone, grain and grain products loading for the week of February 17 totaled 18,-684 cars, an increase of 1,668 cars above the preceding week, and an increase of 1,577 cars above the corresponding week in 1939.

Livestock Loadings Gain

Livestock loading amounted to 11,083 cars, an increase of 543 cars above the preceding week, but a decrease of 37 cars below the corresponding week in 1939. In the Western districts alone, loading of livestock for the week of February 17 totaled 8,088 cars, an increase of 314 cars above the preceding week and an increase of 70 cars above the corresponding week in 1939.

Forest products loading totaled 30,552 cars, an increase of 1,269 cars above the preceding week, and an increase of 6,129 cars above the corresponding week in 1939.

Coke loading amounted to 10,007 cars, a decrease of 970 cars below the preceding week, but an increase of 2,351 cars above the corresponding week in 1939.

All districts reported increases compared with the corresponding week in 1939 and all districts except the Southwestern reported increases over the corresponding week in 1938.

Cotton Futures Up 20 to 45 Cents Per Bale

New York, Feb. 23 (AP).—Cotton futures today sold at the highest price since mid-January, when the market abruptly slid down from two-year peaks. The list advanced despite heavy selling in March and May by leading spot interests, which has kept these deliveries under fire for several weeks.

Because of evening up in the March position, trade was at a far livelier clip than recent sessions. Short holders of that delivery covered commodities freely while price fixing by mills took large quantities of the staple off the market.

Firmness of the market under selling fire also tempted speculative contingents to the ring in larger numbers. In the face of heavy liquidation, the spot month reached 11.08 cents a pound, top since January 15.

Open contracts in March at the close Wednesday totaled 208,000 bales, with only 2½ trading days until first notice day.

Cottonseed Oil

Cottonseed oil futures closed unchanged to 4 points up today in a session given over largely to switching out of the spot month.

Of 247 contracts traded, 196 were in the form of exchanges. First notice day for March will be next Tuesday. March ended 7.00*; May, 7.14*; July, 7.25; September, 7.31*.

Crude oil sold at 6 cents a pound in the Southeast and Valley. Mill offerings were sparing. Texas quoted 5¾@5¾ bid, although some terminal points reported sales a shade under 6 cents.

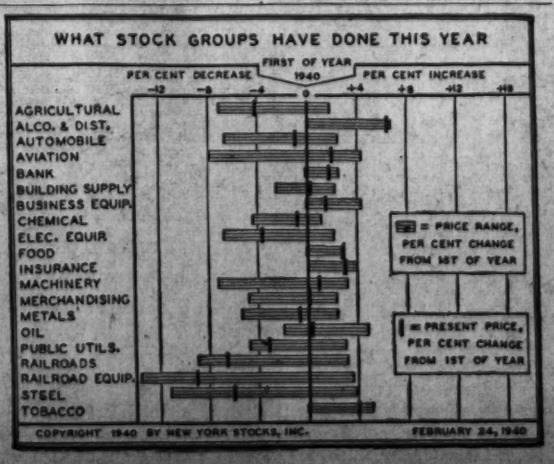
National Banks Set Record for Assets

Deposits and assets of national banks both set records in 1939, Preston Delano, comptroller of the currency, reported yesterday that the 5,193 national banks had $31,-612,992,000 of deposits at the end of December, an increase of $632,299,-000 during the year, and a gain of $3,562,316,000 in the last two years.

Assets of the banks totaled $85,-319,257,000, an increase of $634,581,-000 over the previous year, and of $3,653,080,000 over two years ago.



The Market

By C. Norman Stabler
A Special Correspondent.

Equipments, Steels, Oils Lower; Power and Store Stocks Firm; Treasury Bonds Drift Downward

New York, Feb. 23.—The holiday gave traders an opportunity to digest current Washington news and opinions, including several quite positive forecasts that President Roosevelt would be nominated and possibly elected for a third term. Neither wars nor business declines can match the third-term bogey for conjuring pessimism in the Street and so stocks went down. Losses were largest in rail equipment, steel, oil and manufacturing sections with power and merchandising shares showing the most resistance. Price levels were at their best for the day in the morning when most of the 56 new highs recorded during the session were established. At the finish, the composite price for the 100 key stocks was 0.27 point lower.

Bonds were dull and some of the speculatives weakened. Foreign exchange quotations showed little change from Wednesday. Cotton was up 4 to 9 points, while wheat ended one-eighth to one-half cent higher after rising 2 cents in early trading on cold weather news from the winter belt.

Break in Kodak

A sharp break in Eastman Kadok was a reflection of the character of the market, rather than contributing to irregularity. The shares were off 7¼ points, to 147, at the low of the day, picked up a point, to close with a net loss of 6¼. A rumor was current that a few sales had been encouraged by suggestions that duPont will be a more active competitor in film manufacturing. The duPont shares, which showed little activity, were a point higher.

Poor leadership was an explanation for the aimlessness of the list. While Loft hung on to its place at the top of the most active division on turnover of 50,400 shares, it was tied in volume by Seaboard Air Line, a Penny issue and a majority of actives were issues priced at $20 or lower. Loft, which has been recording new highs recently with monotonous regularity, turned soft and gave up 1⅜. Seaboard lost 33 per cent of its market value, closing at 25 cents a share. Aircraft and related stocks were busily traded, but at slightly lower levels. Silver King Coalition and Consolidated Copper Mines joined Anaconda in the active division, all three showing fractional changes. Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey was off more than a point in the oil group, while Socony-Vacuum firmed a trifle. Rails were shaded on the more than seasonal decline in carloadings. Motors responded only here and there to the Ward's report that assembly schedules had been stepped up this week as a result of consistently good retail sales volume of new cars since the first of the year.

Steel Neglected

Steels were more or less neglected after the first few minutes of trading when steel common opened on 1,500 shares at 58, unchanged. It closed half a point down at 57½. Bethlehem lost 1⅛.

Leading business indicates again reflected the let down in both business and industrial lines and the Department of Commerce issued an opinion that a decline in commercial and trade activity may be expected through the first half. No predictions were made as to the second half. Meanwhile the rosy reports of business gains achieved by a majority of corporations during 1939 have failed to stir traders to any extent. It is estimated that such reports already have been discounted. In addition, a large part of the 1939 gains were made possible by the unprecedented activity in the third quarter now recognized as partly due to war-scare purchases. According to one compilation the net profit of about 225 representative industrial corporations last year was $735,000,000 against about $385,000,000 for the same companies in 1938. Railroads made the best showing in a relative sense with substantial profits against fairly severe deficits in the preceeding year.

Bond Market Lower

Listed bonds were irregular today, with more small losses than gains in evidence. The trend, if there was one, was toward modestly lower levels in the major groups. Best-rated investment obligations showed only small fractional variations, and speculative issues were almost equally stable. There were a few large movements in a few special issues, but they left the general market unperturbed. Trading amounted to $5,580,000.

United States Treasury securities drifted idly lower by 1-32 to 2-32 point, with all interests aloof pending disclosure by the Treasury of its March refunding program. Fractional losses of almost equally small proportions occurred in various high-grade utility, railroad and industrial bonds, but many of these issues did not change at all. Some important new financing now impends, and little business is being done in listed issues.

The long list of speculative railroad bonds disclosed slightly more numerous losses than gains, but all variations were minute. Local traction bonds are adjusting themselves, marketwise, to the unification program, and to the price expectance of the new city unification issue. Puerto Rican-American Tobacco bonds jumped 5 to 6 points. Share privilege issues were neglected.

Scandinavian bonds were irregular in the foreign section, owing to the uncertainties of northern European affairs. Bonds of all countries enlisted in the greater European war were marked lower. A little buying interest appeared in varion Latin-American bonds, but most movements were small.

C. B. S. President To Sell 100,000 Columbia Shares

New York, Feb. 23 (AP).—Columbia Broadcasting System, Inc. announced today it would file with the Securities and Exchange Commission tomorrow a registration statement for proposed sale of 100,-000 shares of Columbia stock.

The sale, it was said, would not represent additional financial for the company, but would comprise sale by William S. Paley, president, of a "relatively small part of his own holdings" of Columbia stock.

Paley, a director as well as president of the company, is its largest individual stockholder. He now owns 448,636 shares, or about 26 per cent of all the shares outstanding. After the proposed sales he will continue to be the owner of 348,636 shares, or slightly over 20 per cent of the company's outstanding stock.

Of the shares to be sold, 20,000 are class "A" stock and 80,000 class "B." There are outsanding 950,799 shares of class "A" and 758,924 shares of class "B."

The 100,000 shares, according to proposed plans, would be offered to the public by a banking group composed of Harriman Ripley & Co., Lehman Bros. Glore, Forgan & Co. and W. E. Hutton & Co. The offering price was not made public, but the company said it probably would be "at the market."

Boston Wool Market

Boston, Feb. 23 (AP) (U. S. Dept. of Agri.). The demand for domestic wools in Boston was very slack today. Mills appeared to be quite fully recovered for current operations. Topmakers were receiving only scattered orders for small quantities of wool tops, which they were delivering from stock. Boston wool houses were making little effort to move greasy combing domestic wools, because in the past few weeks they have found that users who were not in the market for wools were not attracted by price reductions. On the other hand, when wools were urgently needed, the prices paid were at, or close to, quotations.

Idle Money Hits New Record High Of 5.63 Billions

By the Associated Press

Idle money in the Nation's banks reached a record high of $5,630,-000,000 this week. The Federal Reserve Board said last night that the unprecedented total was attained in the 7 days ended February 21, due to an increase of $50,000,000 during the week arising from Treasury gold purchases and spending.

Because money lent by banks comes back to them in the form of deposits and can be partially relent, officials estimated the supply of excess reserves in the banks was the potential basis for about $40,-000,000,000 worth of credit.

The possibility of such vast credit expansion and its inflationary effect has caused the board to warn Congress several times in the last two years that new powers will be needed to control credit. However, actual use of credit by business has been so slack in recent years that other Federal agencies have spent much of their time urging banks and businessmen to utilize more credit.

Excess reserves of banks—usually called idle money—are the portion of money in banks not needed by the banks under Federal regulations to protect deposits. Thus, if a bank is required to keep a 20 per cent reserve on deposits, $80 of every $100 deposited in the banks becomes an excess reserve unless lent out or invested.

Montgomery High Contract Is Let

Letting of a $99,000 contract to the Morrison Bros. of Bethesda for construction of the new commercial training unit of the Montgomery-Blair High School was announced at a meeting of the school's P.-T. A. Wednesday night. The addition is to be completed next August.

The association voted to ask the county school board to build a permanent corridor between the old and new sections of the school.

A committee was appointed to prepare a questionnaire to determine the extent of interest in aviation among Montgomery County pupils.

Commerce Dept. Predicts Business Drop

High December Rate Based on Inventory Investment, It Says

By the Associated Press

The Commerce Department said yesterday that "the prospects for early 1940 are for a decline in business volumes." A department statement, which made no forecasts for later in the year, explained:

"At the end of 1939, the economic situation was definitely not one in which the high December rate of activity would be maintained. The expanded volume of production had been based in large part upon investment in inventory, and by the end of December it was evident that this movement would not continue much longer.

"At the end of the year there did not appear to be in immediate prospect any new demand factors of sufficient magnitude to offset a cessation of inventory investment and thus to hold productive activity at existing levels. Business investments, apart from inventories, has undoubtedly increased, but there were no indications of further expansion in this sphere for the months ahead.

Exports Gain

"The export returns for December showed a large gain and prospects were that demands from abroad would be much larger in the early months of 1940 than in the corresponding period of 1939. However, this probable increase could be at best only large enough to offset a minor portion of the inventory factor."

The statement also included a review of 1939 business, which repeated department estimates that the national income last year increased 7 per cent over 1938 to $68,500,000,000.

The statement said the gain in income was a "real" gain because price levels were virtually the same in the two years, and thus the income produced in the two years had roughly the same purchasing power per dollar. The 1939 total, however, was $14,200,000,000 less than 1929.

Sugar Futures Forge Higher in Heavy Trading

New York, Feb. 23 (AP).—Buyers rushed the domestic sugar futures market today when they heard from Washington that domestic sugar quotas had been cut.

Final prices were up 3 points after top gains running to 6 points had been trimmed by profit taking and hedge selling. Turnover of 38,500 tons was the heaviest since the first week of the war last September.

While brokers declared a cut of 117,353 tons in the quota was not a particularly heavy reduction, its real value was as a clew to Administration views on sugar prices.

Also cheering to traders was that although today was first notice day for March, no tenders were posted. Some observers said that refiners might decide to take delivery on March futures.

Offerings in the raw market were immediately advanced following the quota revision. The spot price moved up 2 points on sale of 5,000 bags of Puerto Ricans at 2.85 cents a pound. The world list ended unchanged to 1½ points, up on turnover of 5,700 tons; March, 1.58½; May, 1.59½.

American Export Votes 25 Cents

New York, Feb. 23 (AP).—Directors of American Export Lines, Inc., today authorized a dividend of 25 cents a share, payable March 15 to holders of record March 4. Last year the company paid 15 cents in March and 50 cents in December, plus a stock dividend of three-tenths shares of American Export Air Lines for each share held.

Cluett Peabody 50 Cents

Cluett Peabody & Co. directors declared an interim dividend of 50 cents a share on common stock, payable March 25 to holders of record March 14. Three interim payments of 25 cents were made last year, and a year-end disbursement of $2 in December.

Crude Oil Demand

The Bureau of Mines yesterday forecast the March market demand for domestic crude oil at 3,500,000 barrels daily or a total of 108,520,000 for the month. This was 4.5 per cent more than the actual March total last year.

Bankers Offer $17 For Lipton Class A

New York, Feb. 23 (AP).—Hallgarten & Co., investment banking firm, announced today it had been authorized by interests affiliated with Lipton, Ltd., British tea concern, to buy at $17 a share any or all Class "A" shares of Thomas J. Lipton, Inc., the United States unit of the Lipton business.

While the bidders were not clearly identified, they were described as being American and Canadian interests already close to the British company. The offer expires March 15. There are about 78,000 shares publicly held out of 200,000 issued. At most the transaction would involve $1,326,000.

A sale of the American unit's Class "A" stock was recorded on the New York Curb Exchange in January at $10.75 a share. The company has plants at Hoboken, N. J. and San Francisco.

Foreign Exchange

New York, Feb. 23 (AP).—The belga rallied in the foreign exchange market today. While the Belgian currency moved up .04 of a cent in terms of the dollar, sterling dipped ⅜ of a cent, the French franc .00⅛ of a cent and the guilder .02 of a cent. The Swiss franc was unchanged. Money experts said the rise in the belga appeared due to demand based on war dislocations in European trade.

Living Costs Edge Higher In January

Food, Coal, Clothing Prices Increase While Rents Are Unchanged

New York, Feb. 23.—The cost of living of wage earners in the United States rose very slightly, only one-tenth of 1 per cent, in January, despite rises of 0.4 per cent in food prices and of 0.5 per cent in coal prices, according to the monthly survey made by the Division of Industrial Economics of the Industrial Conference Board.

All items considered, the cost of living in January was the same as in January, 1939. It was 19.1 per cent above the low point that was reached in April, 1933, but 14.4 per cent lower than in January, 1929.

Food prices increased 0.4 per cent between December and January. They were 0.5 per cent lower than in January, 1939 and 24.9 per cent lower than in January, 1929, but 29.0 per cent higher than in March, 1933.

Rents were the same in January as in December, 0.5 per cent higher than last January, 38.1 per cent higher than in January, 1934, but 5.9 per cent below January, 1929.

Clothing prices in January were 0.1 per cent higher than in December, 0.4 per cent higher than a year ago, 20.3 per cent higher than the 1933 low, but 26.5 per cent lower than in December, 1929.

Coal prices showed a 0.5 per cent increase between December and January but were 0.6 per cent lower than in January, 1939, and 8.8 per cent lower than in the same month of 1929.

Gas and electricity costs, which are compiled only twice each year, were 0.2 per cent lower in January, 1940 than in July, 1939, 10.2 per cent lower than in January, 1929, and 0.8 per cent higher than in January, 1939.

The cost of sundries was 0.1 per cent higher in January than in December and January last year, 7.4 per cent higher than in June, 1933, but 3.6 per cent lower than in January, 1929.

The purchasing value of the dollar was 117.1 cents in January, as compared with 117.2 cents in December, 100.2 cents in January, 1929, and 100.0 cents in 1923.

Sun Oil to Resume Gas Station Service

Philadelphia, Feb. 23 (AP).—Joseph N. Pew, president of the Sun Oil Co., said today in an annual report to stockholders that the company would return to the operation of service stations as a part of a new retail distribution policy. "During this year," the report said, "the company will make substantial investments in improvement and extension of its distribution facilities.

"Several years ago, when States imposed punitive taxes on chain stores, including filling stations, the threat of such legislation spreading caused most oil companies, including your own, to discontinue operating service stations."

Mile Feature Added to C. U. Indoor Meet

Well-Known Stars To Be Named to Appear in Event

Dorsey Griffith, director of Catholic University's seventh annual indoor track meet, March 2, announced today that the Maki Mile appeared a virtual certainty. This added feature has been tentatively scheduled in view of the fact that the entire net proceeds would go to the Finnish Relief Fund.

Griffith said he would have an important announcement tomorrow and the stars he is trying to line up are internationally famous. Meanwhile, entries continue to pour in at Catholic University. From the numerous requests for tickets the games appear to be a sell-out.

Navy, with 21 men entered, will make a determined bid for the open intercollegiate title this year. The Rector's 1,000, cofeature of the meet with the Abbey 50, will draw the best field in the history of the meet. C. U. will not be entirely out of the running if the past performances of Sophomore Johnny Corbett are any indication. Corbett is regarded by Griffith, an astute track coach, as one of the most promising prospects ever to run the middle distance.

Corbett last year cracked the outdoor 2-mile stadium record at C. U. in the LaSalle meet. Last year Corbett finished third in the Rector's race which was won by Maryland's Jim Kehoe. Second to Kehoe last year was the Navy captain, Barney Oldfield. This year Kehoe is a prohibitive favorite to win chiefly because of his recent 880 victory in the handicap race at Seton Hall. He defeated such stars as John Woodruff, Olympic champion in 1936, and John Borican, last year's indoor sensation.

Navy believes it has a winner in Dick Shafer for the 45-yard high hurdle race. Shafer is the boy who was thrust into the Army-Navy football game last year and thrilled the huge crowd by sparking the Middies to victory. He is seeking additional laurels on the track this year. In the games last year the Midshipman finished third to Virginia's world record holder, Frank Fuller. Fuller cracked the 5-yearold record of 6 seconds flat established by another Virginian, Everett, in 1934. Fuller's time which Shafer will shoot at this year is 5.8.

Colorado U. Coach Fights Dismissal

Appears Before Board Of Regents; Demands Made by Own Players

By the Associated Press

Boulder, Colo., Feb. 23.—Bernard F. (Bunny) Oakes, whose Colorado University football teams have won two conference championships and tied for a third, made his second appearance before the board of regents tonight to fight his players' demands that he be dismissed.

"I've been called again," the hard-driving 41-year-old mentor said as he entered the meeting room where he had talked with the regents earlier in the day.

He was subjected to similar criticism of his coaching last fall but later won a vote of confidence from the regents.

The board this afternoon questioned members of the 1939 championship football squad about a petition 35 of them signed demanding Oakes' removal. The coach has stressed discipline and hard drills.

President Robert L. Stearns, after the session with the students commented: "This may go on for a long time."

The coach has three years to go on a five-year contract. He came to Colorado in 1935 after having played football at the University of Illinois and coached at the Universities of Montana, Nebraska and Tennessee.

Briarley Tops Woodward

Briarley Military Academy, of Ammendale, Md., put on a last half drive to defeat Woodward School yesterday, 29-22, on the home floor. The Cadets claimed their fifth triumph in nine games as a result.

Held to a 12-11 lead at the half, Briarley took a safe lead in the second half behind Lodge and Ingberg. Lodge tallied 12 points and Ingberg 7. Allen Procise starred for the losers with 6 points.

Cubs Open Drills; Pilot Not Thinking About Dizzy Dean

Avalon, Calif., Feb. 23 (AP).—The Chicago Cubs opened spring training today with a two-hour workout consisting mainly of running and fungo drills in damp and chilly weather.

HARTNETT

The only absentee was Dizzy Dean, who is holding out for more than the $10,000 offered by the club.

Manager Gabby Hartnett said he wasn't worried about Dean's stand, explaining that his interest was mainly in the "kid pitchers."

"This is the biggest squad of pitchers and catchers we have ever taken to camp and the most promising in years," he said. "We'll spend a lot of time with these youngsters."

Three Losses Dim Chances of Md. Ringmen

Bradley, Alperstein, Harn Beaten; Askin, Cox Win in Tourney

in he was readily repulsed by Askin's hard and accurate left hand. The Maryland lightweight alternated his blows, delivering first to the head then to the body.

Toward the close of the fight Askin gave Young a hectic introduction to his right uppercut, which had the Wolf pack pugilist pretty rocky as the fistic engagement ended.

Alperstein Beaten

The bid of another Alperstein to fighting fame was erased tonight as Izzy Alperstein, brother of Benny, dropped a disputed decision to Lauren Dresbach, of Clemson, in the welterweight division.

It was a battle of southpaws and the punches from the portside came fast and furious. Dreisbach probably landed oftener because of his longer reach. But the blows delivered by Alperstein were crisp and stinging. Alperstein also appeared to be the better ring general. However, Judges Brockman and Short proved to be the fistic fates, giving the nod to Dreisbach.

Norman Hathaway drew a bye in the 155-pound division. The scheduled bout in the middleweight class between Newton Cox, the defending champ, and Paul Abrams, of North Carolina State, was called off. Cox winning on a forfeit. A badly cut eye prevented Abrams from meeting the Maryland titleholder. Maryland's second bye was drawn by George Pyles in the heavyweight class.

155-Pound Class
Lofton (South Carolina) decisioned Morel (Duke).
Parris (North Carolina) decisioned Rucker (The Citadel).
Hathaway (Maryland) advanced on a bye.
Woolwine (Virginia Tech) decisioned Greene (Clemson).

165-Pound Class
Hion (Clemson) decisioned McCarter (South Carolina).
Cox (Maryland) won from Abrams (N. C. State) by default.
Sanders (North Carolina) decisioned Belmore (Virginia Tech).
Ulrich (The Citadel) advanced on a bye.

Robertson (N. C. State) advanced on a bye.
Ferguson (Clemson) decisioned Henson (South Carolina).
Leites (Maryland) decisioned Murphy (Duke).
Sowder (Virginia Tech) decisioned Duncan (The Citadel).

Unlimited Class
Baxter (South Carolina) advanced on a bye.
Pyles (South Carolina) advanced on a bye.
Wilson (Clemson) advanced on a bye.
Kimball (North Carolina) decisioned Young (The Citadel).

Results of preliminary rounds:

Big Ed Breaks Old Turf Mark

Arcadia, Calif., Feb. 23 (U.P.)—Big Ed, 4-year-old chestnut colt, owned by Mrs. W. T. Westrope, bettered a 4-year-old American track record by two seconds today in winning the 2½-mile Kyrat Handicap at Santa Anita.

The colt, winner only twice in 18 starts, led from wire to wire in 4:22 flat, winning by five lengths.

The old record was set at Newport, Ky., November 18, 1889, by the horse Kyrat. The world record of 4:16 3-5 was established in 1922 by Golden Myth in England.

Big Ed, ridden by Jockey Johnny Longden, distanced English Harry and Bon Amour in the seven-horse marathon.

Brewers' Softball Team to Practice

Abe Rosenfeld, the District's ace softball hurler, will supervise the first practice of the team which won the District championship last year today at the Heurich gymnasium The team will be known as the Brewers this year. All former mates of Rosenfeld, in addition to Bauer, Aquilino, Zanelotti and Mostow are asked to report. Starting time will be 2:30 p. m.

Walsh Suggests Congress Quiz Cabinet Aides

Interpellation Would Keep Public in Touch With Executive Policy

A system of parliamentary interpellation, by which Congress would question members of the Cabinet, was suggested last night by the Rev. Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., as a means of keeping the people in touch with policies, domestic and foreign, affecting their welfare.

Dr. Walsh, who is vice president of Georgetown University and regent of its School of Foreign Service, spoke at Memorial Continental Hall, Seventeenth and D streets northwest, where he delivered the second in his current series of lectures on "American Diplomacy in Peace and War."

Who Is to Judge?

"A grave responsibility rests on the shoulders of the Chief Executive, to whom American diplomacy is directly answerable under the letter and spirit of the Constitution," said Father Walsh. "Should he or any other official seek to advance a party purpose by dangerous means, he should be as roundly and publicly denounced as any opposition which would seek to obstruct his legitimate prerogatives for party profit."

"But who is to judge?" asked Dr. Walsh. He pointed out that the broad masses of the people cannot be expected to know the hidden details and complexities of negotiation. The newspapers and columnists, he said, are not equipped to sit in final judgment on the swift developments of a crowded hour, nor can the confidential elements of intergovernmental conversations be spread in large type on the front pages.

"The conflict between the rights of a people in a democracy and the duties of an individual Secretary of State answerable only to the President could best be solved," declared the educator, "by the system of parliamentary interpellation or question hour.

Would Provide Check

"I have long thought that Cabinet members should have a seat—or at least a chair—in Congress, where the elected delegates of the people might put such questions as affect the common welfare and even the lives and destinies of millions. Matters of extreme delicacy involving foreign government could be reserved for executive sessions or deferred for special treatment.

"Thus, peace and war, national policy and foreign relations might well receive both the commendation they often deserve and the check they sometimes merit before proceeding too far."

Observing that America's diplomatic personnel constituted our first line of national defense in time of peace," Dr. Walsh warned that today American diplomacy was "entrusted with a supreme challenge, the resolution of which must affect the destiny of every citizen of the United States."

Station PDS Presents Guitar Player as Guest

Lynn Little, 521 Thirteenth street northwest, will be the guest this morning on the PDS program. Little, who plays the Hawaiian guitar, will play "Scatter Brain" and "Song of Old Hawaii" over Station WMAL.

SUPERMAN — In Enemy Territory — By Jerry Siegel and Joe Shuster

SHORTLY AFTER... SUPERMAN RACES INTO THE GREAT ESTATE WITHIN WHICH AMORK, THE DICTATOR OF BLITZEN LIVES...
NOW FOR THE FIREWORKS!
GET HIM!
SHOOT HIM— CUT HIM DOWN!
YOU'RE WELCOME TO TRY!
HIS ARMS MOVING WITH INCREDIBLE RAPIDITY, SUPERMAN FLINGS THE ATTACKERS UP....
...TO THE ROOF, WHERE THEY CAN ONLY SHAKE THEIR FISTS AT HIM IN HELPLESS RAGE!
YOU'LL NEVER REACH AMORK ALIVE! WE'VE PREPARED A "RECEPTION" FOR INTRUDERS!

Contract Bridge

By Florence Osborn.

Today's declarer managed his grand-slam contract when an unfavorable division in one of his long suits limited him to 12 tricks. Here is how his partner, R. W., describes it:

"This, I think, is a nice little deal for counting them out. My veteran partner in duplicate (age 21) caught it in a rubber session recently, and, as you see, landed in a seven no-trump contract.

"It is interesting to note that at trick three you have the count on diamonds, at five on spades and at nine, when the squeeze has West in its clutches, on clubs. Interesting, too, that at trick 11, should East try to befuddle South about hearts by throwing his good club queen, South's club five is in (for trick 14)."

The hand was played like this: West opened the ace of clubs and declarer took with the ace, immediately trying out the diamond suit by cashing the queen and playing over to the king. When East showed out on the second round, declarer had to shift his tactics and try something else. A squeeze might be in the offing if he could learn a little more about the defenders' holdings. He ran his spades, watching for discards, and West's singleton spade told him enough to proceed with the squeeze. Declarer discarded a heart from the dummy on the last spade, and then cashed his club king, which put the pressure on West, who blanked down to three hearts and two diamonds, had to make a suicidal choice. He elected to throw a heart, declarer went over to dummy with the heart king, cashed the diamond ace and returned to his hand to take the heart ace and the jack for the thirteenth trick. Had West discarded a diamond, declarer would have won the ten of diamonds to fulfill the grand-slam contract.

A few days ago this pillar of inaccuracies asked for additional lines to the lyric about the man who "combed his hair with a wagon wheel and died with a toothache in his heel." It seems everybody in Washington except'n us knew the lines and lots of very nice people went to the trouble of phoning or writing them out. It was interesting to see how many twists and turns a familiar bit of doggerel like that took as it spread around the country many years ago. It was even more interesting to see that somebody reads these immortal lines.

From a barroom came a good-natured postcard containing the lyrics requested and a few unrequested digs at the conductor of this epic for not knowing such a popular song. I am a you-know-what Yankee and it was pretty obvious from the phone calls and some of the letters that the "old man who died of a toothache in his heel" was better known below the Mason-Dixon line than he was above.

A scholarly note on a doctor's letterhead pointed out that the lines came from Stephen Foster's "O Susannah." Anyhow, I have about 15 verses of "Old Dan Tucker," who seems to have been the gent who died of the misplaced dental difficulties. So, if you'll forgive a lazy man's manners, thanks for writing and phoning, and I promise not to ask any more silly questions.

As you must know, WJSV is about to unveil its lovely new transmitter and simultaneously increase its power from 10,000 to 50,000 watts. There's lots of work, as a good deal of it pretty dull, too, in connection with this happy event, but it all seems worthwhile now. For Frank La Falce and Harry Anger, who are putting on a special show at the Earle in connection with the new transmitter have just informed me that one of the acts will be the Hartmans. That means one gay and happy week.

You've all seen the sleek gents and the sloe-eyed ladies who float ecstatically around nightclubs under the titles of "ballroom dancers." The Hartmans do the same thing, only they burlesque their horrid art and it makes for one of the theater's most worthwhile 15 minutes.

"I Take This Man"

BY ANNE TEDLOCK BROOKS

Alan and Brenda return to the city after their marriage. Alan leaves Brenda at her door and she enters her apartment alone, a call comes from Cary saying he needs her badly, so Brenda goes to her office. After a minute's hesitation, Cary tells her that Lynne wants to divorce him so she can marry Jeff Adams. Brenda realizes Cary has been too upset over his own affair to read the newspapers, so she tells him of her marriage. When Alan comes to her apartment for dinner that night she learns he also has heard of the Winship separation. In the following week Brenda completes her preparations for sailing to Brazil and tells Cary good-by.

Chapter 9

They laughed, knowing how many muddles they'd been in before. And Brenda, on that light note, held out her hand.

Cary took it. He covered it with his other hand. At the last moment he was so gentle that she could not bear it.

Brenda felt the tears rising. She almost ran from the room. She sat down at her old desk for a moment. Scalding tears flooded her face. She shook them off angrily.

"I won't let myself forget Alan!" she told herself.

She hastily gathered her things together and went down quickly before any of the others saw her. Cary's head made a dark shadow on the door, as he bent over his desk.

Brenda had one last thing she must do.

SHE CALLED Lynne from a pay telephone, and a few minutes later was being ushered into her own town apartment.

"It was good of you to come," Lynne said. Her face was white, and Brenda realized that she had gone through a strain, too. "None of the other girls have bothered. But then, of course, you are leaving."

Brenda nodded. She sat down on the Louis XIV divan, and tried to be casual. "I'd have come anyway, Lynne."

Her hostess was wearing a delft blue lounging robe, and its soft clinging folds accentuated her loveliness

"I believe you would have. Thanks, for that, Brenda." She blew a smoke ring and watched it through narrowed eyes. "I know what they're all saying. And they're right. I know I'm foolish. And I know it's not fair to Dulcie or Cary, jr. So don't bother to tell me that, Brenda."

"You've summed up my opinion very well. I've not come to say that, though. I've come to tell you something else. I love Cary." Her tones carried with it the sleepless nights, the tears unshed, the bitterness of her own position.

Lynne's face grew whiter. "Brenda!" She exclaimed in a shocked voice. "You child! You don't know what you're saying!"

"Yes, Yes. I know. Perhaps this is the first time that any of the so-called 'other women' ever came to the wife and professed love for her husband."

"But, that's impossible. I mean—oh, I don't know what I mean. Cary?" she said sharply.

"Cary has behaved like a perfect gentleman. He knows that I love him—he can't help knowing it. But he—poor dear, loves you. And, loving you and respecting yours and the children's rights, he has been true to you." Brenda's eyes were two black pools, her cheeks pallid.

"Yes, Yes, Cary would be that way. Oh, dear! If the whole world were not such a mess!" Lynne said petulantly. She sprang to her feet suddenly. "Brenda! You've just married Alan Tremaine!"

"I wondered if you'd think of that. Yes. And I feel like the beast I am to be here telling you this. But, oh, Lynne, it's only to make you see reason. Loving Cary, I married Alan, knowing that you and Cary should always be together. You must go on, Lynne. You must!"

Brenda was sobbing. Lynne touched her shoulder. "Don't cry, Brenda. I'd rather Cary married you than anyone I know. As for our going on together, that's impossible. I'm awfully fond of Cary. I want you to know that."

"No, Lynne, you're not awfully fond of Cary. You love him. You are merely infatuated with Jeff."

"Don't be silly, Brenda. Jeff and I will be married at once, as soon as I secure my divorce." Her voice was firm.

A Warning

Brenda rose. "I see that I've been wrong to come." She walked toward the door. "You're sure that Jeff doesn't look toward the Thornton money, Lynne?"

"Jeff has money of his own," the older woman's words were scornful. "There might just possibly be a chance that he loves me for myself, might there not?"

"Oh, Lynne, of course! Just as Cary loves you and all the rest of us. But you're making a big mistake. Look to Jeff's finances, though," she warned, "before you make your final decision."

Lynne stared at her. After a moment she said with dry lips, "You don't mean that?"

"I have inquired. That is all I'll say."

"I will marry him anyway. You should never have come. I thought you were my friend, but you're merely like the others!"

Brenda said, "I am your friend, Lynne," and walked from the room. How many times she had wanted to talk with Lynne in the last few weeks. How had she ever got up courage!

And Lynne knew a sudden misgiving. What of the other girls that Jeff had discarded for wealthier ones! She could not believe that this time—she had regarded him with suspicion at first, but as time went on—Jeff had been so amusing. He had plenty of time to take her out in the evenings, even in the afternoons when there was something special.

Plans for Sailing

Brenda, going back to her apartment, felt she was glad she had seen Lynne. Perhaps she had planted a fertile seed in her mind.

Alan had just returned to the apartment when she drove up. They took the elevator together. He relieved her of her things she had brought home from her office.

He eyed her searchingly. It would be a good thing when they got away, he thought.

Brenda tried to be cheerful the rest of the evening. The apartment was crowded with their steamer trunks and bags sitting packed, ready to be taken to the ship the first thing in the morning.

Brenda fell asleep when it was almost day. And awakened to find the sun streaming in through the windows. Alan had let her sleep and Marta was getting a tray ready for her.

Brenda looked ill this morning. So ill that Alan did not tell her the important news that had arrived in the radiogram that he had just received. He would take her to South America with him. It would be quiet and peaceful on the boat and she could relax.

The message had bothered him a great deal. It would affect his plans more than he liked to consider.

The thing that haunted him most was how Brenda would take it.

The Voyage

Brenda was never to forget the magic of their ocean voyage. The second evening out, she walked the promenade deck with Alan, feeling the wind sweep through her hair and smooth out the lines of fatigue and worry on her brow.

"Do you like it, Brenda?" her husband asked softly as they leaned on the rail in the moonlight. He had kept silent about the message he received. Later would be all too soon to tell her.

"It's like a dream," she answered. "I've always wanted to go aboard a ship and sail away to a foreign land." They watched the waves, crested with golden light as they sailed into them.

Alan studied her as she stood in the moonlight. Her black hair was like a cloud above her white forehead; her cheeks petal soft as a white camellia. Her dark eyes held a far-away look. She was so utterly desirable and beautiful that Alan, who had often hungered for beauty in his loneliness, caught his breath. "If I were an artist" . . . and the absurdity of his wish when she was talented, and when she herself would make such a lovely model struck him.

The day before they sailed, they had felt the confusion of leaving. Alan tried to relieve her of little things in the final arrangements of getting away. But she had looked so white and drawn when they came aboard that he was shaken.

Now the color had returned to her pale cheeks and she had taken an interest in their surroundings.

"Didn't you feel superior sitting at the captain's table tonight, Brenda? I'm sure that several people on board have recognized you already . . . 'Miss Brenda Holliway, the artist, you know.' We've had an invitation to sit in on a rubber of bridge with the Nelsons, if you care to."

"Oh, Alan, do we have to tonight? If you wish, of course, I will."

"I feel flattered that you prefer not playing. My bridge fell by the wayside long ago. Some of the fellows and myself kept up a pretense of it the first few years, but now, we rarely play. Other games seem so much more masculine in the wilderness, you know."

They took another turn about the deck, and sank in their steamer chairs for a while. Alan tucked her rug about her warmly and she said, "Thanks. I feel so terribly lazy."

To Brenda just lying in the steamer chair or walking about the decks was so peaceful that she felt that she never wanted the journey to end.

They played quoits one afternoon and swam in the pool two evenings. They read to each other, and Brenda liked Alan's voice, warm with expression and clear with overtones.

His Bad News

They had only one more day out when Alan approached the news of the radiogram he received the day before they left.

Brenda had felt all afternoon that there was something that Alan was trying to tell her. They had read their magazines and laid them aside. Once she had caught him studying her, and saw a different expression in his eyes.

Today, the sea was smooth. They stayed out on deck much longer than usual before going to dress for dinner. Twice Alan had glanced at his watch, but made no move to get up.

"Brenda," he said, taking up one of her hands, "I received some important news the day before we left. I tried to get up courage to tell you, but knew that you had no need for another worry just then."

Brenda looked at him questioningly.

"I must go into the interior as soon as possible."

"Oh, Alan! Must you?" The surprise caught her unprepared and yet he had told her once that soon he must go into the new area to establish the mine east of Espinhaco.

"I'm so sorry, darling. It will ean only two weeks in Rio. I'm afraid that's not much time for a honeymoon," he said, ruefully. He thought an eternity would not be long enough.

"How long will you be gone?" If she were an engineer's wife, she must accept its responsibilities and plan her life to adjust itself to his.

"Four months. Perhaps longer. I'm not sure. The worst part of it is that there is no chance for communication where we are going." He pressed her hand. "When I think of the days and nights without you, Brenda, it makes me want to give it all up." He stared into the horizon.

"Alan, can't I go part of the way with you?" she asked in a small voice. "I shall hate sending you out so far by yourself. Of course," she added hastily, "I should not want to be a nuisance or inconvenience you in any way."

He laughed down at her. "You a nuisance! I only wish that it would not be too much to take you all the way with me. But that is impossible."

"But I can go part of the way. At least until you get ready to leave civilized country," she insisted eagerly.

Planning the Future

"You darling!" He stood up quickly and lifted her out of the chair, rug and all. They stood there by themselves, Alan's arms pressing her close. "If you really mean it, you may go," he whispered in her ear. "But it will mean some hardships for you. There won't be iced drinks all of the way, nor nice comfortable, air-conditioned rooms."

Her lips trembled against his. Anything would be better than sitting alone in a hotel room for four months. If she could go with him, participate in his mining life, it would give her something to think about.

After that she could begin her painting.

"A gold mine! Will I really see one?"

They walked slowly back to their cabin. "Let me think. I may take you as far as the Morro Velho. That is one of the most famous and one of the largest. I had charge of a crew there last year, you know."

She would not allow herself to think of Cary and Lynne Winship. For them she could only hope that happiness would come to both. Her life in a new country was about to begin. The life in the old must be severed with a sharp and true cut. She had determined that in the first day of her ocean trip.

Tonight she wore a dark blue velvet gown, with a sequin jacket that fitted her superbly. Her dark hair high, as she preferred wearing it for dress occasions, shone blue-black under the lights of the dining salon.

Shadows of the Past

But tonight she noticed a figure she had failed to see earlier. It was, astonishingly enough, the one person whom she would not expect to see here. Lynne's little gray Aunt Madge Sullivan.

"Oh, Alan," she said quickly as she caught sight of the little old lady at the corner table, "there's Lynne's Aunt Madge. I must speak to her, of course."

"Yes, of course, Brenda. And I, too. I knew her when I was a boy."

Mrs. Sullivan looked up, her eyes bright with anticipation. "Miss Holliway, my dear. I'm so happy to find you on board."

Brenda took her small hand and smiled at her. "My husband said he knew you when he was a boy."

Mrs. Sullivan put her hand to her eyes. "Now don't tell me. Let me think who it is. So you've grown up, and an old lady has to think back over the years. Sunburned brown hair . . . bright blue eyes. You could be the little Tremaine boy, but I'd no idea you'd grow so tall!"

"You're right. I could be and am." They all laughed.

"Please sit down and have dinner with a lonely and rather boring old lady, won't you?" she touched his arm.

"It will be a great pleasure," said Alan, hoping that Lynne's relative would not cause Brenda to remember things she shouldn't have to think about at this time.

"Thank you, Mrs. Sullivan," Brenda said, taking the chair that Alan was holding out for her. If only they hadn't seen her, she was thinking. If only the very sight of her did not twist the pain in her heart that had lain dormant for a time.

Hungry Crowds Beg for Food In North China

Millions Facing Starvation in Area Under Japanese Rule

By the Associated Press

Peiping, North China, Feb. 23.—Hungry crowds besieged grain shops today as a growing food shortage, resulting from war conditions and from disastrous floods which last summer destroyed North China's wheat crop, threatened millions in the Peiping-Tientsin area with starvation.

Soaring prices put even bare necessities out of reach of the legions of wage earners.

A foreign survey showed that living costs for the low income groups had risen nearly 400 per cent above pre-war prices, while wages have increased less than 50 per cent over the same period.

Flour, the principal staple, was quoted at $44 per hundredweight in the currency of the Japanese-dominated "federal reserve bank"—the equivalent of about two months' wages for the average native worker. Coarse native grains, like millet and kaoliang, were quoted at 20 to 25 "dollars" a hundredweight.

(The "federal reserve" dollar has an open market value of about 10 cents in U. S. currency. The present low exchange rate gives a false idea of its value to the Chinese, to whom it is still a dollar.)

Even at these prices little flour was available, and many shopkeepers closed their doors.

The impending famine was forecast last September when floods covered all valleys and most of the plains of Hopeh Province. The affected area is under Japanese military occupation. Some foreign observers believed that the Japanese would be unable to finance or carry out any adequate relief program.

Arita Reassures Philippines

Manila (Saturday), Feb. 24 (U.P.).—Japan has absolutely no territorial designs against the Philippines and is willing to conclude a non-aggression treaty covering the islands, Japanese Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita told the Philippines Herald.

The statement followed telegraphed inquiries by the newspaper which usually is considered the organ of Commonwealth President Manuel Quezon and is an outstanding advocate of Filipino independence from American rule, for a precise definition of Japan's intentions towards the islands now and in future.

One of Alabama Quadruplets Dies

Jasper, Ala., Feb. 23 (AP).—Hope Short, one of Alabama's 4-day-old quadruplets, died about 7 o'clock tonight.

Miss Almyra Reams, nurse, said the infant had been ill two days of colic.

A Three Days' Cough is Your Danger Signal

Even if other medicines have failed you may get relief now with Creomulsion. Chronic bronchitis can develop if your chest cold is not treated and you cannot afford to take a chance with any medicine less potent than Creomulsion which goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes.

Creomulsion blends beechwood creosote by special process with other time tested medicines for coughs. It contains no narcotics.

No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding that you are to like the way it quickly allays the cough, permitting rest and sleep, or you are to have your money back. See that the name Creomulsion is on the bottle and you will get the genuine product and the relief you want.

Peasant Child Takes Throne To Rule Tibet

Boy of 6 Installed As Civil and Religious Chief of 3,000,000

By the Associated Press

Lhasa, Tibet, Feb. 23 (By British Army Radio to Delhi).—A scene unparalleled in 60 years, the installation of a peasant child 6 years old as the fourteenth Dalai Lama, civil and religious head of 3,000,000 Tibetans, was continued today through the rejoicings of a multitude.

Focal point of the pageantry was the "skyscraper" Potala Palace, the fantastic dimensions of which overshadow all the forbidden city.

The seventeenth century mansion, hewn out of a hill of stone, soars 440 feet into the air. Its full breadth of 900 feet overlooks the plains of Lhasa.

To the right of a 7-foot throne stood the Dalai Lama's golden food table, inset with great rubies and hundreds of pearls and turquoises.

Already in the hall were abbots and hundreds of monks in dark maroon robes, over which the abbots wore voluminous cloaks of stiff gold and silver brocade.

To the left on raised cushions sat the Dalai Lama's father, 41, in a robe of gold brocade embroidered in green, with a skirt of rainbow striped silk. Next to him was the mother, 40, in a stiff brocaded purple robe and rainbow skirt. Next to her sat the Dalai Lama's 12-year-old brother and the brother's girl-wife.

All stood while the wrappings for the tiny Dalai Lama were placed reverently on the throne.

After an interval the Dalai Lama entered, his chubby hands held by attendant abbots. Behind them came a regent dressed in yellow and the prime minister and incarnate Lama of Takta.

The little Dalai Lama, dressed in golden robes and a yellow conical hat, climbed briskly and confidently up the lower steps to the throne, then was lifted to his place by the lord chamberlain and carefully wrapped with red and golden robes.

Argentine Wins Library Prize In Americas

Bibliography Award Announced Here At Convention

An Argentine scholar last night was named winner of the Medina Bibliographical Award for the year's outstanding project, at the convention of the Inter-American Bibliographical and Library Association.

Announcement of the award to Dr. Enrique Arana jr., dean of the library of law and social science, University of Buenos Aires, was made at the dinner session of the conference at the Willard Hotel.

Prof. Julio Saavedra Molino, University of Chile, and Dr. Ernest R. Moore, Cornell University, were given honorable mentions.

The convention opened at the Union's Hall of Americas yesterday morning, with 150 attending.

Uruguay Faces Crisis As Defense Chief Quits

Montevideo, Feb. 23 (AP).—Representative government faced a crisis in Uruguay today as President Baldomir accepted "with reluctance" the resignation of his minister of national defense, Gen. Alfredo Campos, rebuked Congress and suggested a revision of the constitution.

In a letter to Campos, the President said he was forced to accept his resignation because of the same opposition that other ministers previously had met in the "careless, misguided and unenlightened Congress."
